Two Conservatives Upset in Virginia Democratic Primary

By JOHN F. DAFFRON

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Democratic primary upsets of Virginia's senior pillars of conservatism in both houses of Congress sent tremors through the state's political structure today.

In three key races in the Tuesday election only Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. managed to win over the moderate to liberal challengers seeking to restyle the state party image.

However, a few precincts were still unreported and because of close races many winners were only tentative. None of the candidates had conceded by morning.

By the slimmest of margins — less than one-half of one per cent of the vote — Sen. A. Willis Robertson, 79, lost a see-saw fight to State Sen. William B. Spong Jr., 45, a Portsmouth attorney.

The margin of defeat was essentially the same for Rep. Howard W. Smith, 83, dean of the Virginia congressional delegation and chairman of the House Rules Committee.

And Byrd's victory margin was only one per cent in a relatively light vote of less than 435,000. The rival camps had forecast a vote of a half million or better.

The unofficial Senate vote with only 10 of the state's 2,063 precincts still out showed: Robertson 216,420, Spong 216,899; Byrd 221,512, Boothe 213,227.

Complete unofficial returns from the 262 precincts in Smith's sprawling north central Virginia 8th Congressional District were: Smith 26,521, Rawlings 26,885.

There were two other primaries for the House which didn't shape up as real contests. Rep. Watkins M. Abbitt, state Democratic party chairman, easily trounced a political unknown, Lewis Curling, a Chesapeake attorney, in the southern agricultural 4th District.

In the other race, Clive L. DuVal II, an attorney, trounced Thomas H. Woods, a travel agent, for the party nomination in the northern Virginia 10th District to oppose Republican Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, a member of Congress since 1952.

The outcome in the major races — two upsets and close victory by Byrd who was regarded as a heavy favorite to win nomination for the four years remaining in the unexpired term of his father — almost certainly will cause some adjustments in the party outlook.

Some knowledgeable Democratic leaders regarded the results as a partial ratification — at least — of the gradual shift of sentiment that showed in the 1964 election when President Johnson carried the state into the Democratic column for the first time since President Truman did it in 1948.

Former Sen. Byrd Sr., patriarch of the organization, Robertson and Smith took no part for the national ticket in 1964.

Further shifts of attitude were apparent in the legislature this year with a sudden loosening of purse strings for education and modernization of the state's attitude toward the expansion of public services generally.

But all of the change wasn't obviously in one direction and practical party politics kept the flow uneven.

Sidney S. Kellam, Democratic national committeeman, of Virginia Beach, one of the organization powers, supported both Byrd and Robertson. Yet two years ago it was Kellam, as much as any individual, who helped swing the state to President Johnson.

The narrow Slong victory was directed by William C. Battle. His father, a former governor who came up through the Byrd organization, gave the moderate Spong a warm endorsement in the closing days of the campaign which could have provided the necessary nudge to victory.

Robertson's age vs. Spong's comparative youth and the issue of campaign financing, though, were the major campaign factors.

Banking sources disclosed they were conducting campaign fund drives as a way of saying "thank you" to Robertson — who is chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Robertson's campaigners declined to disclose the amount or source of his campaign war chest in advance of the primary. Spong made a public accounting of what he said were total contributions received.

Smith expressed no grave concern at the apparent loss of his first political campaign in 60 years of public life.

"I will wait until I am convinced that there is no mistake in the tabulation," he said. "If the figures hold up, alright, alright."

Smith thus indicated he might forego asking for a recount which state law allows in elections for the House of Representatives if 500 votes or less separate the winner and loser.

To Restore Matthews Telephone Service

Telephone service is expected to be restored to normal at Matthews this weekend, John Donoho, manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., reported today.

AC power has been leaking from the lines of the Missouri-Arkansas Power Co. and REA to the telephone company lines, he explained, but the exact cause for the leakage has not been determined.

There is an apparent relationship between the hot weather and the leakage, Donoho said. The trouble begins about 8 or 9 a.m. when the temperature begins warming up and continues to about 8 or 9 p.m. when the temperature becomes cooler.

During the hot weather the noise is so loud that a voice cannot be heard on a telephone, he noted.

To counteract this leakage, the telephone company is making alterations to the phones, replacing the three-conductor tubes with four-conductor tubes, Donoho explained. These four-conductor tubes have an element to counteract the drain of the AC power.

Small Loan Co.s Change Hours

All small loan company's are changing the hours they will be open. Effective this Saturday July 16, they will be closed each and every Saturday. New hours during the week are; Monday through Thursday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Other communities with less per capita income than our community have enlarged their hospitals or built hospitals. We must remember that when these communities built or expanded their hospitals, labor and material costs were not nearly as high as they are today. We must have this renovation and new wing for our hospital. Further delay will increase our costs. We can raise the money, and we will raise the money.

PSC to Study Power Rationing In St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Missouri Public Service Commission started a full investigation today of power rationing by Union Electric Co. of St. Louis to avoid a power blackout during the current heat wave.

William R. Clark, PSC chairman, directed F. D. Hequembourg, head of the commission's office of utilities, to "make a full investigation of the company's priority schedules on selective power cutoffs and analyze the emergency there and report to the commission."

He said "we are especially interested in determining if any discrimination exists with regard to the power cutoffs."

Clark said he had not received a letter yet from Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Co., requesting such an investigation. The commission decided on the inquiry after getting numerous complaints from St. Louis Tuesday.

He noted that the company has authority to interrupt the flow of power in the event of an emergency and the threat of a total blackout would be such an emergency.

Police Nab Burglar

Charles Stanley Chessor, East Prairie, was charged with breaking and entering of the Leible-Crumpecker Implement Co., in which he was caught at 3:19 a.m. this morning.

Local police were investigating a window open in the garage and went into the building where they found Chessor in the office.

Chessor's car was discovered parked behind the highway department maintenance building at East Malone after he was apprehended.

Sikeston Guards Will Leave Friday

All members of the Sikeston National Guard unit, with the exception of the advance detachment, are requested to report Friday morning, for convoy movement to Camp Ripley, Minn., for two weeks annual field training.

The kitchen personnel will report at 6 a.m., while the balance of the unit will report no later than 6:45 a.m. All members are reminded to take both the garrison and service uniform caps with them.

Fire Destroys Truck Trailer

EAST PRAIRIE -- The trailer portion of a tractor - trailer truck owned by John Henderson of East Prairie was destroyed by fire Saturday. Henderson had the trailer loaded with straw and had been hauling watermelons.

While the vehicle was parked on Poplar street, the straw was ignited by an unknown cause. The tractor was pulled away from the trailer and damage was confined to the latter part of the vehicle.

House at Dudley Leveled by Fire

DEXTER -- A two-story frame house located four miles north of Dudley burned to the ground Monday morning about 10 a.m.

The house was located on the Battles farm and occupants of the house were Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lusk.

The Dexter Fire Department answered the fire call. Fire Chief Leslie McMunn said that about 50 per cent of the Lusks' clothing and furniture was saved even though the house burned to the ground.

It is believed the house caught afire in the upstairs.

Whistle Saves Life, Fire Destroys Home

DEXTER -- The Paul Rickman residence, a large frame house located at the end of First Street, burned completely Saturday about 2:30 a.m.

The house is located near the Cotton Belt railroad. Rickman told Fire Chief Leslie McMunn that he believed the extra blowing of the train whistle was what awakened him and possibly saved his life. McMunn stated that Rickman "just got out" and that no clothing or furniture was saved.

A bottle gas tank and a kerosene barrel located near the house also burned during the fire.

Rickman was home alone at the time of the fire.

Hospital Expansion Told to Kiwanis

Mayor Kendall Sikes and Harold Jones, administrator of the Delta Community Hospital, were guests speakers at the Kiwanis Club last night at the Rustic Rock.

Mayor Sikes gave the need of raising money and said they must have close to a million dollars in donations to match the Hill Burton Fund of $915,000.00 grant. The total beds available after the new construction there will be approximately 200 beds, Kendall said. The community owned type of hospital has proven to be the most efficient and most dependable way of providing care, he said, for all involved.

Mississippi and New Madrid County courts have contributed money each year to partially cover the loss on individuals who are unable to pay hospital bills. A large area of population now use the facilities of the Sikeston hospital, he said. Business is created in Sikeston when they come to trade here.

Harold Jones stated that the 180 hospital employees have pledged and donated up to date a total of $11,033.00 on the new drive. It was brought out that the fund campaign manager who was brought in will be paid by anonymous donor. This man's salary will not come out of the money collected for the hospital. Administrator Jones said the growth of the hospital has been fantastic, an average of 10 per cent over all with a 37 per cent increase in laboratory tests, a 16 per cent increase in X-Ray tests. In 330 days, people were placed in beds out in the hall 115 days out of 330 or 1-3 of the time, due to crowded conditions.

The new wing will have three floors, the third floor held for future expansion, which can now be added for $123,000.00. The new addition will have a new emergency room to take care of five patients at a time, a new treatment room, a new waiting room, a new conference room, a new press reporter and police headquarters room plus two floors of 34 new beds each.

The hospital now has 26 physicians on the staff, 16 live in Sikeston. The new wing must be built, he said, and will be built.

Kiwanis President Lee Shell held a Board Meeting and announced that the new Learn to Swim program at the Chamber of Commerce pool now has 297 children enrolled under the guidance of a competent instructor, Mrs. Fred Davis, 729 Mimosa Drive.

The Club voted to discontinue fruit cake sales and substitute two pancake days per year instead. More Ford Gum machines were ordered to be placed around town and plans were kicked off for the annual Watermellon Picnic at the George Kirk flower garden grounds.

Final Drawings Drawings Begin For Dexter Hospital

DEXTER -- Word has now been received by the board of directors of the Dexter Memorial Hospital that Hewitt and Royer, the architects and consultants for the new hospital project, have now received sufficient approval of preliminary drawings from the Hill-Harris Agency so that they are now proceeding with full-scale work-drawings.

It is estimated that three drawings will be completed and rady to present for Hill-Harris approval by Sept. 1, and that the hospital will be able to let bids in mid October.

Liberty Township reports that work on One Mile Road has temporarily ceased pending receipt of approval from the state and federal government for alteration and widening of the entrances at Highway 114 and Highway 60. Local and district highway department personnel are giving the township their full cooperation to secure the necessary permits as quickly as possible in order that this road might be completed. John William Ringer, president of the board of directors stated.

At a meeting of the board of directors on Wednesday, July 6, representatives of the Southwest Bell Telephone Company presented an informative film to the board on a hospital interphone system which has recently been developed by Bell Telephone.

Ex-Military Aide Accused of Divulging Information

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former military aide to the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been accused of conspiring to deliver defense information to the Soviet Union.

A federal grand jury indictment naming William Henry Whalen, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, said the information included data on atomic weapons, missiles and the retaliation plans of the Strategic Air Command.

It said Whalen received a total of $5,500 on six occasions between December 1959 and March 1961 from two former Soviet Embassy officials who have returned home.

There was no immediate explanation from the Justice Department nor the Pentagon on the gap of five years between the last alleged offense and the arrest.

Whalen, 51 and now unemployed, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents in suburban Alexandria, Va., where he lives. He was arraigned on the espionage conspiracy charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and released several hours later after positing $15,000 bond.

The two Soviets, Col. Sergei Edemski and Mikhail S. Shumaev, were named as coconspirators in the indictment returned by a grand jury in Newport News, Va. The Justice Department said the two were not charged because they are no longer in the United States.

Edemski, former assistant Soviet military attache, returned home in February 1960 and Shumaev, former first secretary, returned in September 1963, the department said.

Whalen, who had been awarded the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation Medal, served in Europe and Japan before being assigned in 1955 to the Army intelligence branch of the foreign liaison office in Washington.

He later was assigned to the staff of the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon where he served until Feb. 3, 1961, when he was retired on a physical disability after more than 20 years of active duty.

Whalen's wife, Bernadine, was contacted by Washington Star reporter Walter Gold shortly after her husband's arrest. As he read her an Associated Press story detailing the charges, Gold said she broke into tears and said:

"I don't know how this could happen. It isn't possible. I don't believe, I don't believe it, I'll never believe it. It just isn't true, it just isn't true — he never said anything about this to me.

"Oh, what will I do now — who's going to pay all these bills?"

She declined later to talk with other newsmen.

Later, in a Columbia Broadcasting System interview, Mrs. Whalen described the circumstances under which FBI agents took her husband into custody at their home.

She quoted him as saying at that time he did not know what the arrest was about. Her first information on the accusations, she said, came in her talk with the newspaper reporter.

A PASSENGER, Rose Anna Brashear, Bertrand, was injured when her head struck the windshield of the Volkswagen. Her husband was driving east, when a station wagon, driven by Willard Smith, 33, Cape Girardeau, came off of Interstate 55, east of Miner, onto highway 62, according to the highway patrol.

Harry Jones Has Served 24 Years As Director

One of the nominees for the Daily Standard's Most Courteous Employee is Harry L. Jones, funeral director for the Jackson funeral home in Sikeston since October of 1942.

Until about four years ago when the Rev. and Mrs. Gayle Jackson moved here from Cape Girardeau, the Jackson Funeral Home was known as Albritton's Funeral home and located on North Kingshighway.

Before coming to work for Albritton's over 24 years ago, Jones was employed at a food and meat market. Each day on his way home from work he passed Albritton's. One afternoon John Albritton stopped him and asked if he would like a job. Later they discussed the possibility further, and Jones became a funeral director with Albritton's.

Since Jones has been with the funeral home many things have changed. He said, "The working conditions have improved, new buildings erected, and the staff enlarged." When Jones first began work only Albritton and himself were working; now the staff includes five accomplished individuals aided by the Rev. Jackson and his wife, who bought the original Albritton home.

Jones also talked about the difference of the funeral homes today. One major change is the installation of the chapel in the funeral home; this has made them better able to serve the public.

Overlooking his years of service to the public, Jones decided that he has been quite happy in his profession. "It has been my pleasure to work in this community and serve its citizens," stated Jones.

Coroner's Jury Finds Juvenile Guilty of Felony

CHARLESTON -- A 16-year-old Charleston girl was found guilty of committing a felony in the fatal stabbing of Freddie Lee Jones, 19, of Charleston Saturday morning on a Charleston street corner.

Etta Louise Gibbs was found guilty by a coroner's jury at an inquest held here Tuesday afternoon. James Haw has been appointed to represent her in juvenile court, it was reported, but no trial date has been set.

2 Injured Here in Car-Truck Accident

Two persons were injured Tuesday at 9:50 p.m. in a truck - car accident on Highway 60, three miles west of Sikeston.

The Highway Patrol said a tractor - trailer truck driven west by Roma Lee Chinn, 33, of Cromwell, Ky., and a car driven east by Terry Morris, 20, of Elwood, Ind., collided. Morris apparently went to sleep while driving, and his car swerved across the center line and hit the trailer of the truck, troopers said.

Injured were Morris, he sustained a broken left arm and lacerations of the left hand, and Louise Morris, 37, severe lacerations of the forehead. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital. Morris will be charged with careless and reckless driving when he is released from the hospital, the patrol said.

One person was injured in a two-car accident at 12:37 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 62 at the east edge of Sikeston.

A car driven east by John Brashear, 60, of Bertrand and a car driven east by Willard Smith, 33, of Cape Girardeau collided after the Smith car pulled onto Highway 62 from the Interstate 55 interchange, troopers said.

Injured was Rose Anna Brashear, a passenger in the Brashear car, with minor cuts and a bump on the head.

The Highway Patrol reported four accidents and three injuries in southeast Missouri Tuesday.

Federal Agency Files Against Poplar Bluff Firms

POPLAR BLUFF -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations were named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act on file in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

Defendants named were Barnes Grocer Co. and Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributor of Poplar Bluff and Piggott, Ark.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz described them as an enterprise with unified operation under common control for a common business purpose. They are charged with failure to pay the required minimum wage, now $1.25 per hour, and the required time - and - a-half for overtime, to employees in stores and distributing installations in Poplar Bluff, and Piggott and Corning, Ark.

The court order sought would require compliance with the statute, and the maintenance of adequate time and pay records, which the complaint said is not now being done.

Eight Treated

David Allen Robertson, fell on patio and received cut on chin; Jackie Taylor, West Helena, Ark., and Robin Ann Taylor, West Helena, Ark., both in car accidents; Dale Woodard, slipped on floor, striking his head; Ronnie Andrews, collided with another player on baseball field; Vella Lee Applewhite, mashed finger in bathroom door; Thomas Gilbert Carlyle, East Prairie, ramp fell on both feet while working; John R. Harwell Jr., fell at high school.

Waitress Class Held Tuesday

Mrs. Faye Jeffries of the State Department of Education was the instructor and presented a program on all aspects of waitress work. Warren Manning of the Scott County Health Department spoke on the sanitation aspects of preparing and serving food and also discussed the state laws which apply to restaurants in the field of health and sanitation.

"IMPROVING" THE CAPITOL

Like knights of old rushing to the defense of a lady's honor, architects, Members of Congress and just plain taxpayers have rallied round the United States Capitol. The cause of their concern is a proposal to extend the west front of the building by as much as 88 feet, a project that would require $34 million and four years of construction work.

The proposal originated in the Commission for Extension of the United States Capitol, whose five members include the Speaker of the House, the President of the Senate, the minority leaders of both houses, and the capitol architect. As it happens, the incumbent capitol architect is no architect. He is J. George Stewart, a former building contractor who was appointed by President Eisenhower in 1954. To Stewart belongs the credit (or blame) for extension of the Capitol's east front, and for construction of the New Senate Office Building and Rayburn House Office Building.

"Vandalism" is a word often used by critics of the plan to extend the west front. But it can be argued that the Capitol is nothing if not adaptable to architectural change, even of a radical nature. The original design was submitted in 1793 by William Thornton, a British West Indian, who, like Stewart, had no formal architectural training.

The British burned the Capitol in 1814. Benjamin H. Lathrobe was put in charge of restoration, only to be succeeded in 1818 by Charles Bulfinch, who brought the design to completion in 1830. However, the structure soon proved inadequate; T. U. Walter was hired to add the north and south wings and the cast-iron dome. This great undertaking lasted from 1851 to 1865.

Since the dome stretched nearly 13 feet beyond its base, Walter proposed that the east front be extended as soon after the Civil War as possible. Stewart, not Walter, came under fire when the east front expansion finally was approved in 1958. But the capitol architect has shown he can endure criticism, just as the Capitol itself has shown it can withstand alteration.

MRS. GANDHI IN MOSCOW

Alignment with East or West is a luxury that India can ill afford. Dependent on the United States for food and on the Soviet Union for protection against Red Chinese aggression, India must of necessity tread the middle path.

The five-day visit to Moscow, starting Tuesday, July 12, of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi exemplifies her country's ambivalent foreign policy. A trip to the Soviet capital could hardly have been avoided after Mrs. Gandhi's journey to Washington last April. Since then, India has relaxed certain economic controls at the insistence of the United States. Mrs. Gandhi's Kremlin hosts no doubt will seek a full explanation of these actions.

Economic reform was part of the price India had to pay for full-scale resumption of American food assistance. Conditions may also be attached to continued Soviet economic and military aid. For a starter, Soviet leaders might demand that India take a more militant position against United States involvement in Viet Nam. India's task is to appease both superpowers without casting her lot with either. It is a delicate maneuver, but one which, off past performance, India seems to have mastered.

RIGHT'S OF THE ACCUSED

"We are very quiet there," Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said of the Supreme Court, "but it is the quiet of a storm center." Now comes evidence in the wake of the high court's June 13 decision on criminal confessions that the seat of judgment is as prickly as ever.

Even before the newest decision, which severely limits powers of the police to interrogate suspects, the Supreme Court was under considerable fire for its "social engineering." On the same day of the latest ruling, in fact, U. S. News & World Report went on the newsstands with a testy article entitled, "In the 13th Year of the 'Warren Revolution' -- How Supreme Court is Changing U. S."

Although canny in its timing, USN&WR erred in its conclusion that the Supreme Court now "may be inclined to slow the rapid tempo of court-directed changes in America." The 5-4 decision in the confessions case reveals that the "judicial activists" still are able to carry the day against the "advocates of judicial restraint."

The bitter dissent by Justice John M. Harlan came as something of a surprise. He denounced the majority decision as "dangerous experimentation" and "new doctrine" without substantial precedent. Only three years ago when the Court came under criticism from all sides it was Harlan who offered a defense, declaring that "ill-informed or intemperate criticism of the doings of the courts only serves to breed misunderstandings and ultimate disrespect for law."

THE IMMORTAL
HOT DOG

The hot dog has long been an American institution, and in all likelihood it is destined for immortality. It is inextricably related to fun -- whether that fun consists of sports, picnics, carnivals, fairs, or a still newer American institution, the backyard barbecue.

The hot dog's history is full of nostalgia. According to some accounts, it made its first appearance in 1871 at a Coney Island refreshment center and was an immediate hit. It solidified its popular standing at the Chicago Columbia Exposition of 1893 where Little Egypt was the headliner. Then came 1904 and the St. Louis Exposition -- and the everlasting marriage of the wiener and the elongated bun. This happened after a peddler, finding that the "red hots" were too hot to handle, provided his customers with white gloves. But profits fast disappeared with the globes, so he hit on the idea of a bun to fit the meat.

The hot dog was off and running. It soon became a familiar sight at carnivals, exhibitions and circuses throughout the Midwest. Later it formed its loving association with baseball -- a game which seems to demand that we grasp a hot dog in one hand and something cool and bubbly to drink in the other.

The hot dog has just about everything. It's succulent and cheap, and nothing does more to happily perfume the air, whatever the season. Now, we learn, it is rapidly establishing itself abroad -- one more of America's contributions to an older world!

BACK TO 'START',
LOSE TURN

"Sick" parlor games, which apparently are stepchildren of the sick jokes that were around a few years ago, are reportedly growing popular.

One example is a game of atomic war in which the object is to wipe out your friendly opponent on the other side of the kitchen table.

In another, players compete to see who can win the biggest funeral, with the most expensive hearse, tombstone and plot.

Sick as the sick games are, however, the trend toward them may be a healthy thing for the nation's psyche, says one game thinker-upper. Such games, he believes, help relieve a lot of tensions, frustrations and anxieties.

If this is true, and it probably is, the best game brains in the country ought to set to work devising something that could be played at the United Nations by all the heads of states.

It should be a game in which every president, premier and prime minister could take turns annihilating his enemies, conquering his neighbors, evening old scores and realizing new ambitions. Whoever passed "Go" would collect the world.

Every country, every ideology, would have a chance of winning once in a while. And nobody would really lose, because the nuclear bomb cards and what not would be reshuffled and a new game played every day.

Think of the tensions this sort of thing would relieve.

A GOOD LINE

A father told his teenage daughter that he wanted her home by 11 p.m.

"But, Father," she complained, "I'm no longer a child."

"I know," answered her father. "That's why I want you home by 11."

NEW YORK (AP) — A civilization is known by what it cherishes.

But, now and then, don't you have the uneasy feeling that some of the customs, beliefs, gadgets, characters and status symbols of our time are a bit overrated?

Home cooking, particularly in households in which the chief culinary instruments are the ice pick and the can opener.

All outdoor cooking within the city limits.

Ice cubes with holes in them.

Sex after 50.

Skinny trousers, skinny lapels, skinny neckties, skinny brief cases and skinny people.

Golf, water skiing, scuba diving and surfboard riding.

The ease of supermarket shopping. A husband who has to bruise his way through a supermarket mob to get a basket of groceries is lucky if he doesn't end up as a basket case himself.

The two-car garage. It has no more extra room to store lawnmowers and kids' tricycles than one-car garages.

The helpfulness of airline stewardesses. If you ask one of these busy maidens to help you find your lost false teeth, she asks right back: "Yes, sir, coffee, tea or milk?"

Hairy-chested folk music as sung by long-haired male folk singers who have to play the guitar with their knuckles to keep from getting their fingers entangled in the strings.

Contact lenses, drip-dry shirts and James Bond novels.

Foreign movies that begin and end in bedrooms.

Get-out-of-Viet-Nam books written by Frenchmen who were thrown out.

Pop art, mod clothes, pizza waffles.

Anything that you can get back in exchange for 25 cents and a box top.

Ranch mink earmuffs.

Bikinis.

Batman jokes, elephant jokes, Italian jokes.

Psychoanalysis and Superman sweatshirts.

Any dance invented since the fox trot.

The advantages of buying now and paying later.

The financial rewards from writing smutty books. Most dirty-book authors drive second-hand cars and are behind in their rent.

The sex appeal of false eyelashes, suntans, and artificial fingernails.

The ability of the average woman to distinguish between administrative skill and physical charm in male political candidates.

The acting ability of Lassie. In "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," Elizabeth Taylor does a far better job of barking.

Vanilla milkshakes, Melba toast and Brigitte Bardot.

The value of garlic in tossed salads and the rhythm system in birth control.

Public interest in spinach, glue sniffing or the collected views of Bertrand Russell.

The power of American womanhood.

Ya' know what they call a Jewish boy that joins a Monastry? A Schmunk.

FRENCH STYLES AND THE AMERICAN MALE

Several Paris Couturiers -- among them Pierre Cardin -- have begun to eye the American men's wear market. Long a major force in the women's fashion field, Cardin and others of his stature have successfully marketed specially designed men's wear throughout Europe. The affluent American male -- young or old -- may well get the next chance to pass judgment on the suitability of these special designs to his tenor and temperament. It has been reported that among these designs a man's white raincoat--off the peg -- sells for around $350, cotton summer suits for about the same price and a Cashmere sport coat for $600. Then there enters the matter of buying, as typlified by this precisely accurate quote: -- "Men will begin buying clothing like women, for a few months' wear instead of a few years." Certain women have certainly done that. . . certain men may, too. Good fashion and bad fashion has always been available at many price levels.

It was a swinging party -- lots of chicks, booze and dim lights. Orville Fenderlob was aware of a particularly nifty dish sitting alone in a corner. He went over, clasped her in his arms and began kissing her passionately.

"Stop you fool!" she shrieked angrily, fighting herself loose from his arms.

"Pardon me," Orville bluffed smoothingly, "I thought you were my sister."

"You idiot," she shot back. "I AM."

HOW NOW RED COW?

The Soviet Union is going to pass the United States in milk production this year for the first time ever, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

It extimates total Soviet milk production will be nearly 127.9 million pounds, about 2,370 pounds more than the predicted U.S. total.

Can it be that Khruschev's boast that the U.S.S.R. would eventually surpass the U.S.A. in every way is coming true?

Or dare we hope that milk-fed Reds from a land of contented cows will prove a bit less bullheaded in international pastures in the future?"

TRENDS: "Paisley" has grown into an important name in the men's field, says the American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear -- and is mistakenly being applied to every bold print pattern. It will continue along these lines, expanded into so - called Persians, medallions, cathedral - window types. . . The basic dark suit for teens in school is a black mohair -- or one with a high sheen. The three-button model is the best seller - the two-button, in the same black suits, is the next best.

"Don't be silly," his wife sleepily reassured him, "he's in Korea!"

THE QUESTION REMAINS

The intimately related tax and spending problems grow more clouded.

A short time ago the powerful House Ways and Means Committee voted to increase social security payments and to increase social security taxes by 5 per cent to meet the bill. There are excellent arguments in favor of this move in view of the slow but steady rises in living costs that have characterized the "creeping inflation" of recent years. But, the pros and cons of that aside, this increased tax will go a long way toward offsetting the reduction in income taxes that went into effect last year.

We are facing an ancient truism --- you can't have your cake and eat it, too. And the government, despite the occasional lip service that is paid to the cause of economy, continues to operate on a "spend more, owe more" basis. The disastrous end result of this kind of policy has been seen the world around in the post World War I era. So, an old and increasingly important question remains to be answered: Will we learn from the tragic experience of others before our own economic sins catch up with us at home?

The spenders in Congress have just voted a heavy increase in their salaries although they have failed miserably to show any ability to balance national expense with national income.

CHILDREN'S CREATIVITY
SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED

The Bureau of Educational Research of the University of Minnesota gives the following suggestions in the Catholic Digest for encouraging creativity in children:

1. Treat questions with respect.
2. Treat imaginative ideas with respect.
3. Show children that their ideas have value.
4. Occasionally have children do something "for practice" without threat of criticism.

Doc. Duncan Says

In the past we have read quite a bit of criticism of Communist nations supplanting parents in teaching the children AND taking over all phases of education. Of late we don't read or hear much of that anymore, evidently our people have taken a look around and decided we are in the same boat now. Parents have no say as to what their children are taught or what school they attend. The mention of God in our school is a violation of the law, same as it is in anti-Christ nations. In all history, no nation has ever forsaken God without sooner or later crashing. At present we have our neck out all the way, so to speak. We have more tax free bonds than consumers can pay interest on in normal times and our fighting forces 10,000 miles from home in-between China and Russia. This could be it. Two Commie nations could do the trick.

H. L. Hunt Says

TEDDY IN WIDE
OPEN SPACES

In September 1905, I debarked from a freight train on my way to California, stopping to work in the fields topping sugar beets near Rifle, Colorado. Five months previously, President Teddy Roosevelt had his "temporary White House" nearby while on a hunting trip in the area. His adventures lost nothing in the telling by the ranchers, storekeepers, teachers and other admiring denizens of the Western Slope.

Fourteen years later I bought Valentine Plantation near the South boundaries of East Carroll Parish, Louisiana. Adjoining Valentine to the East was the Leo Shields plantation, whose fine plantation home had been another Teddy Roosevelt "temporary White House" during a presidential bear hunt in the dense canebrakes adjoining Valentine on the West.

I listened long to the planters reciting the prowess of Teddy. Barrel-chested "Jug" Metcalf, who lived on one of his plantations across the Mississippi, told of the dog baying a black bear in a dense canebrake West of Valentine. The canes, an inch in diameter and 10 to 15 ft. tall, grew at a density of about 5 per square foot, and when leaning formed lodges difficult to penetrate or traverse.

"Jug" reported that Teddy shouted, "That bear will cripple or kill those hounds," with which he grabbed a machete and started hacking and pushing his way to where the bear was "at bay." The planters could not stop Teddy, a bear of a man himself. Alone, he reached the great black bear, and when it turned on him, he killed it with the heavy hunting knife.

Teddy's simple, effective foreign policy was "Speak softly and carry a big stick." The stick he was willing to use when necessary, regardless of alleged "world opinion." HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Airline Strike Call Was Signal For Sweeping Strike Offensive

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Now what say the intellectual critics and the university ivory-towerists of the lack of labor militancy? What say they of the "tired old men who lead labor?"

Had these critics left their round tables and forged forth instead of forumed, they would have known what a handful of insiders know -- that labor is on the march again. And that the Machinists' airline strike -- called last Friday -- is the worst in history.

It is not the beginning, for there is a new breed of labor leaders -- and a new breed does not mean a young breed.

It is is the harbinger of new airline strikes, possibly as early as July 27 on the sprawling American Airlines, and later on the system-wide network of the Pan American World Airways -- with all its caretaker operations in missiles and space and atomic experimentation.

The Machinists' airline strike called the signal for open season on all vital functions, anywhere, anytime and in any pursuit.

Thus there will be strike crises, wrought by labor coalitions, which will startle the land from now right on through 1968.

And in the vortex will be men in their sixties -- just like the Machinists' leader "Roy" Siemiller, 62, Navy veteran long before World War II; and his airline specialist, vice president Joe Ramsey, of the same age.

They are militants.

They have replaced still older labor leaders -- and with their cadre came strike calls and walkouts which paralyzed production of swept-wing bombers, phantom jets, Viet Nam type helicopters, scarce ball powder, brass artillery and ammunition shells, million-candle power flares, grenades, small arms and intricate nuclear warhead wirings.

So they did not and will not hesitate to strike airlines, electronic corporations, copper mines, auto factories and aerospace plants in the next months and years.

He knows what he wants. He wants to deliver to his people.

He is a relatively new national union president. But he is of old union stock. He knows you can't get sherry from squeezing dried-cut grape pits.

So when last year the Civil Aeronatuics Board threatened to cut the fare rates on commercial airlines, Siemiller on September 27 wrote a strong letter to Chairman Charles Murphy telling him: "Though we have often disagreed with the managements of many airlines in the past, we believe they are correct, in this instance, in contending that a cut in fares will dilute revenues without generating enough new traffic to offset that dilution.

"Moreover -- the carriers have committed more than $2.4 billion for new equipment. This investment, plus the more equitable wage scales which, with the overwhelming support of our members, we are fully determined to pursue, demands that CAB refrain from tampering with the currant rate schedule."

Siemiller knows that the better the profits the better the wages. And when he could not get what he wanted -- roughly about half the profits earned -- he struck because he knew that is what his 35,300 followers wanted.

But the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers demanded a package of $114 million, though the settling price always is lower. But they fought for a full half of the yearly profit.

They argued that the commerical airline field had been a sick industry but it "was made well by the jets." So union leaders hit hard.

There are other unions lining up for the attack. The Transport Workers Union, which struck the New York City transit system in the year's early turbulent days -- and won a package of some $65 million -- is going after American Airlines and Pan Am -- and the TWU chiefs are newly upgraded, albeit they are in their fifties and more.

There is no containing the "newcomers" -- whether they be the "younger" Paul Jennings of the International Union of Electrical Workers or the stalwart I. W. (Abe) Abel, the "man of steel." "Abe" is, at once, of the older generation and the new breed.

They waited long for their chance to deliver. They believe their predecessors were too close to the government, the Secretary of Labor, the White House, the President.

They have returned to the birthplace of their profession, the original weapon -- the picket line.

Washington Merry- Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Vice President gave a private report to close friends at the Governor's Conference in Los Angeles expressing optimism regarding the Viet Nam war and giving some details to back it up.

One reason for optimism is Prime Minister Harold Wilson's trip to Moscow. The Russians have always been anxious for peace, and have made some peace overtures to North Viet Nam. However, they lack the influence with Ho Chi Minh that the Chinese have, and have always been rebuffed.

Recently, it's reported that the North Vietnamese have been getting war-weary and that Ho has informed the Chinese that his country can't take it much longer.

Prime Minister Wilson will try to impress the Russians that the United States is perfectly willing to have free and fair elections, just as in the Dominican Republic, and will abide by the outcome, no matter which side wins -- even the Viet Cong.

President Johnson wants to hold elections, set up a free government, and then get out.

The President and the Prime Minister of England have been talking two or three times a week over the private phone connecting the White House with No. 10 Downing Street. The public doesn't know this phone exists, but it's called the "Jack-Mac" line, having been nicknamed for Jack Kennedy and Harold MacMillan, who set it up.

LBJ'S GIRL FRIEND

There is one lady visitor at the White House who can always get in whenever she wishes. No appointment secretary has been able to keep her out.

She is Courtenay Valenti, 21/2 year-old daughter of Jack Valenti, former assistant to LBJ, and Mary Margaret Valenti, who long served as Senator Johnson's secretary.

Last week when the President was in Texas, Courtenay decided she wanted to ride a deer. She had heard that there were a lot of deer at the LBJ ranch, so she demanded that her mother put in a call to "Pres." The call was made. But "Pres" was out around the ranch and couldn't be reached. Courtenay was not at all pleased. She saw no reason why the President of the United States should not take her call.

Senators who some weeks earlier had attended a White House conference could easily understand her puzzlement. President Johnson was then meeting with a group of 10 or 12 leaders from the House and Senate, including genial Rep. Harley Staggers, D- W. Va., and austere Sen. Carl Hayden, the Democratic elder statesman from Arizona.

The group sat on couches on either side of the President, who sat in his rocking chair. In front of him, as usual, was his keyboard telephone.

Sitting on the floor at the President's feet was Courtenay Valenti. She sat there very quietly during the high-level conference between the nation's foremost lawmakers, not so much absorbed with their conversation as with "Pres's" telephone and with the occasional guffaw of elder statesman Hayden.

When it was all over Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., telephoned the White House.

$30 BILLION SEWER BILL

American cities face a $30 billion bill for building new sewers in order to prevent pollution, according to Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala.

"About 1,940 cities in the U. S. have combined sewers - carrying both raw sewage and rain water -- which serve about 59 million people," says the Congressman from Alabama. "These sewers flush about 65 billions gallons of raw sewage annually into the nation's watercourses. Their pollution effects are increasing and seriously damage downstream water quality.

"Ultimate elimination of pollution will probably require, in most cases, complete separation of storm-water from sewage flows. This would cost $30 billion or more, but other methods of control also would be very costly and probably would be only partially effective in preventing pollution."

Jones urges that the job be iniated by all urban renewal projects, both underway and planned. Most combined sewer systems were developed in the 19th century before there was much concern about water pollution.

THE DIPLOMATIC POUCH

Select Chinese pilots, stuck with obsolete planes that are no match for the latest American jets, are being trained in Kamikaze (suicide tactics) . . . Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., has accused the State Department privately of spreading the false report that Ambassador Edwin Ceischauer wanted to leave his post in Tokyo in order to retain his tenure on the Harvard University faculty. Aiken suspects this was the State Department's way of easing out the most effective ambassador we have had in Japan -- but who was not a member of the State Department's inner circle . . . President De Gaulle has asked the Kremlin to support his efforts to settle the Viet Nam War. He will go to Cambodia, next door to Viet Nam, in September, where he'll use his personal prestige to arrange truce talks. He wanted Russian support . . . The sudden retirement of Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto for health reasons has been interpreted as a shift in Pakistan's foreign policy toward the West. Bhutto was regarded as the Architect of Pakistan's friendship pact with Red China.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Spane

Miss Sharon Sims Says Vows With Ronald Spane Saturday

ADVANCE -- A single, very large basket of white gladioli on a tall standard centered the altar and was the focal point in a setting at the Methodist church Saturday evening for the 8 p.m. wedding of Miss Sharon Sims and Ronald Spane.

The flower arrangement was flanked on either side by a seven branched candelabrum. Potted palms completed the altar arrangement while satin bows of blue, marked the pews

The former Miss Sims is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims of Advance. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane of Painton.

The Rev. O. D. Niswonger of Patton officated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Eva Moore was at the organ to play the nuptial music and to accompany the solosts, Miss Sondra Harnes, of Advance, and Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., brother-in-law of the bride.

Ushers, who also served as candlelighters, were Mark Elfrink and Bob Kirpatrick of Advance, Mrs. David Harris, of Springfield, a sister of the bride, registered guests.

Preceding the bride to the altar was Miss Sondra Ward, of Advance, the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lura Robinson of Advance, Miss Teresa Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., a niece of the bride and Miss Tonya McGill, of Sikeston, a niece of the groom.

The bride's attendants wore identically fashioned waltz-length dresses of corn-flower blue, dotted dacron. The fitted bodices were cut empire style in front and sloped to a natural waistline level in the back. The double-ruffle trim with velvet ribbon was used on the sleeves and at the neck and waistline, where the ribbon terminated in streamers at the back. They wore bandeau-pillbox headpieces with ripple veils, and each carried a single, long stemmed white rose.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was gowned in traditional white, creation of angel-mist taffeta and chantilly lace.

Scallops of lace, studded with sequins, finished the deep-scooped neckline. The bodice was fitted and the long sleeves came to a point over the hand.

The very bouffant floor-length skirt, worn over hoops, had a deep scallop trim at the bottom. An overskirt in front was accented by an applique of lace sprinkled with sequins. The watteau chapel-length train had a lavish use of the sequin-studded lace and was detachable with a Dior bow, high above the waistline.

The tiered veil of imported illusion was secured to a frosted headpiece. The bride's bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses and pompons.

The mother of the bride chose a two-piece gold metallic dress with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations. The mother of the groom chose a two piece off-white metallic dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

James John Sims, only brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were David Dalton, Bell City; Billie Raber Advance, and Robert Jenkins, Bloomingdale, Ill., nephew of the bride.

Suggestive of the bride's wedding colors, Mr. and Mrs. Sims used a blue and white decorating scheme when they received guests in their home following the ceremony. Bowls of blue hydrangea and baby's breath appointed the reception room; the bride's table was laid with lace over blue and was centered with a tiered white cake with blue accents, with white and gold gas candles tied with blue ribbon bows. The cake was baked by the mother and decorated by LeRoy Stilts, a friend of the bride.

The cake was served by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield. The punch was poured by Mrs. Robert Fowler of Addison, Ill., sister of the bride and Mrs. Charles McGill, of Sikeston, sister of the groom. Mrs. Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., and Mrs. David Harris of Springfield, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Wilbur Raber of Advance and Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride, of Advance, also assisted at the table.

The former Miss Sims is a graduate with the 1966 class of the Advance high school and is employed by the Abest Data Processing Company, of Villa Park, Ill.

Spane is a graduate of the Bell City high school and attended State College, Cape Girardeau, the past year. On returning to College he will be a junior. For the summer he is employed by the Abbott Construction Company of Chicago, Ill.

BRIDAL SHOWER

The former Miss Sims was feted Thursday evening at a miscellaneous shower in the dining room of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Wilbur Raber arranged the shower event. She was assisted by Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride; Mrs. H. R. Cresap, Mrs. Ivan Ward, Mrs. Joe Tilley, Mrs. Fred Stilts, Miss Eva Moore, Mrs. James Harnes, Mrs. B. H. Sample, Mrs. Lyman Zimmerman, Mrs. Robert Crader and Mrs. Clyde Refelle.

Blue hydrangeas with blue corn flowers and baby's breath provided a centerpiece for the refreshment table arranged by Mrs. Zimmerman. Serving the table were Mrs. H. R. Cresap and Mrs. Wilbur Raber. In opening of gifts, the honoree was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Earl Jenkins and Teresa Jenkins, a niece, of Bloomingdale, Ill.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Marion Vancoy, of Belleville, Ill., Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield; Mrs. Lyman Spane, mother of the groom of Painton, and Mrs. Charles McGill, sister of the groom, of Sikeston.

HOSTS TO THE WEDDING PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims, Friday evening, following a rehearsel at the Methodist church to compliment the marriage of their son, Ronald Spane, to Sharon Sims.

Guests were members of the wedding party.

Miss Ginger Chism

Ginger Chism Is Engaged To John Netteler

Mrs. Cuma Chism, 1401 East Gladys St., announces the engagement of her eldest daughter, Ginger, to John Netteler, son of Mrs. Patricia Netteler, route two.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. Esther Walls of Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. George Chism. She is a 1966 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed as a secretary at the Braswell Sani-Soft Water Service.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Sikeston high school and is now serving with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans.

Wedding plans are indefinite at this time.

Sharon Walker Is Honored With Lingerie Shower

Miss Sharon Walker, bride-elect of Wayne Hatley, was honored at a lingerie shower Wednesday. Her bridesmaids, Miss Ann Bess, Miss Sandy Ford, and Miss Katie Blanton were hostesses.

The Bess home was decorated with roses, pom-pom daisies, and Marguerite daisies. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with white tapers in triple crystal candelabra and a silver bowl of yellow and white Marguerite daisies.

Miscellaneous advice was given to Miss Walker by each guest. Pictures were taken during the evening and presented to the bride-elect as momentoes.

The guest list included Mrs. J. N. Walker, Jr., mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Atlas Hatley and Miss Sharon Hatley, mother and sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Cynthia Cullins, Misses Becky Turner, Judy Sidwell, Sandy Carr, Anne Wissman, Pat Howard, Brenda Schaeffer, Carol Miller, Kay Woods, Mary Cauthorn, Kathy Hahs and Pat Wilson.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Communist bloc has dropped the other shoe with Poland joining Russia's boycott of scheduled track and field meets in the United States this month.

Now amateur sports officials are waiting to see whether the International Amateur Athletics Federation drops either shoe on the Communists.

The IAAF, headquartered in London, presides over track and field throughout the world and could administer a severe wrist slapping to Poland and Russia for failing to keep their commitments, a tactic the IAAF usually frowns upon. So far, it has remained silent.

Polish athletes were ready to leave for their scheduled meet at Berkeley, Calif., this weekend when word of the cancellation came Tuesday. The Russians had called off their July 23-24 meet in Los Angeles on Monday. American involvement in the war in Viet Nam was given as the reason for both pullouts.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said he deplored political influence in sports.

"Representatives of all countries have joined in denunciation of political influence," Brundage said. "In this case, the first reaction will come from the IAAF to determine if there is a violation of rules or principles.

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is in Europe, said he would fly to Moscow to try and bind the split.

Hull told Glenn Davis, director of the Los Angeles meet, in a telephone conversation that he "could not believe the Soviet sports people would jeopardize their standings with the IAAF by failing to complete their contract to compete in Los Angeles."

The Communist sports freeze extended to basketball with the announcement that Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia were cancelling games against a touring American all - star team.

The Americans opened their swing through Europe with a 104-81 victory over an Austrian team in Vienna Monday night but plans for the remainder of the trip were uncertain.

Meanwhile, the 19 - member U. S. swimming team arrived in Moscow to compete in an international meet this weekend. The team was treated routinely in line with the Soviet announcement that it would take no action in events involving other countries besides the United States. The meet involves a number of countries besides the United States and Russia.

Plans went ahead in Berkeley and Los Angeles for replacement meets. The Berkeley meet was renamed the All-American Invitational and Los Angeles promoters invited Australian and New Zealand teams to compete in their meet.

Frederick Humphreys, manager of the Australian track and field squad, said he thought the Australians would accept the invitation.

At the same time, the Russians and Poles agreed to compete against each other at Minsk, Russia, July 23-24, the weekend the Soviets were to be in Los Angeles.

Polish officials seemed saddened over the cancellation and so were the American athletes.

"If only the Russians had waited a day or two to announce their decision," said one Pole, "we would have been on our way."

The announcement came only hours before the Polish delegation was to leave for the United States.

Ralph Boston, veteran Olympian and holder of the world record in the broad jump, called the Polish cancellation unfortunate. "There always had been good relations between the athletes," Boston said.

The Americans lost to the Russian men' 118-112 at Kiev last summer after winning six of the previous seven meets. At Warsaw last year, the Americans beat the Poles 118-93.

Cards Announce Photo and Autograph Night

On July 19, during the opener of a three - game series with Atlanta at new Busch Stadium, the Cardinals for the second year will distribute Photo - Autograph Folders to fans in attendance.

The attractive folder contains individual pictures and printed autographs of Manager Red Schoendienst, all Cardinal players and members of the coaching staff. A Red Bird roster is also included.

Tickets for the three-game set with Atlanta can be purchased over the counter or by mail at Busch stadium, St. Louis, Missouri 63102.

Steinbeck Fires Challenge Back

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. AP - John Steinbeck responded Monday to a plea by Soviet poet Gevgeny Yevtushenko that the American novelist speak out on the war in Viet Nam.

In an open letter to the Russian published in the Long Island newspaper Newsday, Nobel and Pulitzer prizewinner Steinbeck chided Yevtushenko.

"You know well how I detest all war," wrote Steinbeck, "but for this one I have a particular and personal hatred. I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it."

"But, my beloved friend, you asked me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join in denouncing the whole war."

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- "You read what an edge the National League has," said Detroit pitcher Denny McLain, "How their pitching is better, how their hitting is better. It's as if we're supposed to go out there and concede the game."

The National League did that, 2-1 in 10 innings.

Only in Tuesday's 37th All-Star Game it wasn't better pitching and it wasn't the powerful NL sluggers who took command. The job was accomplished with a pair of 10th inning singles by Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Maury Wills of Los Angeles, and extended National League domination of the midsummer classic through 10 games.

The American League has won only once during that period-there also was a tie-and the National now has reeled off four straight victories while pushing its over-all lead in the series to 19-17-1.

There's little doubt that the American League wanted this one. Manager Sam Mele even admitted that the Al Stars were getting embarrassed, and Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson would have handed back in awards and records for a victory.

Robinson, who played the full 10 innings and collected three hits, the Most Valuable Player award and two fielding records, said as much after the game.

"It's nice to get the MVP thing and nice to get the records, but it's nicer to win," Robinson said. "A hit in the right place the last couple of years and we win one. But they win. . . well. . . it takes a little glitter off everything."

It may have taken some of the glitter off, but there was no shoving the American League around. As a matter of fact, the American League came away with all the awards, better pitching performances and the same number of hits. But they couldn't find a way to win.

"Score a few more runs," said Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who used to be on the National League side. "That's the only answer."

The answer, however, came from the National League after a 10-inning struggle in oppressive 102-degree heat that turned new Busch Memorial Stadium into a furnace. It was so hot that about 100 of the 49,936 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

The heat was on the National League at first, despite the fact that the Dodgers' great left-hander, Sandy Koufax, was making his first All-Star start.

In the second inning, Brooks Robinson slammed a liner to left field. Hank Aaron of Atlanta, started back, apparently lost the ball in the sun, then raced in, but was unable to make a shoestring catch. When he retrieved the ball Robinson was standing at third with a triple.

Boston's George Scott fouled out but Koufax then uncorked a wild pitch over the head of Atlanta catcher Joe Torre and Robinson raced home for a 1-0 lead. McLain protected that with three perfect innings, taking only 28 pitches to retire nine batters.

Willie Mays of San Francisco then started things for the National Leaguers against Jim Kaat of Minnesota, rifling a single to left in the fourth inning for his 22nd All-Star hit and extending his own record.

A single by Robert Clemente and a grounder got Mays to third and he raced home on a dribbler down the third base line by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs that went for a single. The run also extended another one of Mays' records, giving him 19 in All-Star competition.

It stayed 1-1 through a profusion of pitchers - Mel Stottlemyre of New York and Sonny Siebert of Cleveland for the American and Jim Bunning of Philadelphia and Juan Marichal of San Francisco for the National- until the 10th when Gaylord Perry of the Giants ran into trouble.

Brooks Robinson led off with a pop fly single, and immediately proceeded to second on a wild pitch.

"I felt good," Perry said. "Robinson broke his bat on that hit."

Still there was a conference as Manager Walt Alston trotted out.

"He was getting a little tired," said Alston. "I went out to talk to him to give him a little breather."

Perry went back to work. Detroit's Norm Cash flied out, Willie McCovey of San Francisco reached into the stands for a pop by New York's Bobby Richardson and Perry threw a third strike by California's Jim Fregosi.

Then Washington's Pete Richert, a left-hander, came in to pitch for the American with McCarver, also a left-hander, due up. The book called for a pinch hitter.

"It was no hunch to let McCarver bat against the left-hander," Alston explained. "He hits left-handers pretty well."

"I was on my own whether to bunt or hit away." Wills said. "A safe bunt would have been a great play - men on first and third."

Wills squared away as if to bunt, then pulled back on the pitch.

"I started to bunt, but it was a bad ball," he explained. "Then I noticed Brooks Robinson move a couple of steps at third, so I decided to hit away."

The hit didn't go to Robinson. It went to the opposite field, but fell in for a single that Tony Oliva of Minnesota grabbed on one hop and fired home - too late to get the sliding McCarver.

"Two - to - one," said McCarver later, "that's a laugher for Los Angeles."

But not the American League.

Handless Batboy Finds Some Big League Pals

By DICK YOUNG
Globe-Democrat Special Writer

In a locker, in the corner of the American League clubhouse at Busch Memorial Stadium, stood a Louisville slugger bat. Burned into the barrel was the name, "Jay Mazzone."

A young boy in an American League uniform walked over to the locker, picked up the bat and flipped it fondly and you watched him and marveled, because Jay Mazzone has no hands.

Jay Mazzone was the batboy for the American League All-Stars Tuesday. On other days, he is the batboy for the visiting club at Baltimore. Some players will tell you he is the best darned batboy in the American League.

When Jay Mazzone was 2 1/2 he played with fire. That was 10 years ago. His face has the wrinkled scars of fire from ear to ear, where a man would grow a beard, and where his hands should be there are claws in the shape of a hooked-v, and each is operated by a long, thin cable which runs up the arm sheath.

There is hardly anything a batboy in the big leagues can do that Jay Mazzone cannot do, and there are some little things Jay Mazzone does extra because he has the attentiveness and the desire of the handicapped to succeed.

A little more than a week ago, Jay Mazzone was notified by Joe Cronin, the A. L. president, that he had been chosen batboy for the All-Star game. The Twins were in Baltimore at the time. The first thing the kid did was to go to Sam Mele, who was the manager of the American League team, and ask him if there were any little services he might do for him during the All-Star game. Since then, as the names of the players were announced in the newspapers, Jay Mazzone would study them, and remember what each man expects of him.

"They are all different," says Jay Mazzone.

Somebody asked for an example and the kid smiled.

"Well," he said, "there is Birdie Tebbetts. Every inning he has to have Sanka. He is a very nice man."

Somebody asked who else Jay Mazzone liked among the visitors to Baltimore.

He thought a moment. "Whitey Ford," he said finally. "He always talks to me, and Ed Stanky."

Jay Mazzone thought of more names, and they came faster and soon you got the idea. He likes everyone, and everyone likes him.

The fellows Jay Mazzone really likes are the ones across the field each day in Baltimore, the ones he roots for, the Orioles. That is the tough part of the job. He is on the other side, and he must root in silence. He cannot cheer, like the other kids in Baltimore, when Frank Robinson hits a homer, or Brooks.

A batboy gets $2 a day, which isn't much, plus tips, which are generous. Before Mele and the Twins played their last game in Baltimore last week, they had something extra for Jay Mazzone. They took up a collection, and Mele handed the kid $170 and said, here, get yourself a new suit and things for your trip to St. Louis.

When it came time to come to the All-Star game, Jay Mazzone had an offer of a lift. The Angels had wound up in Baltimore, and they were using the White Sox plane to fly back L. A. They were stopping off in St. Louis to drop their All-Stars, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop, and they would be glad to take the kid along, and his dad, who is an undercover man on the Maryland State Police.

As the plane neared St. Louis, they handed Jay Mazzone something. It was money. $410 dollars of it. They had taken another collection.

"Have a good time in St. Louis," said Bob Rodgers.

There are some very wonderful people in this world, and some of them are in baseball. And then there are the ones who can leave Mickey Mantle out of an All-Star game.

Scientists Believe Hail Control Near

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Scientists, concluding the largest study of its kind, say they believe they can help reduce hail and prevent millions of dollars in crop damage.

But they are uncertain whether preliminary findings would be applicable outside of the Northern Plains area.

Dr. Richard Schleusener, head of a team of scientists doing the study here in conjunction with the National Science Foundation, said the team is optimistic that cloud modification through cloud seeding could reduce hail and increase rain.

The group, including 70 weather scientists representing 23 organizations, conducted a 30-day survey using a maze of equipment to change the composition of clouds.

"What has been accomplished during this test in western South Dakota will point the way toward hail mitigation procedures in the foreseeable future," Dr. Schleusener said.

It will be several years before continuing field programs will be able to provide firm conclusions, he said, but that the scientists were optimistic about initial findings in the study dubbed "Project Hailswath."

During the 30 - day period, there were 10 in which cloud conditions enabled seeding with silver iodide by various methods and leaving other areas unseeded for comparison purposes. The boxscore for the project indicated less hail in the seeded areas than the corresponding non-seeded areas.

Dr. Schleusener said there was no way of knowing from the study, a pilot project, to what extent hail was reduced and rain increased.

Rainfall during the period was .43 of an inch in the seeded area, .29 of an inch in the non-seeded area, he said.

The scientist said weather is influenced by different factors in the various regions of the nation and that preliminary findings may not apply outside of the Northern Plains.

Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Lexington, Mass., one of the participants in the study, said the benefits of suppressing hail would be many times over the cost of cloud seeding. He said the nation has an annual loss of $300 million due to hail, including $150 million in direct and $150 million in indirect damage.

Easy Living Blamed For Flabby, Stooped Postwar Generation

LOS ANGELES AP -- The postwar babies have grown into a flabby generation of Americans, puffed by the easy life, and stooped by lengthy television vigils.

That's the opinion of athletic trainers George Sullivan of the University of Nebraska and William Newell of Purdue University, at the 43rd annual American Physical Therapy Association meeting here.

"They're too fat," Sullivan said Monday of Americans born in 1945 and 1947.

"Youngsters use power mowers to mow the lawn, ride bicycles almost as soon as they've learned to walk, and then, of course, graduate to cars and motor bikes," Newell said.

"They get round shoulders and curvature of the spine from sitting in front of television like this," Sullivan said, demonstrating a slumped position with most of the body weight on the back of the neck.

Du Quoin Fair To Feature Four Days of Racing

DU QUOIN, Ill --An estimated $264,540 in purses, including $125,000 for top place- winners in the Hambletonian, will again make the 1966 Du Quoin State Fair one of the richest of all non- wagering harness racing meetings in the world.

A major stop on the Grand Circuit for years, the Du Quoin Fair features four other days of quality harness racing in addition to Hambletonian Day, Wednesday, Aug. 31, when top three - year - old trotters seek the most coveted prize in the business.

Grand Circuit week opens Monday, Aug. 29, at Du Quoin when a full card of Illinois Breeder's Futurity races offers purses totaling $14,000.

Tuesday's lineup is highlighted by the $25,000 Castleton Farm Stake for two-year-old trotters. A Breeders' Filly Stake for two - year-old trotters offers a $7,000 purse and four overnight races add $6,000 more to the day's total purse.

Although the Hambletonian captures prime attention Wednesday, the McMahon Memorial State for two - year - old pacers has a $24,000 tag and is a hotly - contested event each year. Other races for two and three - year - old pacers Wednesday are worth $6,000 each.

Thursday, Sept. 1, will be another day of outstanding racing. Feature event is the Hambletonian Maturity for four - year-old trotters and 18, including Noble Victory and Armbro Flight, are still eligible for the $20,000 event. Breeders' FKI $20,000 event. Breeders' filly Stakes for three - year - old pacers and trotters carry purses of $14,000 and four overnights assure at least 10 heats with seven different fields.

As far as horses are concerned, Friday is Land of Lincoln Day as the afternoon is reserved for Illinois Colt Stakes. Daily post time is 1:30 p.m. CDT.

Bertrand Downs Dexter

BERTRAND -- Dexter fell short of the home town nine here last night in Connie Mack play, by going down to defeat 12-11 in eight innings.

Doug Simmons, who relieved Dwayne Byrnes in the sixth inning was credited with the win.

Walter Lane started for Dexter but was relieved in the fifth inning by Ron White who pitched an inning and was relieved by Ken Walker who was charged with the loss.

Fred Brenderman pushed across the RBI's in the second inning for Bertrand, with a homer.

Bertrand is to travel to Poplar Bluff Thursday.

Split Season On Mourning Doves

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri will have another split season on mourning doves this year under regulations announced Monday by the State Conservation Commission.

The season will run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 10 and again from Nov. 10 through Nov. 29. Limits are 12 a day and 24 in possession.

For rails and gallinules the season will be Sept. 1 through Nov. 9 with limits of 15 a day and 30 in possession.

For Wilson's snipe and woodcock the season runs from Oct. 11 through Nov. 29 with limits of five a day and 10 in possession for woodcock and eight a day and 17 in possession for snipe.

Special permits for the early teal season, Sept. 17 through Sept. 28, may be bought until Aug. 18.

YourDental Health

Let's Keep Our Teeth-We Can PRECEDE: Despite modern knowledge, dental disease is on the rise. In this country alone, it has been estimated that about 97 per cent of the population suffers from dental decay or diseases of the gums and other supporting tissues of the teeth. Yet dentists tell us that most tooth loss can be prevented, that most dental disease can be stopped before it starts. So that you may act to improve your health, Sikeston Standard in cooperation with the Southeast Missouri society today begins a series of articles on "Your Dental Health."

Members of ancient tribes often wore teeth around their necks as a mark of beauty. We moderns like to wear them in our mouths.

But it has only been in recent centuries that man has considered his teeth to be of real importance. Until the major killing diseases were brought under some measure of control, man had too many other things to worry about. Why be concerned about keeping his teeth when his life expectancy was only 35 or 40 years?

But now, the average man lives until age 70 -- and in his seventieth year he should still have his natural teeth.

If we follow the rules of good dental health, the American Dental Association says, our teeth can last a lifetime. Nature meant them to.

Strange, isn't it, that although our teeth are naturally strong and although we know more than ever about how to keep our teeth, most Americans suffer from dental disease.

A recent national survey showed dental patients under four years of age had an average of three teeth in need of fillings:

--those aged 15 to 19 had five on the average. And these figures don't include those persons who never see a dentist.

--one American in eight has no teeth at all.

Yet if we understand the cause of tooth loss and act on our knowledge, we need not be a nation of dental cripples.

What are our teeth like?

The crown is protected by a hard outer coat of enamel. The bulk of the tooth under the enamel consists of dentin. Inside the dentin is the pulp, a delicate tissue, which contains nerves and blood vessels.

The root of the tooth is covered with Cementum, which serves to bind the tooth to the jawbones and the gums by means of periodontal fibers projecting from it. The jawbone, periodontal fibers, and the gums are the tooth's supporting tissues.

The enamel protects the tooth against damage from the outside and provides the hard surface we need for biting and chewing. The dentin, which is also hard, and the pulp, provide the pathways for tooth nourishment. Food for the tooth is carried by the blood stream through the jawbone and into the tooth's blood vessels in the pulp.

So long as the teeth remain intact and the supporting tissues are kept strong, our teeth remain healthy.

Good dental habits assure good tooth health. In future articles, we will discuss what these dental habits are.

COFFEE CORNER

by Cherie

Boy, am I ever pooped! Thanks to my general coming apart at the seams, it was deemed best I get someone in to help me do my housework, and I believe all this extra aid has just about done me in.

I felt like you do sometimes when you wash your hair before going to the beauty parlour, I just didn't want anyone seeing certain spots before I'd had a chance to clean and straighten----particularly the "black hole of Calcutta", or in other words, the boy's room. I never saw so many broken toys in all my life!! You know all these new modern gadgets that are made of bright plastic and are so sanitary? Well, I wish they were a little more germy and a little less breakable. You know, the only toys my kids can play with that are still intact, are the things they have dragged down from Mama Mickey's attic that belonged to me ---some were even hers. Oh, for the days of rubber and steel and nice solid wooden blocks---it's a cinch they wouldn't cost anymore than these cheap plastic items you get the pleasure of being drastically overpriced for, and then get to take home in a box to put together (always with at least one or two screws or bolts missing). But, back to the cleaning---and that seems to be where I constantly am---I waded through the boy's room throwing out everything in sight and lo and behold I found that the furniture was still in there, so I cleaned the room and felt like my help could now make it on their own. Not so!!! I had to show, if not physically, then verbally, everything I wanted done until by the time they left I was exhausted. They had been at it for three nerve wracking hours longer than it takes me by myself, and for this I was paying, no wonder I was pooped! Is there any answer? I hope nobody recommends anything else like this to help me lighten my load or to aid my physical state, as I don't think I can stand it. Just the other day the doctor advised me to take the tape off my toe--- I did --- Charles bounced into bed and ---%#$!! I knew he would, I'd been hiding that toe from Charles ever since it got broken. I've ducked his feet, picked mine up off the floor when he's entered the room, gone to all sorts of ridiculous lengths to keep him from tripping and stepping on it, but I just somehow never expected him to sit on it! Well, I've learned---now I'm back in tape again and right back where I started from, and now everytime Charles gets ready to sit ---I'll stand!! So, as I said before, please no more advice from anyone as it's just not working out well at all. However, if you'll allow me, I'll give you some very good advice on a nice cool summer salad, one that is particularly nice with baked ham.

CHEESE PINEAPPLE SALAD

Heat 2 cups of crushed pineapple

Add juice of 1 lemon and 1 cup sugar and stir until dissolved.

Soak 2 TBS. of Knox plain gelatin for 10 minutes in 1/2 cup of cold water. Then add to hot mixture and mix well. When cool and beginning to set, add 1 cup of grated American cheese and 1/2 pint of beaten, whipping cream.

I make this in a ring mold and put the dressing for it in the center and it is very attractive.

DRESSING

Mix 2 TBS. each of finely chopped celery, onion, and green pepper to 1 cup of mayonnaise.

Sufficient Grounds

OCALA, Fla. AP - Mat Robinson, 94, won a divorce - with the argument that his wife took care of the dog but didn't take care of him.

Robinson said that about 10 years ago his wife, Charity, 66, set up separate housekeeping in his house at Ocala, Fla., although he paid the bills.

He said she cooked meals for the dog but not for him.

Circuit Court Judge D. R. Smith said Mrs. Robinson was guilty of "obstinate and continuous desertion" and gave her two weeks to leave the house. They had been married 16 years.

24-Hour Time System

CHICAGO AP - The United States will switch to a 24-hour time system in the next five years, says a watch company executive.

Irving A. Kathman, a vice president of the Gruen Watch Co., said America would follow Europe's lead in adopting the 24-hour clock because of the influence of this nation's space effort.

Thomas E. Richter

Appoint Richter

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- President Elmer Ellis announced today that Thomas (Tom) E. Richter will succeed Thomas C. Morelock as director of the University of Missouri Office of Public Information Sept. 1.

Richter joined the office Jan. 24 as associate director of public information and special events. He came here from St. Louis, where for the last seventeen years he has been assistant to the president and manager of the public relations department of the Automobile Club of Missouri, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association (AAA).

Morelock, who opened the offic in 1945, will retire Aug. 31 as director and as professor of journalism.

Richter was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, his native city, and at the University of Missouri where he received a Bachelor of Journalism degree and an ROTC commission in 1942. He entered the Army that year and served as a field artillery officer for two and a half years.

Upon returning to St. Louis after World War II, Richter organized and headed the public relations, merchandising, and advertising department of a radio station, and spent most of one year as a public relations counsel before joining the staff of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Richter is past president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis, the University Journalism Alumni Association, the St. Louis Journalism Alumni Association of the University, and the St. Louis chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

He is former secretary of the St. Louis chapter of the Public Relations Society of America and has been accredited by the national organization. He is also a member of the American College Public Relations Association, associate member of the Missouri Press Association, and vice - chairman of the Missouri Highway Users Conference. He is a former member of the American Automobile Association National Committee on Urban Transportation, the AAA National Highway Committee, and the Board of Directors of the Missouri Good Roads Association.

Columbia organizations in which he holds membership are the Kiwanis Club and the Columbia Country Club.

Richter married the former Rachel Palmer of Sturgeon, Mo., in 1942. They live at 2614 Luan Court in Columbia with their two children, Scot, 21 years old, and Linda, 19, both of whom are students in the University of Missouri.

The U.S. Government Printing Office is considered the world's largest printer.

Code Office Receives 33,669 Documents

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Uniform Commercial Code office received 33,669 documents in its first year of operation, Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick reported today.

It averaged 136 filings a day on mortgaged personal property and collected almost $60,000 in fees for the year, with operating expenses under $50,000.

Most of the filings are routine coverage of merchandise held by retailers. Several listed male and female chinchillas as the secured property. One listed $8,000 in U. S. half dollars.

DOUBLE POLL PARROT STAMPS EVERY WEDNESDAY

HERE'S A DISH FOR FAMILY MEAL . .Serve Tuna Salad-Duo hot or cold--either way it's the sure way to satisfy appetites. Tuna's an excellent source of protein and much more economical than most protein foods.

Tuna Salad-Duo Can Be Served Hot or Cold

One of the delightful poems in Alice in Wonderland begins, "I sent a message to the fish; I told them this is what I wish," and goes on to tell how the fish replied: "The little fishes' answer was, 'We cannot do it, sir, because.' "

Obviously, the frustrated petitioner had not addressed himself to a school of tuna, because a tuna never says no. Whatever kind of meal you want -- a casserole, a curry, a salad or a chowder, tuna supplies you with an excellent, economical and tasty main dish ingredient that needs only to be removed from the can. Tuna is rich in protein value comparable to that of lean beef- and just look at the price! Quite a saving when you serve tuna for family meals.

In the summer, a basic tuna salad mixture obliges you twice over because it leads a double life. If you like your warm-weather meals hot, place the mixture on thick tomato slices set on toasted buns and make tuna burgers. You can broil them in five minutes. If you prefer a cold lunch or dinner, use the tuna salad to stuff tomatoes, artfully cut to resemble tulips

Use the tuna with the vegetable oil it is packed in for the basic mixture. Tuna packed in oil emerges from the can in all its glory because the vegetable oil, by covering the surface of the fish, actually seals in the flavor. It also helps the fish to retain its attractive appearance and texture. Moreover, whatever you plan to do with the tuna, the oil will fall in with your plan. In this case, it slides easily into the mayonnaise.

Once you've made your choice between tuna burgers and tomato tulips, make the rest of your menu easy, too. Serve potato sticks with the burgers and French bread with the stuffed tomatoes, and bring on a nice tall glass of iced tea or coffee. Everybody will heave a sigh of relief on two counts: the meal is light, as it should be in summer, and you haven't worked up a fever producing it.

TUNA-SALAD-DUO
(Hot and Cold)

BASIC TUNA MIXTURE:

2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ozs. ea.) tuna in vegetable oil
1/2 c. finely diced celery
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. mayonnaise
1 tsp. lemon juice

Combine ingredients; blend thoroughly.

GRILLED TUNA BURGERS:

Split 3 hamburger buns; toast halves. Place a thick slice of tomato on each half, top with tuna mixture. Place under broiler heat 5 minutes, or until browned. Yield: 6 servings.

TUNA-TOMATO TULIPS:

Cut each of 6 tomatoes into 5 or 6 sections almost to stem end; spread apart slightly. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt, fill with tuna mixture. Serve in lettuce cup, garnished with ripe olive. Yield: 6 servings.

Drinking Difficulty

Weightlessness, such as prevails in a space capsule in orbit, renders it difficult for astronauts to pour or drink liquids from an open vessel, so they must be squeezed out of tubes. Otherwise, they would form globules and float around the space capsule.

Truce No Nearer In Airline Strike

By STEPHEN M. AUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists today accused the five airlines shut down by a strike of overestimating by at least $25 million the cost to them of a settlement proposed by the union.

Joseph W. Ramsey, IAM vice president and chief negotiator for the union, said there was no indication of any "give" in the management's stand at this time.

He added that the union was ready to make compromises on proposals but would not take one cent less than its previous request.

"We have stated our minimum and plan to make no departure from it," he said.

Ramsey's reference to a compromise offer had to do with the union's proposal that employes required to have licenses be given a premium of 10 cents an hour for each license.

The negotiations recessed Monday afternoon to permit the unions, at the request of Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, to provide statistical data as to the cost to the airlines of the union's minimum request for higher wages and various working benefits.

Ramsey, on returning to the negotiating rooms today, said that the union statistics indicated that the airline estimate of $114 million was at least $25 million too high.

Ramsey noted that the airlines had said they probably would be unable to reach an agreement this week because of the union stand. He said, "There is not much to be encouraged about at the moment."

Reynolds conferred separately with the union officials and with representatives of the five airlines closed down by the IAM strike -- Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans world and United.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

CONTINUED

The origin of the privilege against self - incrimination is often ascribed to the desire to prevent physical torture. But even in the later Eighteenth Century people were not particularly sensitive to torture. The objection to torture was not the agonies it inflicted but the unreliability of the evidence which it elicited. The development of the privilege in Anglo-Saxon law goes back to the struggles in Tudor times over the power of the ecclesiastical courts to try and punish for heresies and other errors; in exercising these powers they employed the "oath ex-officio," requiring (like a modern "PSQ") that the suspect swear to his innocence, and then answer fully and truthfully all subsequent questions put to him. The result was not to elicit the truth, since the investigation was into the intangibles of belief, but to make it easy to entrap the subject into inconsistencies, apparent perjuries, and confessions of guilty as meaningless (although just as fatal to the defendant) as those with which the Russian treason trials of recent times have made us familiar.

When men are, in effect, tried for seditious belief (however the charge may be worded, or whatever the extra - judicial character of the tribunal or the punishments imposed), conviction can be obtained only by forcing them to incriminate or entrap themselves. A striking demonstration of the meaning of the ancient oath ex-officio (and of the reason for the privilege against self - incrimination which resulted from it) was provided by the Lattimore case in 1952, perhaps the one most extraordinary episode in the war upon subversion.

Missouri Press Report

by Senator

Edward V. Long

President Johnson has signed the Freedom of Information bill which I introduced and pushed through the Senate last year.

His signature marks the climax of many years of struggle in behalf of the people's right to know. Senator Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., began the effort to open government records and when I succeeded him upon his death I took up the fight. Finally, On July 31, 1964, was able to get my bill passed by the Senate after public hearings before the Subcommittee on Administrative Practice, of which I am chairman. The House failed to take action on the bill in the 88th Congress, so we began the fight again in the 89th Congress. Again the bill I authored was passed by the Senate, October 13, 1965.

Each year, Freedom of Information picked up more and more support. The public was becoming more and more aware of the importance of the right to know what their government is doing.

This year, with tremendous support from the press in Missouri and all over the country, the House passed the bill with important leadership from Congressman John E. Moss.

I know I speak for all Missourians in congratulating President Johnson for signing this bill and for ringing in a new era of hope for freedom of the press and the public's right to know.

Over 30,000 Missouri young men and women have taken part in Neighborhood Youth Corps projects during the past two years, according to the latest figures.

During the twelve months just ended, 11,155 Missourians took part in 76 Neighborhood Youth Corps projects. Last year there were only 53 projects in Missouri.

The U.S. Department of Labor has just reported that the Federal investment in these Missouri projects for the two years totals $16,620,929. Missouri communities contributed an additional $4,200,000.

The Youth Corps provides:

--Part-time work for youth 16 to 22 in order to help them stay in school.

--Full-time work training for youth who have left school but who are untrained to hold a job. Corps members in Missouri train in such jobs as nurses aides, dietitian's assistants, clerks and typists, auto mechanics, draftsmen, and landscape assistants.

Missouri has just won approval for three of the nation's first mental health centers to be established under the new Community Mental Health Centers Act we passed in the Congress last year.

The centers, located in Kansas City, Columbia, and St. Louis, will serve population areas including 575,000 Missourians.

To help the centers expand their in-patient and out-patient staffs, the U.S. Public Health Service is providing $1,570,856 for the centers during the next twelve months.

K.C. Firemen End Strike

KANSAS CITY AP -- The long standing dispute between Kansas City firemen and the city cooled to its usual simmering point Tuesday as Missouri National Guard troops were withdrawn and firefighters resumed normal shifts.

The firemen's four-day work stoppage ended when they voted 391 to 90 with 18 abstentions to accept a six-point city proposal as a basis for negotiations.

The National Guard, which was posted at the 44 firehouses after scattered incidents of vandalism, was released after a City Council resolution declared the emergency passed.

Stanton Gladden, president of Fire Fighters Local 42, said many members were incensed at Mayor Ilus W. Davis's "lack of faith in the union." Davis had refused to call off the National Guard and police on duty until the voting was completed.

Supreme Court Leaves Charter Amendments On Election Ballot

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court refused Tuesday to rehear the April 11 decision having the effect of putting two charter amendments on the St. Louis County ballot in the Nov. 8 general election.

The dispute started in September, 1964, when the county council voted, 4-3, to put the amendments before the people.

One would make the office of county engineer appointive instead of elective. The other would extend the county merit system to certain employes.

The county election board declined to put them on the November, 1964, ballot on the grounds they were emergency matters and should have been approved by at least five of the seven council members.

But the Supreme Court said it is a judicial function to decide whether a legislative act is an emergency. It held the two charter proposals were not in any sense emergencies and ordered the election board to put them on the ballot next November.

Voice of Innocence

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. AP - "Which of us has not done something of which we were ashamed?" asked the Rev. George S. Nable, preaching at the annual novena of the Sisters of Mount Carmel Sunday night.

Father Nable said he would redirect his question to persons 12 years old and above.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MO.
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Frisco Street from Ruth Street to Dorothy Street extended in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special t a x bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction o f said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.50 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of July, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk in the City Administrative Building, 316 South Kingshighway, Sikeston, Missouri, until 5:00 P.M., July 19, 1966, for the furnishing of all materials, equipment, labor, costs, and construction of the following items; in accordance with plans and specifications on file in the office of the City Administrative Building, Viz:

Item 1: One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on the west side only of Dona street from Malone Avenue to Mathews Street.

Item 2: One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Linn Street from Moore Avenue to Main Street.

Item 3: One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Presnell Drive from Missouri Avenue west to St. John's Ditch.

Copies of the plans and specifications are available to bidders, and may be obtained from the City Clerk upon payment of two dollars ($2.00) for each set of plans. Successful bidder shall post a performance bond for the full amount of each contract.

All proposals must stipulate that contractors will accept in payment thereof, special tax bills issued against the property abutting the improvement. Sealed bids shall be submitted separately on each or any of the items as listed above and separate contracts shall be awarded on each item.

The City Reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

John W. Vaughn

Morehouse News

Mrs. Nelson Gruen accompanied three boys to the Blue Mountain Methodist Camp in New Fredericktown. They will spend this week at camp. The three boys that went were John Shaptaw, Dougie Hammock, and Eugene Gruen.

The Darlene Sears Intermediate G.A.'s met on Wednesday at the First Baptist Church in Morehouse. President Sharon Breeden called the meeting to order. Linda Neal read the prayer calendar and Peggy Orr lead in prayer. Mrs. Bohannon gave the devotional period. They made July plans which include a slumber party for July 15 and they will be going to camp next week. Peggy Orr served refreshments of brownies and soft drinks. Those attending were Peggy Orr, Sharon Breeden, Debbie Payne, Linda Neal, Carlene Winkle, and Mrs. Bohannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Crain and six children of Cocoa Beach, Fla., spent Tuesday evening at a barbecue at the home of his sister and family and Mr. and Mrs. Slim Parks and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Marrel Newton left Thursday morning to visit her sister, Mrs. Glaydys Huey of Hayti, where they were overnight guests and they spent the weekend with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Fulkerson and children, Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Appleton, Mrs. Hullie Baty, Mrs. Eula Fay Stroud and daughter, Linda were weekend guests of Mrs. Martha Stroud, Arcola, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hally from Birmingham, Ala., visited the later's cousins, Miss Pearl Gregory, Clyde Gregory, and Mrs. Charlie Sturgeon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Guess of Kevil, Ky., visited Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gregory Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Goodwin and children left Wednesday for St. Louis to visit their daughters, Mrs. Shirley Ledbetter and family and Mrs. Wanda Dillard and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Agee and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jim young, Herbert Brown, all of Morehouse and Miss Jean Groff of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wyrick and family of Poplar Bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Adkins had as fourth of July dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Jackson, Larry and Linda, Cypress, Calif; Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Adkins and children Linda and Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bryant and baby, Mrs. Loretta McGuirt and baby, Marilyn McGuirt and Rayborn Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Jackson and two children returned home Thursday to Cypress, Calif. after spending a two-week vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milem Adkins of Morehouse and his mother, Mrs. Mattie Jackson of Sikeston.

Harold Case celebrated his birthday Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Harold Case. Five of the six children came home to help their father celebrate his birthday. Those attending were Lt. and Mrs. P. M. (Fredda) Wethington and son, Midway Island; Mrs. (Betty) Payne and children, Masiwa, Japan; Sgt. and Mrs Darrel (Bonnie) Wilson and two children, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin (Helen) Taylor and sons, Rockford, Ill; Mr. and Mrs. Merlin (Esther) Dewitt, Sikeston. Mrs. (Delores) King, Encitas, Calif. was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle (Slim) Sparks entertained Sunday with a barbecue. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Belling, Florisant; Mrs. Ray Boley and daughter Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Boley, Morley; Jack Luil, Dover, Ark.; Mrs. Dorothy Boley, Sikeston; Sam Sparks, and Norva, Dennis, and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle (Slim) Sparks had all their children home on the fourth of July for the first time in five years for a family reunion. Those attending were Tommy Sparks in the United States Navy stationed in Norfolk, Va., Mrs. (Mary) Metzger, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Russell (Laura Lee) Bolin and two children, Millington, Tenn., and Norva, Dennis, and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Rhyon and three children left Thursday for their home in Phoenix, Ariz. after spending a three weeks' vacation with h i s parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rhyons.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brown and daughters of St. Louis spend the fourth of July with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Seagraves.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? (Mark 8:36)

PRAYER: Eternal God and Father of all mankind, we praise Thy holy name for being near us. Help us to be conscious of Thy never-failing love for us, and to live in obedience to Thy In Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a large organization and all telephone calls go through the switchboard, with the exception of the executives' private lines, which, of course, I cannot use.

My husband called me this morning and I knew at once he was bombed and calling from a bar. It is Jack's habit to telephone and pick a fight when he knows he's in the doghouse -- which he certainly was, because he didn't come home last night.

I lost my temper and used some rather salty language. Jack said some things he shouldn't have said and it was not a conversation you'd want an outsider to hear.

As I was leaving the office for lunch, I encountered one of the telephone operators. She gave me a wise-apple smirk and asked, "And how are things at YOUR house?" I felt like strangling her.

Should I write an anonymous letter to the personnel manager about this snoop? If she listens in on my conversations she undoubtedly listens in on others. Your advice is wanted. -- INVADED PRIVACY.

Dear I.P.: Most telephone operators have very little interest and even less time to tune in on family fights. The woman's greeting was probably an unfortunate coincidence. In the future make it a rule never to discuss private business on the phone and then you don't need to worry about eavesdroppers.

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please, please -- let me know how a man can tell a woman that he is in love with her, ask her to marry him, let her clue in family and friends, make all sorts of plans, and then change his mind? If he was only infatuated why would he propose marriage?

This happened to me and I am so humiliated I can't hold up my head. My friends tell me that my former fiance loves me but he is afraid of the responsibility of marriage. They say I should be patient and wait, and that he will come back.

What I need to know is how long should I wait? It has been eight months and I have not heard one word from him. Am I being a silly romantic to believe that true love can overcome any obstacle?-- LEIGH

Dear Leigh: You are right. TRUE love can overcome any obstacle, but from your account of the way the young man has treated you, I would doubt that this is true love.

I suspect your friends are trying to be kind, but I don't think it's an act of kindness to give you false hope. If you have not heard one word from your ex-love in eight months I suggest you write him off and make new friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Please give us an answer to a question that is bothering us. Our daughter is 17. At first we thought she was just putting on weight. Now we know she is pregnant.

Last week she told us she and her boy friend want to get married because he may be called into the service soon. He is 21. What kind of a wedding should a pregnant girl have? -- NO NAME PLEASE.

Dear No Name: A QUICK one-- with as little hoopla as possible.

Confidential to NEED A WISER HEAD THAN MINE: There's nothing wrong with your head, my dear. Your letter was an extremely good one. Those "friends" are giving you a bum steer. I've never heard of such "biblical advice." It may be a little late for you to "go forth and multiply" but a marriage that offers companionship in the evening of your lives makes a great deal of sense. Good luck, and God bless you.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the bobby traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Children Experience, Learn in Summer

by CAROL MILLER

During the summer vacation children have a tendency to forget part of what they learned in school. Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the Sikeston Public Schools, was contacted to find out how parents can best make the summer into a learning experience for their children.

Twitty believes that the amount of summer regression is reasonably slight and that the experiences children have in the summer may compensate for any knowledge they might forget.

Daytime television in the summer is especially geared to the younger set. Kiddie programs tell stories and explain questions on the child's level; quiz shows which emphasize vocabulary and others which have question-answer sessions increase the child's knowledge of the world.

In "Preparing Your Child for School" by Hazel F. Gabbard, family vacations were named one of the best means to add to a child's compilation of experiences. When he returns from his trip, his play is usually stimulated as he recreates the places he has been, and his vocabulary is enlarged.

A child will also learn from his friends and their experiences while playing, from the movies he sees, and from almost everything he does, but his parents are his real teachers. In his earliest days, he learned to brush his teeth and change his clothing by imitation of his parents. As he grows, his parents and the enviroment they create contribute much toward giving him a headstart or a delay on the road to learning.

As Twitty said, "Children are not necessarily created equal. Those born to well-read, intelligent parents naturally have an advantage in the speech and environment they have been exposed to. This can make a difference in their early years of schooling."

Reading, more than anything else, opens the entire world to a child's mind, but there is one problem. A child can not read during the summer months if he has not learned to read in school.

However, the parent can encourage reading by making books available in the home or by taking the child on frequent trips to the library. By developing an appreciation of literature in the child, the parent can increase the child's knowledge, enlarge his vocabulary, and add to his understanding of life.

One way to make the child practice written communication is to encourage letterwriting. This can be a pleasurable undertaking. He can believe that grandma would enjoy receiving a letter from him, which she probably would. In this way the child can get the satisfaction of doing something worthwhile for someone, and the parent will have a chance to refresh the child's grammar and punctuation by correcting his mistakes and explaining them.

"Although summer experiences are valuable they can not take the place of regular school work," Twitty stated. He also said that schools are to teach children five fundamentals; these are communication, reading, facility in using numbers accurately, living with people, and a desire to work.

Parents play a major part in the child's learning in the wintertime too. If the parents are aware of the schools--read about them, visit them, and show concern over them -- they naturally transmit this attitude of educational importance to their children.

Parents can encourage good school work by showing an interest in what the child is doing, commending him for good work, and then working with the school to remedy poor performance.

One important thing pointed out in "Your Child as a First Grader," prepared by the staff of the Sikeston Public Schools, is to avoid comparing children. If a group of youngsters were lined up for a race, no one would expect any two of them to reach the finish line at exactly the same time. It is the same way with school work.

In general Sikeston can be proud of its part in living up to the standards of education. Twitty said, "Our community is way above average in giving support to the city's schools, and this fact is reflected in the schools we have and the high composite score of our classes on standardized tests."

Washington Report
Sen. Stuart Symington

IN THE SPECIAL ARMED SERVICES SUBCOMMITTEE which I chaired, hearings have been completed on proposed legislation to expand health benefits for the military. Following the review of the views of the witnesses and organizational representatives, we will make recommendations to the full Committee.

During the course of these hearings, I reiterated my continuing concern over the general fiscal and monetary problems we are now facing, including the danger of the growing imbalance of international accounts.

While the estimate of expenditures for fiscal year 1967, which began this month, is $112.8 billion, it is fairly well known that the expenditures will go well above this amount.

For example, in order to maintain the present Vietnam level of effort, an additional appropriation of between $5 billion and $12 billion is expected. All legislation, therefore, must be subject to the total fiscal problems we face.

MINING SAFETY

Metal and non-metallic mining operations will be subject to minimum Federal health and safety standards under a bill recently passed by the Senate.

The measure was passed by the House of Representatives and approved with minor amendments by the Senate.

The object is to reduce the high accident rate and health hazards in mining and milling operations carried on in the metal and non-metallic mineral industires.

A recent Bureau of Mines study showed more than 12,000 remedial hazards in U. S. mining and milling operations.

The measure provides for a system of Federal inspection under the Department of Interior and the development and enforcement of mandatory standards dealing with conditions or practices dangerous to life or health.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

When the present law covering the Selective Service System comes up for renewal or revision next June, we hope to develop a feasible plan to increase the degree of fairness in the present system.

The House Armed Services Committee recently has heard the testimony of General Lewis B. Hershey as well as spokesmen for the Department of Defense and many Congressmen on the operation of the draft. The Senate Armed Services Committee also will consider this legislation, but probably not until next spring.

Meanwhile President Johnson also has named a civilian committee to study the draft and make recommendations for improvements.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

If passport applications are any indication, the number of Missourians traveling abroad has increased dramatically. More than 17,030 applied for passports in 1965, an increase of 57 percent over 1964.

The number of U. S. residents traveling overseas in 1965 was up 18 percent to 2,620,000. They spent more than $3 billion in foreign countries and on foreign carriers.

Foreign visitors, on the other hand, spent only $1.4 billion in the states and on U. S. carriers, leaving a tourists' deficit in our balance of payments of about $1.74 billion in 1965. This compared with $1.6 billion in 1964.

Infantry Men Needed

The 83rd. Infantry Division - the famed THUNDERBOLT DIVISION of World War II, is conducting the greatest manhunt in history. They are seeking some 25,000 of their former members. That is the number of men on their original roster, who have not been contacted, since the end of the war. These men are scattered all over the nation.

At the close of the war, an 83rd. Infantry Division Assn. was formed and an annual reunion has been held every year. This year the 20th annual conclave will be staged at Pittsburg Pa., in August.

Injunction Cities P. Bluff Grocers

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. AP -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations have been named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act filed in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

The complaint, filed by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, is against Barnes Grocer Company, Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributors, Inc.

The complaint alleges that the stores operated a monopoly and failed to pay the required minimum wage and time and a half for overtime.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Are We Fair in Our News Reports?

We think we are. In our news columns, we do our best to bring you facts only . . . without expression of personal opinion of reporters or editors.

We Always Do Our Best

. . . to give you both sides in our news reports, if there are two sides. Or three sides, if there are three. Everyone deserves fair representation in a news report.

Who You Are Doesn't Matter

. . . if the publisher of this newspaper were caught speeding on Main street . . . or anywhere else . . . you'd find it reported in this newspaper . . . more than likely on the front page! And so with the banker, the baker, the candlestick maker . . . and the advertiser, too. Business accorded this paper does not buy protection against news reports.

This Is Only Right . . .

To be fair, a newspaper must report what happened . . . to whom . . . where . . . how . . . and why—without regard to who it is . . . or his position . . . or how much money he has . . . or how good a friend he is of the editor. This is this newspaper's news policy—a policy we believe fair and equitable to all.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 13, the 194th day of 1966. There are 171 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, Congress passed the first act providing for the government of territory outside the original 13 colonies. The Northwest Territory was organized under this act; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin were all cut from it later.

On this date:

In 1821, the Confederate cavalry officer, Nathan Bedford Forrest, was born.

In 1919, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, the British 34, completed its round trip.

In 1943, British forces occupied the Sicilian port of Augusta.

One year ago-A severe typhoon hit the Pacific island of Mindanao. At least 17 persons were drowned.

Yes, Sikeston is FRIENDLY! We can be proud of our residents -- their hospitality extended to all. At our places of business: our personnel are friendly folks. Yet, do we "slip a bit" at times? Can we all be FRIENDLIER? Isn't it an idea to, each day, think of this: "LET'S MAKE SIKESTON THE FRIENDLIEST CITY IN MISSOURI. Bear in mind: the person whom you don't know may be just passing through -- may be "looking our town over" with the idea of "locating here" -- regardless, you will give that person "his or her impression" of our city.

Clip out, fill in and please send or bring the above coupon to "Friendliest, Most Courteous" Employe Award at The Bank of Sikeston, 1st National Bank, Security Federal Savings & Loan Assn., The Daily Sikeston Standard, or mail to the Daily Sikeston Standard, 205 S. Matthews News

The Conrads arrived home late Wednesday afternoon from a four-week vacation to find a "dead" telephone. When I asked the 'girls' at the beauty shop on Friday to bring me up-to-date on happenings one replied, "It has been hot, no rain for three weeks, farmers are busy irrigating, the town water supply is low, and the telephones are all out of order-- so we can't even discuss our problems over the phone with any satisfaction."

Our community did get some relief from the drought late Fridat afternoon with rainfall varying from a half-inch to one and one-half inches in various locations. Strong winds blew down several trees and branches from many. The telephone company has men working on that problem and we are hoping for an early solution.

After attending commencement at the University of Minnesota where our daughter, Bonnie, and son-in-law, "Kip" were among the 4334 graduates, we left with them to visit his parents the Hilding C. Nelson's at Mount Vernon, Wash. and relatives at Portland, Ore., Pullman, Tacoma, Seattle, and Spokane, Wash. Highpoints of interest on the trip were a boat trip to Victoria where we visited the Parliament Buildings, Vancouver, B. C., and the islands in Puget Sound. Enroute we visited at Yellowstone, Glacier, and Teddy Roosevelt Memorial Parks.

Four weeks of the summer school program have been completed at Matthews R-V School. Teachers working with the remedial reading groups are Mrs. Pauline Decker, Mrs. Lilian Kemp, Miss Alice Deane, Mrs. Bernice Stafford, Mrs. Addie Hatcher, Mrs. Kathryn Moore, Mrs. Virgie Beane, Mrs. Emma Cooper, and Mrs. Shirley Whiffen. The Headstart classes are being taught by Mrs. Mattye Speed, Miss Georgia Deane, Mrs. Lois Hooks, Mrs. Margaret Ward, and Mrs. Virginia Keaton.

Carla Shelby and Debbie and Roberta Rudisill spent last week at Pinecrest, the Nazarene Church Camp, near Fredericktown. They were accompanied by Mrs. Carl Shelby.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roberts of Flint, Mich. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fairies and Lila and Reggie Vandiver.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Alsup and daughters of Amory, Miss. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Parsons, Mrs. Florence Wilson, and Mrs. Frank Parsons.

Mrs. Pearl Green and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore spent the 4th of July weekend with Mrs. Green's daughter, Mrs. Louise Hudson, and family at Columbus, Miss.

Miss Donna Reid and brother, Bill, of Jonesboro, Ark. spent last weekend with their father, Ellis V. Reid. Bill is attending summer term at Arkansas State College.

Mrs. Alfred Byrd, who has completed one five-week term at Arkansas State College, Jonesboro, spent the weekend at her home here. She will return Tuesday to begin the second term for which she had preenrolled.

Mrs. Lester King and daughter, Brenda, visited last week with her mother, Mrs. Beryl Franklin, and family at Atchison, Kans. Mr. King and son, Joe Lynn, went to accompany then home this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Yates and daughter, Natasha, of Boston, Mass. are expected to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Yates from July 20 to 26th. They will visit his aunt, Mrs. L. D. Youngblood, at Dundee, Miss. enroute to Waynesboro, Miss. where they will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham.

The Matthews 4-H Club was represented at the New Madrid County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello by Carla Shelby, Roberta Rudisill, Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch) and Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch), Karen Faulkner, Dennis and Brian Clark, and Brian Tippett.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Vann and children of Searcy, Arkansas visited during the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Vann.

Miss Sandra Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Porter and bride-elect of Arthur McCoy, was complimented with a miscellaneous household shower on Friday evening, June 24, at the Baptist Church. Hostesses for the occasion were members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Tim Tippett and Bill Rogers, who are attending summer term at Missouri University, Columbia, spent the July 4th weekend at their homes here.

Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Kasten and sons, Mark and Mike, of Cape Girardeau, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Critchlow and family of Sikeston, C. A. Crithclow, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kelso and sons, Duane and Jock, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Depro and son, Bruce.

Bertrand News

By FLORENCE FENIMORE

I'm still propped up in bed writing news. Mrs. Stricker came in gave me tablet. Now I need envelopes. I have stamps. Last Tues Doctors Ferguson, Popp, Smith and a lot of trained nurses cut a slice of my left thy and grafted it on my sore left leg in 2 stay 9 more weeks.

Perhaps get 2 go home 2 good old Bertrand in the . Had 85,000 dollars fire were had big fire at the home I used 2 own all Bertrand Gin Elavator Hotel. I gave church O God that lot. John Wicker was smoking burnt the old hotel up. Whitsells use 2 own that they lost a little boy. He fell in kettle lye soap and burned up. Mabel Whitsell lives in Witchata, Kans. I wrote see if she got drowned. She was linen salesman in our general merchandise. Reason we had to close people bought up $150,000 could pay and wouldent.

We took Bankrupt law. Just cost $100.

I've lost my teeth. I was bragging -- I am 84 years young. Only false thing about. I'll bet they are in laundry. That's where they found my Past Pres pin in WSCS. I'm past matron two times. I havent lost those pins yet. I have sat in Chapter 6,000 masons. Past Matrons in arena St. Louis where Mary Jane Truman is installed.

Cousin Cordia Farmer & Max Mitchael he Ada Cooper Michaels son so is Deputy Sheriff Michael. He married Chris Tene Presson. They had 13 child -- all good looking. Mr. Presson died several yrs. ago at the home in Bertrand. So did Claire Rowe Mrs. Barnhill. I call her pretty baby.

Mrs. Johnson died there. Mr. Walker Maxwell, they used 2 live in Teague house back of me. See Billy Teague got 6,000 troops per month. We have 150,000 troops there now. We are 2 increase 2 100,000,000 2 get butchered. They teach them how 2 care for themselves.

Hanoi want talk peace. South Viet Nam is antecomist we are 2 stay till communism means trator 2 your country. We bombed Havana Cuba last week think some our boys got. We are 2 have in 2,000 we want be here.

Lynda Bird Johnson that was her parents birthday gift 2 Spain 2 study Spanish and tour Europe. I have some Spanish ear screws.

Friend Dutch Shankle sent them 2 me. Mesdames Humie & Mary Lee Simpson called 2 see me last Fri. My George says take care of these legs. I said I would they be last I'd get. I'm a sugar diabetic from getting an old hen right leg left. I dropped pair scissors.

Officials are protesting talking Mo. Pacific Depot off. I am 2. We used 2 ship grain 2 Argentina I that Johnson ordered all rail roads go back 2 work. Quit striking.

We lived in a double log house north of Bertrand. Me sister Fannie Bush slept downstairs. Brother Reuben and John Divinny lived upstairs. A young yearling calf got in Kettle lye soap. The yearling ran upstairs. Reuben & John Divinny they came rolling down stair. Calf fell dead at their. Made may kettle soap. We had a kennel in back yard. When it rained it made lye soap.

I drove a red mule 2 make sorgrum molass as now you cant find lasses. We had bee hives no honey out here. We used 2 send 2 New Orleans. Neighbor John Leet, Jim Fox & my Pop 2 New Orleans. Now you dont get any sweets out here. George Fenimore are sent 2 Cuba for cigars. I saw Sarah Churchill. Used 2 make me pretty hats so did Ivy Martin. Now shes dead she moved 2 El Paso, Texas. Florence is still living. I think they are exporters 2 foreign countries still haven't found my teeth & that all for this time. Glad my news got in. Hope this 2.

Mrs. Bess Presents Program

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church met Thursday in the Fellowship Hall.

Sept. 1 has been designated as the next general meeting of the society.

The meditation and program was presented by Mrs. William Bess. Her subject was "Where the Women Are." This program was designed to bring each woman into a new understanding of herself in relation to the church and its mission in the world.

Mrs. Bess used a large sketch of a compass and placed a cross in the center instead of the needle point. Around the eight points of this compass were two circles. One represented the part of the earth that we can see; the other, the world we cannot see. Each point was represented by the following words, Church, Chart, Change, Community, Christian, Citizen, Commission and Challenge.

Mrs. Bess explained how the image of woman has been changing. She named the few women who head church activities today and urged a greater interest in church activities.

The Bible was named as the main chart, and a very true chart and a sure map of God's travels to meet man. Mrs. Bess said "As church women, we must keep abreast of change whether we like it or not." She continued, "As laity, we need to develop a sense of community service, and as a Christian we are called under God to help achieve a greater oneness in our churches and community."

The group was reminded that all women are needed no matter where their homes are.

Mrs. Bess stressed the organization of a committee on Christian vocations. This committee should awaken and challenge Methodist congregations, youth, students and young adults to the needs of missionary service.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. F. Weidemann.

Mrs. Vincent Wissman, spiritual life secretary, conducted a memorial service for Mrs. A. R. Puckett.

Brief reports were given of the Poplar Bluff - Sikeston District Officers' Training Day held at Dexter June 23.

State Tax Take Shows $25.6 Million Rise

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Collections of state corporation and individual income taxes, corporate franchise taxes and intangible taxes increased $25.6 million last year, Revenue Director Thomas A. David reported today.

"Missouri's healthy economic conditions and increased activities in enforcement and compliance helped bring about this situation," he said.

Corporation and income tax collections for the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $104,889,219 -- an increase of $19,731,733 over the previous year.

Inheritance taxes rose $3,363,381 to $10,643,159.

Intangible tax collections rose to $13,213,903 or $1,744,050 more than a year ago.

"Part of the increase in corporation and individual income tax collections may also be attributed to the decrease in federal income taxes which were effective for 1965," David said.

U.S. Taste for Seafood Leaving Fishermen Behind

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) The people of the United States are eating more seafood than ever before.

Yet, the nation's commercial fishermen are failing to capitalize on the demand, even though they received more for their catch last year than ever before, government officials say.

They pointed to statistics showing:

1. Per capita consumption of fishery products in 1965 reached 11 pounds, the highest annual figure since 1954 and nearly half a pound higher than the 1964 average. The population also increased.

2. For the first time in history, U.S. imports of edible fishery products in 1965 exceeded 50 per cent of the supply and this country became the world's largest importer of such products.

3. The catch by U.S. fishermen, including industrial fish, was 4.7 billion pounds last year, only 4 per cent higher than the 1964 take, but the income of these fishermen was a record $451 million, compared with $390 million in 1964.

4. The total supply of edible fishery products was 5.1 billion pounds last year, a record, and up from the previous high of 4.9 billion pounds in 1964.

5. It developed that fishery resources off the shores of the United States could supply this nation with five times its present catch and provide the raw material needed to make it a major exporter of fishery products.

The Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, in the Interior Department, points out that the world's seafood harvest soared from 102.3 billion pounds in 1963 to 113.8 billion pounds in 1964 and that the expansion continued into 1965.

"The United States, however, did not share in this expansion of production and remained fifth among the fishing nations of the world," the bureau said.

Donald L. McKernan, director of the bureau, said in an interview there is cause for optimism, however, that domestic fisheries will be restored to their traditional place as one of the leading fishing nations of the world.

He said the government, aware of the tremendous potential fishery resources and the increase of foreign fishing activity off the U. S. coasts, has expanded programs of research, development, and services in its effort to insure that the nation participates fully in the harvest.

McKernan rejected suggestions that there are shortages of various types of seafood because of over-fishing of the oceans, or because of foreign fishing off the American coasts. He said a major reason for price increases of some fishery products has been public demand for higher quality, and preparation as convenience foods.

He said the normal law of supply and demand also has been reflected in prices for such things as canned tuna and oysters, with reduced production followed by higher prices.

Concept of Democracy Slow To Take Root in Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE -- The Associated Press has just completed an informal survey in which average newspaper readers across the country were asked what interested or troubled them most about the United States and the world. A series of typical readers' questions were selected from the survey. This article on the prospects for democracy in Viet Nam is one of several that seek to supply the answers.

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

Four thousand years ago, the bride of a fairy-tale prince laid 100 eggs—and hatched the nation that is today's Viet Nam.

Even now, many Vietnamese believe the story.

American advisers are working hard to inoculate them with the concept of Western democracy. It's just as strange to the average Vietnamese as the legend of the 100 eggs is to the American mind.

This is a situation you must keep in mind in surveying the prospect for democracy in Viet Nam.

The conditions and traditions which make for political democracy, evolved through centuries in Europe and the United States, are sparse indeed in Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, the hope for a democratic system in this embattled Southeast Asian nation is a pillar of U.S. policy here. Only a solidly implanted democracy can save the country from communism, American officials say.

They face this problem: Viet Nam, 1966, is really not too far from the story of Prince Lac Long Quan who married the egg-laying fairy princess named Au Co.

Despite cars, plastic dishes and the freightening methods of modern warfare, Viet Nam is largely a nation of superstition and suspicion of the outside world, a nation where Buddhism -the predominant religion- promises a bridge to the world of spirits.

What major obstacles stand in the way of the spirit of democracy?

1. Democracy is a meaningless term to most Vietnamese. The exception is the handful of those who have had the benefit of a French education and, more recently, scholarship to the United States.

2. Regional loyalties are deeply embedded, and there's a lack of national cohesion despite the fiery trials of war.

3. Almost throughout its rich history, Viet Nam has been ruled by autocratic monarchs, fierce invaders and, finally by French colonizers before the 1954 independence, giving the citizens no practice in self-government.

4. Equality before the law a key concept of democracy, applied only to some. Elections held in this century were invariably rigged. In modern Viet Nam, few citizens have much faith in government officials.

Against such negative elements, Americans hopeful of setting Viet Nam's course towards democracy cite these factors:

1. The inner desire of most people to express themselves freely and in freedom.

2. The bold trends sweeping the world's underdeveloped nations.

3. The fact that, on occasion, a desire for democratic processes has been visible in Viet Nam, and that the American example may prove infectious.

Perhaps in conditions of peace and stability, the spirit of democracy eventually could grow in Viet Nam.

The continuing war, lack of faith in the regimes in power, the presence of "foreigners with their long noses and strange habits," seem to discourage such a trend.

Some of the most valuable elements in modern Viet Nam have been eliminated. About 4,000 government officials-district, village and hamlet chiefs have been killed by the Communist Viet Cong.

There are still men who are willing to sacrifice a lot so their nation can prosper. They are becoming fewer as the war goes on.

Americans expect to accomplish something in the general elections, promised for Sept. 11. To many U. S. officials, it is then that the cornerstone for real Vietnamese democracy could be laid.

The country's feuds, divisions, clashes, the 70-odd political parties - most steeped in clandestine struggle - offer little encouragement.

In North Viet Nam, the Communists have eliminated religion, supersitution and opposition, by brutal methods and iron discipline that few Americans would support and that negate the very idea of democracy.

In South Viet Nam, blooded by continuous war and terror, the likelihood of full - blown democracy also seems distant to most observers.

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN"

The following lines that I will try and submit in my poor power.

I hereby wish to state that my people have been voluntary since this great nation has become a world power. At this time I am very much concerned as to whether we will survive, as we all know that greater empires in the past have vanished.

But of course there can be no doubt this is the greatest nation that has existed upon the earth.

I cannot think that we have arrived at the point whereby we can turn the other cheek and I still think that Washington was right.

This has been proven at Pearl Harbor and again at the wall of Berlin, and history shows that it was the German American population that saved this union.

In conclusion I think that it is time to get our guns and help our poor police to maintain this society of all good Americans which draw no distinction of race, creed or color.

J. C. May

Missouri Press Association Established May 17, 1867

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- With a desire to increase the efficiency of the press in Missouri, state publishers got together in St. Louis on May 17, 1867. From this initial session developed today's Missouri Press Association, presently observing its centennial.

Ideas for a newspapermen's association date to the mid-19th century when several were created, the first in New York state in 1853. Organizational plans were slowed down when the Civil War opened, but after this conflict more such groups were formed. Many publishers, especially those in border states such as Missouri, recognize in these organizations an opportunity to aid in rebuilding the states and reuniting the people.

Early gatherings stressed the social aspects more than the utilitarian element. For example, the MPA's first constitution in 1867 provided for annual addresses and poems. There prevailed an emphasis on the spirit of reunion, a fraternal feeling as the publishers from across the state gathered to review their problems and exchange ideas.

Elaborate banquets and excursions highlighted these annual conventions. The first excursion was in 1869, a train trip from St. Louis to Iron Mountain and Pilot Knob. Later excursions during the association's first decade included visits to Maryville, Sedalia and Boonville, where a wine company's "cellars provided a point of resistless attraction to the thirsty travelers"; to Fort Scott and Indian Nation in Kansas; a steamer trip on the Mississippi; to Chicago and Colorado.

Eugene Field, at the time writing for the St. Louis Journal, read one of his poems at the 1875 meeting in Lexington. It was "A Weird Idyl-- Solomon Burch's Fighting Editor." Field attended several MPA sessions and provided other poems. The secretary reported that this poem was "unique or possibly outre, but his inimitable delivery rendered it a most capital entertainment."

J. W. Barrett and Norman J. Colman were the first presidents. Barrett, of the Canton Press, served for three years, the only member so honored. Colman, later the nation's first secretary of agriculture, served two years while editing his Rural World.

Interesting talks, or "orations," sparked the first decade. Col. W. F. Switzler, of Columbia, spoke at the first decade anniversary session in 1876, saying that the "country papers are the papers of the people. They are published in their midst and by those who understand their wants, and who sympathize with them in all their efforts at advancement."

While America was celebrating its centennial as a republic, Missouri publishers recognize their obligations, saying that the press is "above - Presidents, because it makes Presidents; above Congress and Legislatures, because it makes and unmakes legislation. It also educates jurors and modernizes judicial thought."

J. W. Barrett prepared the first history of the association covering this decade. Probably the spirit voiced in these words by an early "orator" reflects the feeling of MPA members today:

"Journalism has a high and immortal mission to perform. Like the wand of a magician, its wing sweeps nearly every land, and shall yet penetrate the wildest haunts of the world, where the shadow and superstition of ignorance falls heavily over the people."

The "Great Commoner," William Jennings Bryan, in 1908 urged the teaching of newspapermen in the University of Missouri, stressing the need for editorials that voiced the "honest convictions" of the writers, and including only what the writers were "firmly convinced is true."

Stray Tomcat Object Of 800-Mile Trip

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. AP - A strayed tomcat, pet of an Illinois family, is in the Livingston County jail in custody of Sheriff and Mrs. Kelsie Reeter. The owners are driving here from Hinsdale, a suburb of Chicago, to get it -- providing it's the right cat -- a round trip of 800 miles.

The sheriff said a Mrs. Norman Green telephoned that the cat, belonging to her parents, disappeared Saturday while they were stopped at the park on U.S. 36, near Utica. Reeter went to the park, located a tomcat, and called back. It met the description, and Mrs. Green said they'd be back for it.

The sheriff said he'd be glad. The cat kept him awake half the night.

Redistrl tricting of Missouri Legislature Wins Approval

KANSAS CITY AP — A three-judge federal panel has ruled that reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri Legislature is constitutional.

"We believe that the Senate apportionment committee and the House apportionment committee have done a commendable job in apportioning the various districts of the state into districts of substantial equality of population," the judges said in their decision, filed Friday in U. S. District Court.

Members of the panel were Albert A. Ridge and Floyd R. Gibson of the U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals and William H. Becker of the U. S. District Court.

The decision pointed out that the state had been divided into 34 senatorial districts varying in population from 132,848 to 122,221. The perfect district would have 127,053 residents.

There are 163 House districts, ranging from 28,778 to 23,856, and the average would be 26,502.

The court said it would take at least 49.1 per cent of the voters to elect one-half of the state senators, and 48.54 per cent to elect a majority of the House.

The decision was made in acting on a motion filed in April by the state, which sought approval of the redistricting and an end to court litigation.

Plaintiffs in the case were Mrs. H. Constance Jones, Stuart E. Hipshman, Harold Holliday, and James L. Robinson, Jr., all of Kansas City. Paul W. Preisler, Joseph Roddy and David M. Grant of St. Louis were intervenor-plaintiffs.

Watch out, Frankie, Mrs. Miller's Singing Your Song

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP — Watch out, Frank Sinatra, here comes Mrs. Miller with her version of "Strangers In The Night."

Capitol Records is rushing a version by Elva Miller onto the market, and the Sinatra hit song may never be the same. But then, the whole record business hasn't been quite the same since Mrs. Miller came on the scene.

Her album, "Mrs. Miller's Greatest Hits," has already sold 150,000 copies, a highly respectable figure. Her style? It has defied description. Suffice to say that she sings teen-age record hits in a mature contralto. She also whistles.

Frankly, at 58 Mrs. Miller has no illusions about her achievement. "I'll go along with it as long as it lasts," she remarked. "It would be foolish at my age to become starry-eyed. If all this comes to an end, I still have my home and my many interests. And I will have had a lot of fun."

It all started because Mrs. Miller, an amateur singer of Claremont, Calif., made regular visits to a Hollywood studio to record songs, mostly of a sacred nature, for her own pleasure. On one occasion, her accompanist, Fred Bock, slipped some rock 'n' roll numbers among her hymns.

"I think you're having fun with Mrs. Miller," she said. But she went along with him. It happened that Capitol had been searching for an operatic voice to render beatle-type hits. Mrs. Miller seemed an ideal choice.

Most of her numbers were recorded in one take, to preserve the ingenuous quality. Some of the errors were deliberate, as in one number when she was instructed to begin singing a half-beat behind the orchestra.

Concerning the sales of her records, Mrs. Miller declared: "I don't understand it, but teen-agers seem to be buying them. As I see it, there are two kinds of teen-agers. There are the sophisticated ones; who dress like Sonny and Cher; they don't buy my album. Then there are the teen-agers who dress neatly; they are the ones who do buy my records."

Mrs. Miller, who had done no real performing since her high school days in Dodge City, Kans., now finds herself in show business. She has appeared on the TV programs of Ed Sullivan, Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and Art Linkletter. During the Griffin show she found herself sharing a dressing room with Sally Rand -- "a nice person; she lives in Glendora, not far from Claremont."

Recently she made her acting debut, portraying a dance-hall singer in a new TV series, "The Road West." Next month she plays her first night club engagement at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe.

Does she have any qualms about appearing in night clubs? "Not as long as the stage is separated from the audience," she said. "I like to sing. What people do in the auditorium is their own affair."

Mrs. Miller has now had to acquire a manager, press agent, tax lawyer, accountant, etc. She is also planning to move to nearby Glendale to be closer to the entertainment capital. Her husband, a retired rancher, John Miller, is symathetic with her career.

"He knows I am mature enough to realize that things like this run their course," explained Mrs. Miller.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What incident set the stage for the Spanish-American War?

A—In 1898, in Havana Harbor, a blast destroyed the battleship Maine, which burst into flames and sank in the harbor. Of some 350 men aboard, 260 died. The exact cause of the explosion was never known.

Q—Are there any pure races of man today?

A—Anthropologists believe not.

Q—What U.S. citizen was fined in 1872 for trying to vote in a presidential election?

Library of Congress Expansion Plans Tangled in Red Tape

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Library of Congress, growing at the knowledge-explosion rate of a million items a year, is splitting its marble and steel seams.

Help is in sight, but far off. After a decade of talk, Congress has approved in principle a new building that may contain the library's expansion for 25 years.

The start of construction has been delayed by a tangle that involves architects, some of the most senior members of Congress, the late Speaker Sam Rayburn and James Madison, fourth president of the United States and father of the Bill of Rights.

Meanwhile, the library, which cautiously describes itself as "in all probability the world's largest," is housed in an ornate and overcrowded Italian Renaissance building completed in 1897. A more austere, and also overcrowded, annex was completed in 1939. And the library uses portions of buildings at the former Navy gun factory several miles away on the Anacostia River and an abandoned aircraft hangar. Arrangements are now being made to lease a warehouse given up by a Washington department store.

Although Congress loves its library, the agony of decision-making has delayed the new building.

"At least two years have been lost," protests Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., a library buff who is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee responsible for financing the library. "This funny monstrosity of a bill requires 42 different people to agree before anything can be done. It will be a miracle if the library can move into its new building five years from now."

But Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill., who piloted through a sea of compromises the bill authorizing a $75 million building, insists it is workable legislation.

"A lot of people had to be satisfied," Gray said. "Some of the people making up the commissions involved are such as the speaker and some of the most senior members on both sides (Democratic and Republican). You couldn't leave them out of the decisions if you wanted to — and nobody wants to."

The result was legislation that gives some role in the planning and construction of the building to the House Building Committee, the Senate Building Committee, the Capitol Building Commission, the James Madison Memorial Commission, the architect of the capitol, who is not a professional architect but an executive officer for the commissions, and a special committee of the American Institute of Architects.

Under Rayburn's leadership, Congress acquired a square of land near the original library and cleared it, razing a small business section and some lovingly restored old Capitol Hill houses.

The square has stood vacant ever since, a prize sought by three groups. One wants it for the library, another for an office building, and the third wants to build a memorial to James Madison, sometimes called the founding father most neglected by posterity.

The key compromise that got the Gray bill through the House was agreement to use the site for a building that would combine a Madison memorial hall with expansion space for the library.

When the redoubtable Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, chairman of the Rules Committee and head of the Madison forces, agreed, the fight was over. Only five votes were cast against the bill. Of course, the Madison Commission got on the control group.

Meanwhile the flood of new acquisitions pours daily into the library, whose employes in many cases literally inch their way around the 44 million items already there.

More people are needed to operate the legislative reference service, the copyright office, the cataloguing section that produces most of the cards used by the libraries of the United States, the program for the blind and a dozen lesser known activities, to say nothing of the shelving books and of the scholarly assistance given 864,000 individuals in 1965.

One by one, public rooms of the original building, special reading rooms, exhibit galleries and the like, have lost their original use and their flamboyant turn of the century charm as they were invaded by ugly wallboard partitions cutting them into temporary work spaces.

"I don't think there will even be room for the staff Christmas tree this year," she said sadly.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE is actually a meat loaf layered with eggplant slices and a sour cream sauce. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese adds robust richness to the basic meat loaf and also serves as a sauce to garnish this delectable entree.

Grecian Bake Combines Meat Loaf, Eggplant

Meat loaf in layers with a vegetable and sauce is an interesting departure from the classic meat loaf. Here we've created an appealing oven dish with eggplant as the vegetable. Eggplant slices, sour cream and shredded cheese go between the meat layers. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese gives a glorious color accent to the top.

The hidden bonus with this entree is that very few recognize the eggplant, so have no fears that this dish won't please all the family. They will eat it and love it -- even though there may be some "eggplant-doubters" among the group. Put medium-sized potatoes in the oven to bake at the same time as the meat loaf. Complete the menu with a green vegetable, a crisp, cool salad, French bread, and fruit and you have a satisfying meal.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE
1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1/2 c. chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1 tsp. basil
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce with cheese
1 small egg plant, pared and sliced
1/2 c. dairy sour cream
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese

Combine first 7 ingredients with 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Pack half the meat mixture into an 8" x 8" square or round baking dish. Place eggplant slices on top. Combine sour cream and shredded cheese; spread over eggplant slices. Top with remaining meat mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Drain off excess fat. Top with remaining 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Bake an additional 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Dear Charlie:

The American Cotton Farmer is getting a royal screwing from our so-called U.S. spinner "friends"?

The attached letter to the V.P. is self-explanatory. Thought you might possibly be interested.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Honorable Hubert H. Humphrey
Vice President of the United States
United States Capitol
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Cotton farmers are dismayed and shocked to learn of increasing difficulties being encountered by the Department of Defense in procuring cotton fabrics needed for our defense efforts. Requirements for all-cotton materials are being made known by Defense Procurement officials. The supplies of cotton are available but the textile industry and apparel manufacturers appear reluctant to make adjustments required to fill military needs.

In World War II, cotton was listed next to steel as being of strategic and vital importance in the war effort. Also, one of the first acts of our government during the Korean War was to impose export controls on U. S. cotton -- the reason being to assure adequate supplies for military uses.

It is important to note that the imposition of export controls and price ceilings on U. S. cotton at that time triggered a series of circumstances and events that have had an adverse impact on U. S. cotton farmers throughout the intervening years. First, because supplies of U. S. cotton were shut off, foreign cotton prices immediately skyrocketed while the price of U. S. cotton was held down by price ceilings. This price bonanza in foreign markets in turn triggered the beginning of a wave of increased cotton production in foreign countries, often at the expense of badly needed food crops.

This increase in foreign production has been aided and abetted by our foreign aid policies and by our export pricing which has served as an umbrella under which the foreign crop has been marketed. The United States appears to have willingly assumed the position of residual supplier in world markets and the interests of the U. S. cotton farmer and the cotton industry have been sacrificed on the altar of "foreign policy" as virtually important export markets for U. S. cotton have been allowed to be diverted.

U. S. cotton farmers have been called upon repeatedly to make the supply readjustments for the entire world. This has required drastic curtailments of cotton acreage in this country that, in turn, have disrupted the economics of entire communities and areas of the nation.

We now have a radically new cotton program embracing the "one price" concept said by the U. S. textile industry to be the answer to our dilemma. Under the new program, cotton farmers have been required to make new adjustments and to forego many latitudes and freedoms with regard to the use of their farm land even for alternative crops. These adjustments were accepted with the great hope of giving cotton a "fighting chance" in the market place.

Of great significance is the fact that U. S. cotton is being made available to U. S. mills at a price that is approximately 9 cents per pound or $45 per bale less than that which prevailed before the "one price" program was initiated. As a result of cheaper raw material prices, mill profits have increased and the textile industry has been able to finance a massive modernization program under which efficiencies have been dramatically improved.

Now, however, we find our country locked in a life and death battle with international communism. Our President has clearly recognized that we must make a determined stand for freedom in Vietnam or perhaps make such a stand later on in the continental United States. The importance of cotton as a strategic war material is again of paramount and overriding importance.

Instead, however, of a determined commitment by the U. S. textile and apparel industries to supply our Government with all of the cotton materials needed by our fighting men, excuses and foot dragging are being encountered on every hand. Apparel manufacturers, riding the crest of high-consumer demands, evidently do not wish to switch over to military requirements even though shortages of all-cotton uniforms and needed cotton materials have been reported and the cooperation of the industry requested.

On May 3 of this year, the Journal of Commerce reported that the Marketing Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Association had set up a sub-committee to work with the Military -- not to cooperate in filling needs for all-cotton goods that have been demonstrated by tests and experience as superior especially in tropical climates -- but to study new blends for the military. The purpose of the new subcommittee was described as:

"Will seek development of alternate or substitute fabrics in the field of blends for military fabrics now in use under specifications developed in previous wars. In this manner, it is hoped to gear military buying more effectively to present-day production patterns of the industry and increase the number of plants that may be sources of military supply."

More recently, Defense Procurement requested bids on 5 million yards of cotton duck for military use in the Vietnam conflict. Out of the entire U. S. textile industry, only one and one-half million yards have been committed -- but -- the textile industry has come forward and generously offered to substitute nylon for cotton in filling this basic military need.

These developments are shocking and disturbing to cotton farmers who more than any other segment of the entire industry have been called upon to make adjustments and sacrifices. These developments also warrant a close look at the overall problem in the light of the following facts:

1. It is recognized that the military considers 100 percent cotton fabrics to be superior in a wide range of uses.
2. With the large expansion in textile processing capacity and the modernization of the industry that has taken place in this nation, there should be no difficulty in shifting from blends back to all-cotton to fill defense requirements.
3. Mill earnings are at such high levels that they should have no hesitancy or hardship in getting in step with military needs --rather than trying to change the military.
4. This country will have 16 million bales plus of cotton on hand August 1, 1966. And, a new crop -- estimated at 10 1/2 to 11 million bales -- will be harvested this fall.
5. This Administration has given textile mills great assistance. They should not in turn show reluctance to make adjustments in an all-out effort to fill military requirements.
6. Shifting away from cotton will take additional markets away from over one-half million farmers and will reduce their incomes. It will reduce jobs and incomes in hundreds of cotton communities.
7. The success of this Administration's cotton program is predicated on a high level of domestic consumption and exports. Action to fill military requirements for cotton is not only in the best interest of national defense but will also help reduce the supply of cotton already owned by the U.S. Government, and thereby reduce the cost of the current cotton program. Conversely, substituting other materials for cotton on a "second-best" basis will reduce offtake and could jeopardize future markets as well as accounting for immediate losses.

You will recall that a representative group of cotton producers visited with you in your office on May 24 and discussed this problem. We feel that developments since that time emphasize the critical nature of the situation both as it pertains to our Government and individual cotton producers. We wish, therefore, to again call this matter to your attention with the sincere hope that steps can be taken to fill military requirements for all-cotton materials and to prevent the further erosion of cotton markets.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Pancho Villa Incident Recalled By Ex-Guardsmen

By FREDERICK W. SLATER
The St. Joseph News-Press
For The Associated Press

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—This week has a special significance for a number of men in Northwest Missouri.

To them Monday, the Fourth of July, marked the 50th anniversary of their departure from Camp Clark, Nevada, Mo., to serve as National Guardsmen on the Mexican border during the Pancho Villa trouble.

One of those who recalls the service is Melvin W. Payne, who now lives in nearby Atchison, Kan. Among his mementos is a flag-decorated, gold-embossed Roll of Honor of the men of Company M, 4th Missouri Infantry, who served on the border.

"John D. McNeely was our colonel and Clay C. MacDonald was major of the regiment. Our company was composed mostly of men from St. Joseph and Northwest Missouri, but there were others united from Kansas City," he recalled.

"We were federalized on June 18, 1916, and sent to Camp Clark. I think none of us will ever forget July 4, 1916, as that was the day we left for the border. We arrived at Laredo, Tex. on July 6. We took over the task of border patrol and relieved regular troops who were assigned to go with Gen. John H. Pershing into Mexico looking for Pancho Villa, the Mexican rebel leader, who raided the American city of Columbus, N. M.

"We stayed on the border until Feb. 20, 1917, when we were shipped to Ft. Riley, Kan. We received our discharges there on March 1, 1917."

Ingredients in the squabble which resulted in the guardsmen being sent to the border were Venustiano Carranza, president of Mexico, and the bandit, Villa, a thorn in Carranza's side. Villa, an illiterate farmer but shrewd military leader, who made several raids into the United States.

These raids finally led President Woodrow Wilson to use the National Guard. At first only state troops from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona were federalized. Finally, the entire guard, 100,000 men in all, was called.

With guardsmen replacing them, the regular troops continued into Mexico but met with no success in their search for Villa. The situation became tense as Carranza was angered over the intrusion of American troops into his country.

In an effort to avert war the United States-Mexican Commission was established.

But before the commission could reach an agreement, the world situation worsened as World War I thunder rolled in Europe. American leaders, realizing there was every chance of the United States being involved agreed to begin withdrawal of troops from Mexico in January, 1917, and Carranza was appeased.

The guardsmen were withdrawn and discharge of the units was ordered.

But for many of the civilian soldiers it was only a brief respite from duty.

Company M, for example, was discharged March 1, 1917.

By April 2, just a month and a day later, the U. S. was at war with Germany. Shortly afterward the men of Company M were back in federal service.

This is the wonder, this the comforting,
That out of cloud banks dark and threatening
Come raindrops crystal-clear, to heal and bless
The thirsty ground with growth and loveliness.
Eternal Lord, teach us the certainty
That clouds of sorrow in the heart can be
A source of kindness and compassionate love
That fall as gentle-healing rain and give
To other hearts a lessening of grief,
A gloried growth of worship and belief!

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —John and his wife had made up their minds. They would take the $30,000 house in the neighborhood where they thought their children would have a better chance. The down payment of $3,000 had finally been scraped together. Monthly payments on the mortgage would be pretty high for them; but they thought they could swing it, just barely.

"Sorry, said the real estate agent. You should have come back a month ago. Now, the only possible source for the money to finance the purchase is asking a down payment of $6,000. And the interest on the mortgage has gone from 5.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent. Money's tight, you know."

On the other side of the country, an aggressive junior executive was being moved to a new post. Joe was happy at the promotion. His family were reconciled to leaving their friends and the home his wife liked so much. A buyer had been lined up for it.

But just before the deed was to be signed, the would-be buyer backed out. He still liked the house. But to swing the deal for him, the lender of the mortgage money was now asking much more in down payment and carrying charges that would put the monthly payments beyond the stretching point of the prospect's income—even if the asking price for the house was shaved. The lender had explained it was hard to find any money, even costlier money, for the deal—and the going interest rates for everything were up, way up.

Much the same thing is reported here and there by professional builders. The financial institutions that carry them while they build and hunt for home buyers are hard to deal with just now. Banks and savings and loan associations say they're short of funds to lend. They also are fearful that home buyers able to handle the costlier mortgages may prove few and far between.

Tight money is coming as a shock to many folk because the money supply actually is bigger than ever before. But there's a booming demand for credit to run a booming economy. Businessmen are competing for loans. Government agencies and private corporations are selling securities—and competing for any available money.

Homes are still being sold, and still being built. But financial institutions that traditionally lend the money for the purchase of homes are finding it harder to get more deposits, because people with idle money can get higher returns by depositing elsewhere, or buying securities.

Cost of Living Pinch Even Worse in Foreign Countries

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar doesn't go as far as it used to. Even so most other countries have more room for complaint.

Despite all the unpleasantness of the rising cost of living here, other lands have seen a bigger erosion of the market value of their currency in the last 12 or 18 months. And as here, higher food prices often have been the main culprit.

If you figure the market value of the local money as an even 100 in 1955 the U.S. dollar was worth 85 cents in 1965. Only three other countries beat that mark. In El Salvador and Guatemala the local currency still bought the same amount of goods and services 10 years later, as measured by cost of living index. In Venezuela the currency's index value is 89. And in Ecuador it's also 85, as in the United States.

Everywhere else the drop has been pretty bad over the long stretch, right down to the example of Brazil where an index value of 100 in 1955 is a lowly 3 in 1966.

The performance of money in 1965, when the cost of living started climbing in the United States to everyone's discomfort, shows Americans ahead of the game by comparison. In a compilation of the depreciation of the value of money in 45 countries in the last 10 years, the First National City Bank, New York, reports that the decline in 1965 was steeper in 31 of the lands than had been the 10 year average.

The one-year drop was 1.7 per cent in the United States. In Canada the drop was 2.3 per cent. France saw a 2.4 per cent slide. But this bettered its previous experience. The annual rate over the 1955-65 period had been 4.6 per cent in France. Fiscal policies to fight rising inflation apparently were helping France at least slacken the upward pace of the cost of living.

Depreciation in the value of the local money in West Germany, Switzerland and Belgium was held for the 1965 period to 3.8 per cent in each instance. Norway saw a 3.9 per cent decline in the purchasing power of its money.

The United Kingdom and Sweden saw their money depreciate at the rate of 4.6 per cent in 1965. Italy and Ireland each reported a 4.8 per cent drop. In the Netherlands the decline was an even 5 per cent. Denmark's loss was 6.4 per cent.

But of all the industrialized nations Japan apparently was worst hit by the rising cost of living. There, last year's depreciation in the value of money was 7.1 per cent, compared with a 10-year average of 3.7.

So the United States, despite its prolonged economic boom, and its recent pinch on consumer pocketbooks, still has been able to maintain a much lower rate of depreciation than other major industrial nations.

The rising cost of living has been a growing concern here, but a much more pressing one in other lands.

DuQuoin State Fair TV's All Star Revue

DU QUOIN, ILL. --(Special)-- Billed "The Steve Lawrence Show with Eydie Gorme" and "The Perry Como Show", Du Quoin State Fair's 1966 week-long and Labor Day night shows might singularly be called "TV's All-Star Revue".

The Lawrence- Gorme show, which runs Monday (Aug. 29) through Sunday (Sept. 4), is headed by one of the entertainment world's most highly-respected husband and wife combinations while the Labor Day night (Sept. 5) show will feature the inimitable Como himself.

Eydie, whose earliest claim to fame was a vocalist with Tex Beneke's orchestra, signed as a regular on Steve Allen's "Tonight Show" in 1953 and from that moment her career has progressed rapidly.

It was 1957, however, before she and Steve were married after meeting for the first time on the "Tonight Show". They combined their talents in 1960 and have been consistent smashes since. Eydie, in addition, is well known for frequent appearances on TV's "Jack Paar Show", "Password", and "I've Got a Secret".

Como, of course, has laid claim to every honor available to entertainers. A pro's pro, the 54-year-old master crooner promises to be one of the biggest box office attractions in the Du Quoin Fair's history.

Both Lawrence and Como are expected to emcee their respective shows which will include other talented acts as well.

Similar groups, the Young American Singers and The Young Americans will appear and both have long lines of TV accomplishments. The first mentioned will be on the week-long show, the Young Americans on the Como one-nighter.

A recent TV rage, comedians Davis and Reese will appear throughout the week as will Ferry Forst, called "Europe's greatest illusionist", and clever Diane Shelton who mixes beauty with juggling ability.

Both shows will follow two Grand Old Opry performances which are scheduled for opening Saturday (Aug. 27) night and Sunday (Aug. 28). The Du Quoin Fair's new free gate and free parking policy will prevail throughout the 10-day exposition.

Captain A. L. Wardwell

Wardwell To Command Vessel

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- The United States will commission Wednesday its newest and finest oceanographic research vessel, the USC&GSS OCEANOGRAPHER, the largest, most modern and most completely automated ship built in this country to probe the secrets of the deep sea.

The ship will be commanded by Captain Arthur L. Wardwell, 58, of Chittenden, Vt. Wardwell was born in Chittenden where his mother, Mrs. Clara A. Wardwell, lives. He is married to the former Evelyn Sutton of Sikeston. Wardwell graduated from the University of Vermont and joined the commissioned corps in 1930.

The executive officer will be Commander John R. Plaggmier, 47, of Dickinson, N. D.

The colorful commissioning ceremonies will take place at 2 p.m. at the Washington Navy Yard in the presence of high government officials and invited guests.

Sanatorium to Get New Unit

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Mt. Vernon Sanatorium is going to get a new vocational rehabilitation unit to help recovered patients return to useful jobs.

Joy O. Talley, vocational rehabilitation director for the State Department of Education, and Dr. Charles A. Brasher, superintendent of the Tuberculosis Hospital, have signed an agreement providing $366,000 for the first year of operation.

The federal government provides 75 per cent of the cost.

The unit, similar to those at the Farmington, Nevada and St. Joseph state hospitals, will be headed by Vernon A. Babbitt, now a rehabilitation counselor at the Nevada hospital. It will have a staff of about 33.

British Bar Advises Six-Month Wait For Marriage

LONDON AP - Couples in love should be required to register their engagements with the government and wait six months to marry, the British Bar Association's General Council says.

"If marriages were made more difficult, divorce would become less prevalent," said a memorandum from the council to the British government.

"It is our view that no license to marry should ever - except in some exceptional cases-- be granted until the parties have been engaged for a period of at least six months."

Find Treasure In Convenience On Pantry Shelf

Pineapple's a treasure in these kabobs, but so's the fact that they can be made quickly from foods on the pantry shelf.

It's a great convenience to have canned luncheon meat on the shelf for lunch or supper, says Reba Staggs, meat authority. Bake it whole with brown sugar and whole cloves, slice it for sandwiches or grind it on the fine blade of the food chopper for this wrapping around pineapple cubes.

Six wooden skewers are needed. These should be of medium length, measuring from six to eight inches.

Hidden Treasure

2 cans (12 ounces) luncheon meat, chopped fine
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 egg
½ cup milk
18 pineapple chunks
6 wooden skewers

Combine luncheon meat, bread crumbs, egg and milk. Place 3 pineapple chunks on each skewer. Divide meat mixture into 6 portions and mold around pineapple chunks. Place on broiler rack, place broiler rack and pan in broiler so that the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil, turning occasionally. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for broiling. 6 servings.

GOLDEN BANANA PUDDING

½ cup un-cooked rice
1⅔ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cans (13 ounce) MILNOT, divided
½ cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 package (app. 3½ ounce) banana instant pudding mix
1 teaspoon vanilla
fresh sliced bananas for garnish

Combine rice, water and salt; bring to boil. Stir in 2⅓ cups MILNOT and sugar; cover and simmer about one hour—stirring frequently. Remove from heat, stir in egg. Blend remaining cup MILNOT and pudding mix, stir into the rice mixture—about one minute; stir in vanilla. Pour into deep bowl, cover and chill well. Top with sliced bananas. Serves 8-10.

MILNOT goes better wherever you would use milk or cream . . . in coffee, mashed potatoes, cream soups or desserts. It makes modern mixes richer and tastier, and whips into creamy peaks. Rich in flavor, in vitamins and proteins, because it takes a whole quart of milk to make one can of MILNOT.

If cows could . . . they'd give MILNOT.

Two Conservatives Upset in Virginia Democratic Primary

By JOHN F. DAFFRON

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Democratic primary upsets of Virginia's senior pillars of conservatism in both houses of Congress sent tremors through the state's political structure today.

In three key races in the Tuesday election only Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. managed to win over the moderate to liberal challengers seeking to restyle the state party image.

However, a few precincts were still unreported and because of close races many winners were only tentative. None of the candidates had conceded by morning.

By the slimmest of margins — less than one-half of one per cent of the vote — Sen. A. Willis Robertson, 79, lost a see-saw fight to State Sen. William B. Spong Jr., 45, a Portsmouth attorney.

The margin of defeat was essentially the same for Rep. Howard W. Smith, 83, dean of the Virginia congressional delegation and chairman of the House Rules Committee.

And Byrd's victory margin was only one per cent in a relatively light vote of less than 435,000. The rival camps had forecast a vote of a half million or better.

Byrd defeated former State Sen. Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

The unofficial Senate vote with only 10 of the state's 2,063 precincts still out showed: Robertson 216,420, Spong 216,899; Byrd 221,512, Boothe 213,227.

Complete unofficial returns from the 262 precincts in Smith's sprawling north central Virginia 8th Congressional District were: Smith 26,521, Rawlings 26,885.

There were two other primaries for the House which didn't shape up as real contests. Rep. Watkins M. Abbitt, state Democratic party chairman, easily trounced a political unknown, Lewis Curling, a Chesapeake attorney, in the southern agricultural 4th District.

In the other race, Clive L. DuVal II, an attorney, trounced Thomas H. Woods, a travel agent, for the party nomination in the northern Virginia 10th District to oppose Republican Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, a member of Congress since 1952.

The outcome in the major races — two upsets and close victory by Byrd who was regarded as a heavy favorite to win nomination for the four years remaining in the unexpired term of his father — almost certainly will cause some adjustments in the party outlook.

Some knowledgeable Democratic leaders regarded the results as a partial ratification — at least — of the gradual shift of sentiment that showed in the 1964 election when President Johnson carried the state into the Democratic column for the first time since President Truman did it in 1948.

Former Sen. Byrd Sr., patriarch of the organization, Robertson and Smith took no part for the national ticket in 1964.

Further shifts of attitude were apparent in the legislature this year with a sudden loosening of purse strings for education and modernization of the state's attitude toward the expansion of public services generally.

But all of the change wasn't obviously in one direction and practical party politics kept the flow uneven.

Sidney S. Kellam, Democratic national committeeman, of Virginia Beach, one of the organization powers, supported both Byrd and Robertson. Yet two years ago it was Kellam, as much as any individual, who helped swing the state to President Johnson.

The narrow Spong victory was directed by William C. Battle. His father, a former governor who came up through the Byrd organization, gave the moderate Spong a warm endorsement in the closing days of the campaign which could have provided the necessary nudge to victory.

Robertson's age vs. Spong's comparative youth and the issue of campaign financing, though, were the major campaign factors.

Banking sources disclosed they were conducting campaign fund drives as a way of saying "thank you" to Robertson — who is chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Robertson's campaigners declined to disclose the amount or source of his campaign war chest in advance of the primary. Spong made a public accounting of what he said were total contributions received.

Smith expressed no grave concern at the apparent loss of his first political campaign in 60 years of public life.

"I will wait until I am convinced that there is no mistake in the tabulation," he said. "If the figures hold up, alright, alright."

Smith thus indicated he might forego asking for a recount which state law allows in elections for the House of Representatives if 500 votes or less separate the winner and loser.

To Restore Matthews Telephone Service

Telephone service is expected to be restored to normal at Matthews this weekend, John Donoho, manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., reported today.

AC power has been leaking from the lines of the Missouri-Arkansas Power Co. and REA to the telephone company lines, he explained, but the exact cause for the leakage has not been determined.

There is an apparent relationship between the hot weather and the leakage, Donoho said. The trouble begins about 8 or 9 a.m. when the temperature begins warming up and continues to about 8 or 9 p.m. when the temperature becomes cooler.

During the hot weather the noise is so loud that a voice cannot be heard on a telephone, he noted.

To counteract this leakage, the telephone company is making alterations to the phones, replacing the three-conductor tubes with four-conductor tubes, Donoho explained. These four-conductor tubes have an element to counteract the drain of the AC power.

All members of the Sikeston National Guard unit, with the exception of the advance detachment, are requested to report Friday morning, for convoy movement to Camp Ripley, Minn., for two weeks annual field training.

The kitchen personnel will report at 6 a.m., while the balance of the unit will report no later than 6:45 a.m. All members are reminded to take both the garrison and service uniform caps with them.

Fire Destroys Truck Trailer

EAST PRAIRIE -- The trailer portion of a tractor - trailer truck owned by John Henderson of East Prairie was destroyed by fire Saturday. Henderson had the trailer loaded with straw and had been hauling watermelons.

While the vehicle was parked on Poplar street, the straw was ignited by an unknown cause. The tractor was pulled away from the trailer and damage was confined to the latter part of the vehicle.

PSC to Study Power Rationing In St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Missouri Public Service Commission started a full investigation today of power rationing by Union Electric Co. of St. Louis to avoid a power blackout during the current heat wave.

William R. Clark, PSC chairman, directed F. D. Hequembourg, head of the commission's office of utilities, to "make a full investigation of the company's priority schedules on selective power cutoffs and analyze the emergency there and report to the commission."

He said "we are especially interested in determining if any discrimination exists with regard to the power cutoffs."

Clark said he had not received a letter yet from Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Co., requesting such an investigation. The commission decided on the inquiry after getting numerous complaints from St. Louis Tuesday.

He noted that the company has authority to interrupt the flow of power in the event of an emergency and the threat of a total blackout would be such an emergency.

CHARLESTON -- In a routine session of the City Council Tuesday night an application for a liquor license by Raymond Bruenderman was approved. The council also approved bills.

House at Dudley Leveled by Fire

DEXTER -- A two-story frame house located four miles north of Dudley burned to the ground Monday morning about 10 a.m.

The house was located on the Battles farm and occupants of the house were Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lusk.

The Dexter Fire Department answered the fire call. Fire Chief Leslie McMunn said that about 50 per cent of the Lusks' clothing and furniture was saved even though the house burned to the ground.

It is believed the house caught afire in the upstairs.

Whistle Saves Life, Fire Destroys Home

DEXTER -- The Paul Rickman residence, a large frame house located at the end of First Street, burned completely Saturday about 2:30 a.m.

The house is located near the Cotton Belt railroad. Rickman told Fire Chief Leslie McMunn that he believed the extra blowing of the train whistle was what awakened him and possibly saved his life. McMunn stated that Rickman "just got out" and that no clothing or furniture was saved.

A bottle gas tank and a kerosene barrel located near the house also burned during the fire.

Hospital Expansion Told to Kiwanis

Mayor Sikes gave the need of raising money and said they must have close to a million dollars in donations to match the Hill Burton Fund of $915,000.00 grant. The total beds available after the new construction there will be approximately 200 beds, Kendall said. The community owned type of hospital has proven to be the most efficient and most dependable way of providing care, he said, for all involved.

Mississippi and New Madrid County courts have contributed money each year to partially cover the loss on individuals who are unable to pay hospital bills. A large area of population now use the facilities of the Sikeston hospital, he said. Business is created in Sikeston when they come to trade here.

Harold Jones stated that the 180 hospital employees have pledged and donated up to date a total of $11,033.00 on the new drive. It was brought out that the fund campaign manager who was brought in will be paid by anonymous donor. This man's salary will not come out of the money collected for the hospital. Administrator Jones said the growth of the hospital has been fantastic, an average of 10 per cent over all with a 37 per cent increase in laboratory tests, a 16 per cent increase in X-Ray tests. In 330 days, people were placed in beds out in the hall 115 days out of 330 or 1-3 of the time, due to crowded conditions.

The new wing will have three floors, the third floor held for future expansion, which can now be added for $123,000.00. The new addition will have a new emergency room to take care of five patients at a time, a new treatment room, a new waiting room, a new conference room, a new press reporter and police headquarters room plus two floors of 34 new beds each.

The hospital now has 26 physicians on the staff, 16 live in Sikeston. The new wing must be built, he said, and will be built.

Kiwanis President Lee Shell held a Board Meeting and announced that the new Learn to Swim program at the Chamber of Commerce pool now has 297 children enrolled under the guidance of a competent instructor, Mrs. Fred Davis, 729 Mimosa Drive.

The Club voted to discontinue fruit cake sales and substitute two pancake days per year instead. More Ford Gum machines were ordered to be placed around town and plans were kicked off for the annual Watermellon Picnic at the George Kirk flower garden grounds.

Final Drawings Drawings Begin For Dexter Hospital

DEXTER -- Word has now been received by the board of directors of the Dexter Memorial Hospital that Hewitt and Royer, the architects and consultants for the new hospital project, have now received sufficient approval of preliminary drawings from the Hill-Harris Agency so that they are now proceeding with full-scale work-drawings.

It is estimated that three drawings will be completed and rady to present for Hill-Harris approval by Sept. 1, and that the hospital will be able to let bids in mid October.

Liberty Township reports that work on One Mile Road has temporarily ceased pending receipt of approval from the state and federal government for alteration and widening of the entrances at Highway 114 and Highway 60. Local and district highway department personnel are giving the township their full cooperation to secure the necessary permits as quickly as possible in order that this road might be completed. John William Ringer, president of the board of directors stated.

At a meeting of the board of directors on Wednesday, July 6, representatives of the Southwest Bell Telephone Company presented an informative film to the board on a hospital interphone system which has recently been developed by Bell Telephone.

Ex-Military Aide Accused of Divulging Information

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former military aide to the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been accused of conspiring to deliver defense information to the Soviet Union.

A federal grand jury indictment naming William Henry Whalen, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, said the information included data on atomic weapons, missiles and the retaliation plans of the Strategic Air Command.

It said Whalen received a total of $5,500 on six occasions between December 1959 and March 1961 from two former Soviet Embassy officials who have returned home.

There was no immediate explanation from the Justice Department nor the Pentagon on the gap of five years between the last alleged offense and the arrest.

Whalen, 51 and now unemployed, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents in suburban Alexandria, Va., where he lives. He was arraigned on the espionage conspiracy charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and released several hours later after positing $15,000 bond.

The two Soviets, Col. Sergei Edemski and Mikhail S. Shumaev, were named as coconspirators in the indictment returned by a grand jury in Newport News, Va. The Justice Department said the two were not charged because they are no longer in the United States.

Edemski, former assistant Soviet military attache, returned home in February 1960 and Shumaev, former first secretary, returned in September 1963, the department said.

Whalen, who had been awarded the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation Medal, served in Europe and Japan before being assigned in 1955 to the Army intelligence branch of the foreign liaison office in Washington.

He later was assigned to the staff of the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon where he served until Feb. 3, 1961, when he was retired on a physical disability after more than 20 years of active duty.

Whalen's wife, Bernadine, was contacted by Washington Star reporter Walter Gold shortly after her husband's arrest. As he read her an Associated Press story detailing the charges, Gold said she broke into tears and said:

"I don't know how this could happen. It isn't possible. I don't believe, I don't believe it, I'll never believe it. It just isn't true, it just isn't true — he never said anything about this to me.

"Oh, what will I do now — who's going to pay all these bills?"

She declined later to talk with other newsmen.

Later, in a Columbia Broadcasting System interview, Mrs. Whalen described the circumstances under which FBI agents took her husband into custody at their home.

She quoted him as saying at that time he did not know what the arrest was about. Her first information on the accusations, she said, came in her talk with the newspaper reporter.

A PASSENGER, Rose Anna Brashear, Bertrand, was injured when her head struck the windshield of the Volkswagen. Her husband was driving east, when a station wagon, driven by Willard Smith, 33, Cape Girardeau, came off of Interstate 55, east of Miner, onto highway 62, according to the highway patrol.

Harry Jones Has Served 24 Years As Director

One of the nominees for the Daily Standard's Most Courteous Employee is Harry L. Jones, funeral director for the Jackson funeral home in Sikeston since October of 1942.

Until about four years ago when the Rev. and Mrs. Gayle Jackson moved here from Cape Girardeau, the Jackson Funeral Home was known as Albritton's Funeral home and located on North Kingshighway.

Before coming to work for Albritton's over 24 years ago, Jones was employed at a food and meat market. Each day on his way home from work he passed Albritton's. One afternoon John Albritton stopped him and asked if he would like a job. Later they discussed the possibility further, and Jones became a funeral director with Albritton's.

Since Jones has been with the funeral home many things have changed. He said, "The working conditions have improved, new buildings erected, and the staff enlarged." When Jones first began work only Albritton and himself were working; now the staff includes five accomplished individuals aided by the Rev. Jackson and his wife, who bought the original Albritton home.

Jones also talked about the difference of the funeral homes today. One major change is the installation of the chapel in the funeral home; this has made them better able to serve the public.

Overlooking his years of service to the public, Jones decided that he has been quite happy in his profession. "It has been my pleasure to work in this community and serve its citizens," stated Jones.

Coroner's Jury Finds Juvenile Guilty of Felony

CHARLESTON -- A 16-year-old Charleston girl was found guilty of committing a felony in the fatal stabbing of Freddie Lee Jones, 19, of Charleston Saturday morning on a Charleston street corner.

Etta Louise Gibbs was found guilty by a coroner's jury at an inquest held here Tuesday afternoon. James Haw has been appointed to represent her in juvenile court, it was reported, but no trial date has been set.

2 Injured Here in Car-Truck Accident

Two persons were injured Tuesday at 9:50 p.m. in a truck - car accident on Highway 60, three miles west of Sikeston.

The Highway Patrol said a tractor - trailer truck driven west by Roma Lee Chinn, 33, of Cromwell, Ky., and a car driven east by Terry Morris, 20, of Elwood, Ind., collided. Morris apparently went to sleep while driving, and his car swerved across the center line and hit the trailer of the truck, troopers said.

Injured were Morris, he sustained a broken left arm and lacerations of the left hand, and Louise Morris, 37, severe lacerations of the forehead. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital. Morris will be charged with careless and reckless driving when he is released from the hospital, the patrol said.

One person was injured in a two-car accident at 12:37 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 62 at the east edge of Sikeston.

A car driven east by John Brashear, 60, of Bertrand and a car driven east by Willard Smith, 33, of Cape Girardeau collided after the Smith car pulled onto Highway 62 from the Interstate 55 interchange, troopers said.

Injured was Rose Anna Brashear, a passenger in the Brashear car, with minor cuts and a bump on the head.

Federal Agency Files Against Poplar Bluff Firms

POPLAR BLUFF -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations were named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act on file in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

Defendants named were Barnes Grocer Co. and Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributor of Poplar Bluff and Piggott, Ark.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz described them as an enterprise with unified operation under common control for a common business purpose. They are charged with failure to pay the required minimum wage, now $1.25 per hour, and the required time - and - a - half for overtime, to employees in stores and distributing installations in Poplar Bluff, and Piggott and Corning, Ark.

The court order sought would require compliance with the statute, and the maintenance of adequate time and pay records, which the complaint said is not now being done.

Eight Treated

David Allen Robertson, fell on patio and received cut on chin; Jackie Taylor, West Helena, Ark., and Robin Ann Taylor, West Helena, Ark., both in car accidents; Dale Woodard, slipped on floor, striking his head; Ronnie Andrews, collided with another player on baseball field; Vella Lee Applewhite, mashed finger in bathroom door; Thomas Gilbert Carlyle, East Prairie, ramp fell on both feet while working; John R. Harwell Jr., fell at high school.

Waitress Class Held Tuesday

The waitresses at the Holiday Inn Restaurant were voted the most outstanding students in the waitress training class, held Tuesday at the Sikeston senior high school.

Mrs. Faye Jeffries of the State Department of Education was the instructor and presented a program on all aspects of waitress work. Warren Manning of the Scott County Health Department spoke on the sanitation aspects of preparing and serving food and also discussed the state laws which apply to restaurants in the field of health and sanitation.

WARREN MANNING, standing at the left, of the Scott County Health Department, spoke to the waitress training class held Tuesday at the Sikeston senior high school.

Two Conservatives Upset in Virginia Democratic Primary

By JOHN F. DAFFRON

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Democratic primary upsets of Virginia's senior pillars of conservatism in both houses of Congress sent tremors through the state's political structure today.

In three key races in the Tuesday election only Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. managed to win over the moderate to liberal challengers seeking to restyle the state party image.

However, a few precincts were still unreported and because of close races many winners were only tentative. None of the candidates had conceded by morning.

By the slimmest of margins — less than one-half of one per cent of the vote — Sen. A. Willis Robertson, 79, lost a see-saw fight to State Sen. William B. Spong Jr., 45, a Portsmouth attorney.

The margin of defeat was essentially the same for Rep. Howard W. Smith, 83, dean of the Virginia congressional delegation and chairman of the House Rules Committee.

And Byrd's victory margin was only one per cent in a relatively light vote of less than 435,000. The rival camps had forecast a vote of a half million or better.

Byrd defeated former State Sen. Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

The unofficial Senate vote with only 10 of the state's 2,063 precincts still out showed: Robertson 216,420, Spong 216,899; Byrd 221,512, Boothe 213,227.

Complete unofficial returns from the 262 precincts in Smith's sprawling north central Virginia 8th Congressional District were: Smith 26,521, Rawlings 26,885.

There were two other primaries for the House which didn't shape up as real contests. Rep. Watkins M. Abbitt, state Democratic party chairman, easily trounced a political unknown, Lewis Curling, a Chesapeake attorney, in the southern agricultural 4th District.

In the other race, Clive L. DuVal II, an attorney, trounced Thomas H. Woods, a travel agent, for the party nomination in the northern Virginia 10th District to oppose Republican Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, a member of Congress since 1952.

The outcome in the major races — two upsets and close victory by Byrd who was regarded as a heavy favorite to win nomination for the four years remaining in the unexpired term of his father — almost certainly will cause some adjustments in the party outlook.

Some knowledgeable Democratic leaders regarded the results as a partial ratification — at least — of the gradual shift of sentiment that showed in the 1964 election when President Johnson carried the state into the Democratic column for the first time since President Truman did it in 1948.

Former Sen. Byrd Sr., patriarch of the organization, Robertson and Smith took no part for the national ticket in 1964.

Further shifts of attitude were apparent in the legislature this year with a sudden loosening of purse strings for education and modernization of the state's attitude toward the expansion of public services generally.

But all of the change wasn't obviously in one direction and practical party politics kept the flow uneven.

Sidney S. Kellam, Democratic national committeeman, of Virginia Beach, one of the organization powers, supported both Byrd and Robertson. Yet two years ago it was Kellam, as much as any individual, who helped swing the state to President Johnson.

The narrow Slong victory was directed by William C. Battle. His father, a former governor who came up through the Byrd organization, gave the moderate Spong a warm endorsement in the closing days of the campaign which could have provided the necessary nudge to victory.

Robertson's age vs. Spong's comparative youth and the issue of campaign financing, though, were the major campaign factors.

Banking sources disclosed they were conducting campaign fund drives as a way of saying "thank you" to Robertson — who is chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Robertson's campaigners declined to disclose the amount or source of his campaign war chest in advance of the primary. Spong made a public accounting of what he said were total contributions received.

Smith expressed no grave concern at the apparent loss of his first political campaign in 60 years of public life.

"I will wait until I am convinced that there is no mistake in the tabulation," he said. "If the figures hold up, alright, alright."

Smith thus indicated he might forego asking for a recount which state law allows in elections for the House of Representatives if 500 votes or less separate the winner and loser.

To Restore Matthews Telephone Service

Telephone service is expected to be restored to normal at Matthews this weekend, John Donoho, manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., reported today.

AC power has been leaking from the lines of the Missouri-Arkansas Power Co. and REA to the telephone company lines, he explained, but the exact cause for the leakage has not been determined.

There is an apparent relationship between the hot weather and the leakage, Donoho said. The trouble begins about 8 or 9 a.m. when the temperature begins warming up and continues to about 8 or 9 p.m. when the temperature becomes cooler.

During the hot weather the noise is so loud that a voice cannot be heard on a telephone, he noted.

To counteract this leakage, the telephone company is making alterations to the phones, replacing the three-conductor tubes with four-conductor tubes, Donoho explained. These four-conductor tubes have an element to counteract the drain of the AC power.

Small Loan Co.s Change Hours

All small loan company's are changing the hours they will be open. Effective this Saturday July 16, they will be closed each and every Saturday. New hours during the week are; Monday through Thursday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Other communities with less per capita income than our community have enlarged their hospitals or built hospitals. We must remember that when these communities built or expanded their hospitals, labor and material costs were not nearly as high as they are today. We must have this renovation and new wing for our hospital. Further delay will increase our costs. We can raise the money, and we will raise the money.

Radar Detects Four

CORRECTION

PSC to Study Power Rationing In St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Missouri Public Service Commission started a full investigation today of power rationing by Union Electric Co. of St. Louis to avoid a power blackout during the current heat wave.

William R. Clark, PSC chairman, directed F. D. Hequembourg, head of the commission's office of utilities, to "make a full investigation of the company's priority schedules on selective power cutoffs and analyze the emergency there and report to the commission."

He said "we are especially interested in determining if any discrimination exists with regard to the power cutoffs."

Clark said he had not received a letter yet from Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Co., requesting such an investigation. The commission decided on the inquiry after getting numerous complaints from St. Louis Tuesday.

He noted that the company has authority to interrupt the flow of power in the event of an emergency and the threat of a total blackout would be such an emergency.

Approves Liquor License

CHARLESTON -- In a routine session of the City Council Tuesday night an application for a liquor license by Raymond Bruenderman was approved. The council also approved bills.

Police Nab Burglar

Charles Stanley Chessor, East Prairie, was charged with breaking and entering of the Leible-Crumpecker Implement Co., in which he was caught at 3:19 a.m. this morning.

Local police were investigating a window open in the garage and went into the building where they found Chessor in the office.

Chessor's car was discovered parked behind the highway department maintenance building on East Malone after he was apprehended.

Sikeston Guards Will Leave Friday

All members of the Sikeston National Guard unit, with the exception of the advance detachment, are requested to report Friday morning, for convoy movement to Camp Ripley, Minn., for two weeks annual field training.

The kitchen personnel will report at 6 a.m., while the balance of the unit will report no later than 6:45 a.m. All members are reminded to take both the garrison and service uniform caps with them.

Fire Destroys Truck Trailer

EAST PRAIRIE — The trailer portion of a tractor - trailer truck owned by John Henderson of East Prairie was destroyed by fire Saturday. Henderson had the trailer loaded with straw and had been hauling watermelons.

While the vehicle was parked on Poplar street, the straw was ignited by an unknown cause. The tractor was pulled away from the trailer and damage was confined to the latter part of the vehicle.

House at Dudley Leveled by Fire

DEXTER -- A two-story frame house located four miles north of Dudley burned to the ground Monday morning about 10 a.m.

The house was located on the Battles farm and occupants of the house were Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lusk.

The Dexter Fire Department answered the fire call. Fire Chief Leslie McMunn said that about 50 per cent of the Lusks' clothing and furniture was saved even though the house burned to the ground.

It is believed the house caught afire in the upstairs.

Whistle Saves Life, Fire Destroys Home

DEXTER -- The Paul Rickman residence, a large frame house located at the end of First Street, burned completely Saturday about 2:30 a.m.

The house is located near the Cotton Belt railroad. Rickman told Fire Chief Leslie McMunn that he believed the extra blowing of the train whistle was what awakened him and possibly saved his life. McMunn stated that Rickman "just got out" and that no clothing or furniture was saved.

A bottle gas tank and a kerosene barrel located near the house also burned during the fire.

Hospital Expansion Told to Kiwanis

Mayor Sikes gave the need of raising money and said they must have close to a million dollars in donations to match the Hill Burton Fund of $915,000.00 grant. The total beds available after the new construction there will be approximately 200 beds, Kendall said. The community owned type of hospital has proven to be the most efficient and most dependable way of providing care, he said, for all involved.

Mississippi and New Madrid County courts have contributed money each year to partially cover the loss on individuals who are unable to pay hospital bills. A large area of population now use the facilities of the Sikeston hospital, he said. Business is created in Sikeston when they come to trade here.

Harold Jones stated that the 180 hospital employees have pledged and donated up to date a total of $11,033.00 on the new drive. It was brought out that the fund campaign manager who was brought in will be paid by anonymous donor. This man's salary will not come out of the money collected for the hospital. Administrator Jones said the growth of the hospital has been fantastic, an average of 10 per cent over all with a 37 per cent increase in laboratory tests, a 16 per cent increase in X-Ray tests. In 330 days, people were placed in beds out in the hall 115 days out of 330 or 1-3 of the time, due to crowded conditions.

The new wing will have three floors, the third floor held for future expansion, which can now be added for $123,000.00. The new addition will have a new emergency room to take care of five patients at a time, a new treatment room, a new waiting room, a new conference room, a new press reporter and police headquarters room plus two floors of 34 new beds each.

The hospital now has 26 physicians on the staff, 16 live in Sikeston. The new wing must be built, he said, and will be built.

Kiwanis President Lee Shell held a Board Meeting and announced that the new Learn to Swim program at the Chamber of Commerce pool now has 297 children enrolled under the guidance of a competent instructor, Mrs. Fred Davis, 729 Mimosa Drive.

The Club voted to discontinue fruit cake sales and substitute two pancake days per year instead. More Ford Gum machines were ordered to be placed around town and plans were kicked off for the annual Watermellon Picnic at the George Kirk flower garden grounds.

Final Drawings Drawings Begin For Dexter Hospital

DEXTER -- Word has now been received by the board of directors of the Dexter Memorial Hospital that Hewitt and Royer, the architects and consultants for the new hospital project, have now received sufficient approval of preliminary drawings from the Hill-Harris Agency so that they are now proceeding with full-scale work-drawings.

It is estimated that three drawings will be completed and rady to present for Hill-Harris approval by Sept. 1, and that the hospital will be able to let bids in mid October.

Liberty Township reports that work on One Mile Road has temporarily ceased pending receipt of approval from the state and federal government for alteration and widening of the entrances at Highway 114 and Highway 60. Local and district highway department personnel are giving the township their full cooperation to secure the necessary permits as quickly as possible in order that this road might be completed. John William Ringer, president of the board of directors stated.

At a meeting of the board of directors on Wednesday, July 6, representatives of the Southwest Bell Telephone Company presented an informative film to the board on a hospital interphone system which has recently been developed by Bell Telephone.

Ex-Military Aide Accused of Divulging Information

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former military aide to the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been accused of conspiring to deliver defense information to the Soviet Union.

A federal grand jury indictment naming William Henry Whalen, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, said the information included data on atomic weapons, missiles and the retaliation plans of the Strategic Air Command.

It said Whalen received a total of $5,500 on six occasions between December 1959 and March 1961 from two former Soviet Embassy officials who have returned home.

There was no immediate explanation from the Justice Department nor the Pentagon on the gap of five years between the last alleged offense and the arrest.

Whalen, 51 and now unemployed, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents in suburban Alexandria, Va., where he lives. He was arraigned on the espionage conspiracy charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and released several hours later after positing $15,000 bond.

The two Soviets, Col. Sergei Edemski and Mikhail S. Shumaev, were named as coconspirators in the indictment returned by a grand jury in Newport News, Va. The Justice Department said the two were not charged because they are no longer in the United States.

Edemski, former assistant Soviet military attache, returned home in February 1960 and Shumaev, former first secretary, returned in September 1963, the department said.

Whalen, who had been awarded the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation Medal, served in Europe and Japan before being assigned in 1955 to the Army intelligence branch of the foreign liaison office in Washington.

He later was assigned to the staff of the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon where he served until Feb. 3, 1961, when he was retired on a physical disability after more than 20 years of active duty.

Whalen's wife, Bernadine, was contacted by Washington Star reporter Walter Gold shortly after her husband's arrest. As he read her an Associated Press story detailing the charges, Gold said she broke into tears and said:

"I don't know how this could happen. It isn't possible. I don't believe, I don't believe it, I'll never believe it. It just isn't true, it just isn't true — he never said anything about this to me.

"Oh, what will I do now — who's going to pay all these bills?"

She declined later to talk with other newsmen.

Later, in a Columbia Broadcasting System interview, Mrs. Whalen described the circumstances under which FBI agents took her husband into custody at their home.

She quoted him as saying at that time he did not know what the arrest was about. Her first information on the accusations, she said, came in her talk with the newspaper reporter.

A PASSENGER, Rose Anna Brashear, Bertrand, was injured when her head struck the windshield of the Volkswagen. Her husband was driving east, when a station wagon, driven by Willard Smith, 33, Cape Girardeau, came off of Interstate 55, east of Miner, onto highway 62, according to the highway patrol.

Harry Jones Has Served 24 Years As Director

One of the nominees for the Daily Standard's Most Courteous Employee is Harry L. Jones, funeral director for the Jackson funeral home in Sikeston since October of 1942.

Until about four years ago when the Rev. and Mrs. Gayle Jackson moved here from Cape Girardeau, the Jackson Funeral Home was known as Albritton's Funeral home and located on North Kingshighway.

Before coming to work for Albritton's over 24 years ago, Jones was employed at a food and meat market. Each day on his way home from work he passed Albritton's. One afternoon John Albritton stopped him and asked if he would like a job. Later they discussed the possibility further, and Jones became a funeral director with Albritton's.

Since Jones has been with the funeral home many things have changed. He said, "The working conditions have improved, new buildings erected, and the staff enlarged." When Jones first began work only Albritton and himself were working; now the staff includes five accomplished individuals aided by the Rev. Jackson and his wife, who bought the original Albritton home.

Jones also talked about the difference of the funeral homes today. One major change is the installation of the chapel in the funeral home; this has made them better able to serve the public.

Overlooking his years of service to the public, Jones decided that he has been quite happy in his profession. "It has been my pleasure to work in this community and serve its citizens," stated Jones.

Coroner's Jury Finds Juvenile Guilty of Felony

CHARLESTON -- A 16-year-old Charleston girl was found guilty of committing a felony in the fatal stabbing of Freddie Lee Jones, 19, of Charleston Saturday morning on a Charleston street corner.

Etta Louise Gibbs was found guilty by a coroner's jury at an inquest held here Tuesday afternoon. James Haw has been appointed to represent her in juvenile court, it was reported, but no trial date has been set.

2 Injured Here in Car-Truck Accident

Two persons were injured Tuesday at 9:50 p.m. in a truck - car accident on Highway 60, three miles west of Sikeston.

The Highway Patrol said a tractor - trailer truck driven west by Roma Lee Chinn, 33, of Cromwell, Ky., and a car driven east by Terry Morris, 20, of Elwood, Ind., collided. Morris apparently went to sleep while driving, and his car swerved across the center line and hit the trailer of the truck, troopers said.

Injured were Morris, he sustained a broken left arm and lacerations of the left hand, and Louise Morris, 37, severe lacerations of the forehead. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital. Morris will be charged with careless and reckless driving when he is released from the hospital, the patrol said.

One person was injured in a two-car accident at 12:37 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 62 at the east edge of Sikeston.

A car driven east by John Brashear, 60, of Bertrand and a car driven east by Willard Smith, 33, of Cape Girardeau collided after the Smith car pulled onto Highway 62 from the Interstate 55 interchange, troopers said.

Injured was Rose Anna Brashear, a passenger in the Brashear car, with minor cuts and a bump on the head.

Federal Agency Files Against Poplar Bluff Firms

POPLAR BLUFF -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations were named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act on file in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

Defendants named were Barnes Grocer Co. and Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributor of Poplar Bluff and Piggott, Ark.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz described them as an enterprise with unified operation under common control for a common business purpose. They are charged with failure to pay the required minimum wage, now $1.25 per hour, and the required time - and - a - half for overtime, to employees in stores and distributing installations in Poplar Bluff, and Piggott and Corning, Ark.

The court order sought would require compliance with the statute, and the maintenance of adequate time and pay records, which the complaint said is not now being done.

Eight Treated

David Allen Robertson, fell on patio and received cut on chin; Jackie Taylor, West Helena, Ark., and Robin Ann Taylor, West Helena, Ark., both in car accidents; Dale Woodard, slipped on floor, striking his head; Ronnie Andrews, collided with another player on baseball field; Vella Lee Applewhite, mashed finger in bathroom door; Thomas Gilbert Carlyle, East Prairie, ramp fell on both feet while working; John R. Harwell Jr., fell at high school.

Waitress Class Held Tuesday

The waitresses at the Holiday Inn Restaurant were voted the most outstanding students in the waitress training class, held Tuesday at the Sikeston senior high school.

Mrs. Faye Jeffries of the State Department of Education was the instructor and presented a program on all aspects of waitress work. Warren Manning of the Scott County Health Department spoke on the sanitation aspects of preparing and serving food and also discussed the state laws which apply to restaurants in the field of health and sanitation.

THE BOOM of the Dace wrecker was too much for the canopy at the El Capri motel and restaurant yesterday morning. At left is Ross Alsup, co-owner of the motel, surveying the damage of the roof. The damage was confined to several beams and a portion of the ceiling.

"IMPROVING" THE CAPITOL

Like knights of old rushing to the defense of a lady's honor, architects, Members of Congress and just plain taxpayers have rallied round the United States Capitol. The cause of their concern is a proposal to extend the west front of the building by as much as 88 feet, a project that would require $34 million and four years of construction work.

The proposal originated in the Commission for Extension of the United States Capitol, whose five members include the Speaker of the House, the President of the Senate, the minority leaders of both houses, and the capitol architect. As it happens, the incumbent capitol architect is no architect. He is J. George Stewart, a former building contractor who was appointed by President Eisenhower in 1954. To Stewart belongs the credit (or blame) for extension of the Capitol's east front, and for construction of the New Senate Office Building and Rayburn House Office Building.

"Vandalism" is a word often used by critics of the plan to extend the west front. But it can be argued that the Capitol is nothing if not adaptable to architectural change, even of a radical nature. The original design was submitted in 1793 by William Thornton, a British West Indian, who, like Stewart, had no formal architectural training.

The British burned the Capitol in 1814. Benjamin H. Lathrobe was put in charge of restoration, only to be succeeded in 1818 by Charles Bulfinch, who brought the design to completion in 1830. However, the structure soon proved inadequate; T. U. Walter was hired to add the north and south wings and the cast-iron dome. This great undertaking lasted from 1851 to 1865.

Since the dome stretched nearly 13 feet beyond its base, Walter proposed that the east front be extended as soon after the Civil War as possible. Stewart, not Walter, came under fire when the east front expansion finally was approved in 1958. But the capitol architect has shown he can endure criticism, just as the Capitol itself has shown it can withstand alteration.

MRS. GANDHI IN MOSCOW

Alignment with East or West is a luxury that India can ill afford. Dependent on the United States for food and on the Soviet Union for protection against Red Chinese aggression, India must of necessity tread the middle path.

The five-day visit to Moscow, starting Tuesday, July 12, of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi exemplifies her country's ambivalent foreign policy. A trip to the Soviet capital could hardly have been avoided after Mrs. Gandhi's journey to Washington last April. Since then, India has relaxed certain economic controls at the insistence of the United States. Mrs. Gandhi's Kremlin hosts no doubt will seek a full explanation of these actions.

Economic reform was part of the price India had to pay for full-scale resumption of American food assistance. Conditions may also be attached to continued Soviet economic and military aid. For a starter, Soviet leaders might demand that India take a more militant position against United States involvement in Viet Nam. India's task is to appease both superpowers without casting her lot with either. It is a delicate maneuver, but one which, off past performance, India seems to have mastered.

RIGHT'S OF THE ACCUSED

"We are very quiet there," Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said of the Supreme Court, "but it is the quiet of a storm center." Now comes evidence in the wake of the high court's June 13 decision on criminal confessions that the seat of judgment is as prickly as ever.

Even before the newest decision, which severely limits powers of the police to interrogate suspects, the Supreme Court was under considerable fire for its "social engineering." On the same day of the latest ruling, in fact, U. S. News & World Report went on the newsstands with a testy article entitled, "In the 13th Year of the 'Warren Revolution' -- How Supreme Court is Changing U. S."

Although canny in its timing, USN&WR erred in its conclusion that the Supreme Court now "may be inclined to slow the rapid tempo of court-directed changes in America." The 5-4 decision in the confessions case reveals that the "judicial activists" still are able to carry the day against the "advocates of judicial restraint."

The bitter dissent by Justice John M. Harlan came as something of a surprise. He denounced the majority decision as "dangerous experimentation" and "new doctrine" without substantial precedent. Only three years ago when the Court came under criticism from all sides it was Harlan who offered a defense, declaring that "ill-informed or intemperate criticism of the doings of the courts only serves to breed misunderstandings and ultimate disrespect for law."

THE IMMORTAL
HOT DOG

The hot dog has long been an American institution, and in all likelihood it is destined for immortality. It is inextricably related to fun -- whether that fun consists of sports, picnics, carnivals, fairs, or a still newer American institution, the backyard barbecue.

The hot dog's history is full of nostalgia. According to some accounts, it made its first appearance in 1871 at a Coney Island refreshment center and was an immediate hit. It solidified its popular standing at the Chicago Columbia Exposition of 1893 where Little Egypt was the headliner. Then came 1904 and the St. Louis Exposition -- and the everlasting marriage of the wiener and the elongated bun. This happened after a peddler, finding that the "red hots" were too hot to handle, provided his customers with white gloves. But profits fast disappeared with the globes, so he hit on the idea of a bun to fit the meat.

The hot dog was off and running. It soon became a familiar sight at carnivals, exhibitions and circuses throughout the Midwest. Later it formed its loving association with baseball -- a game which seems to demand that we grasp a hot dog in one hand and something cool and bubbly to drink in the other.

The hot dog has just about everything. It's succulent and cheap, and nothing does more to happily perfume the air, whatever the season. Now, we learn, it is rapidly establishing itself abroad -- one more of America's contributions to an older world!

BACK TO 'START',
LOSE TURN

"Sick" parlor games, which apparently are stepchildren of the sick jokes that were around a few years ago, are reportedly growing popular.

One example is a game of atomic war in which the object is to wipe out your friendly opponent on the other side of the kitchen table.

In another, players compete to see who can win the biggest funeral, with the most expensive hearse, tombstone and plot.

Sick as the sick games are, however, the trend toward them may be a healthy thing for the nation's psyche, says one game thinker-upper. Such games, he believes, help relieve a lot of tensions, frustrations and anxieties.

If this is true, and it probably is, the best game brains in the country ought to set to work devising something that could be played at the United Nations by all the heads of states.

It should be a game in which every president, premier and prime minister could take turns annihilating his enemies, conquering his neighbors, evening old scores and realizing new ambitions. Whoever passed "Go" would collect the world.

Every country, every ideology, would have a chance of winning once in a while. And nobody would really lose, because the nuclear bomb cards and what not would be reshuffled and a new game played every day.

Think of the tensions this sort of thing would relieve.

A GOOD LINE

A father told his teenage daughter that he wanted her home by 11 p.m.

"But, Father," she complained, "I'm no longer a child."

"I know," answered her father. "That's why I want you home by 11."

But, now and then, don't you have the uneasy feeling that some of the customs, beliefs, gadgets, characters and status symbols of our time are a bit overrated?

Here are a few which we doubt are worth all the hullabaloo of praise sometimes inspired in their behalf:

Home cooking, particularly in households in which the chief culinary instruments are the ice pick and the can opener.

All outdoor cooking within the city limits.

Ice cubes with holes in them.

Sex after 50.

Skinny trousers, skinny lapels, skinny neckties, skinny brief cases and skinny people.

Golf, water skiing, scuba diving and surfboard riding.

The ease of supermarket shopping. A husband who has to bruise his way through a supermarket mob to get a basket of groceries is lucky if he doesn't end up as a basket case himself.

The two-car garage. It has no more extra room to store lawnmowers and kids' tricycles than one-car garages.

The helpfulness of airline stewardesses. If you ask one of these busy maidens to help you find your lost false teeth, she asks right back: "Yes, sir, coffee, tea or milk?"

Hairy-chested folk music as sung by long-haired male folk singers who have to play the guitar with their knuckles to keep from getting their fingers entangled in the strings.

Contact lenses, drip-dry shirts and James Bond novels.

Foreign movies that begin and end in bedrooms.

Get-out-of-Viet-Nam books written by Frenchmen who were thrown out.

Pop art, mod clothes, pizza waffles.

Anything that you can get back in exchange for 25 cents and a box top.

The dream that by switching to a different toothpaste or deodorant you'll enjoy a richer, fuller life.

Ranch mink earmuffs.

Bikinis.

Buying emeralds or rare postage stamps as a hedge against inflation.

Napoleon brandy, Beluga caviar and Japanese sewing machines.

Batman jokes, elephant jokes, Italian jokes.

Psychoanalysis and Superman sweatshirts.

Any dance invented since the fox trot.

The advantages of buying now and paying later.

The financial rewards from writing smutty books. Most dirty-book authors drive second-hand cars and are behind in their rent.

The sex appeal of false eyelashes, suntans, and artificial fingernails.

The ability of the average woman to distinguish between administrative skill and physical charm in male political candidates.

The acting ability of Lassie. In "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," Elizabeth Taylor does a far better job of barking.

Vanilla milkshakes, Melba toast and Brigitte Bardot.

The value of garlic in tossed salads and the rhythm system in birth control.

Public interest in spinach, glue sniffing or the collected views of Bertrand Russell.

The power of American womanhood.

FRENCH STYLES AND THE AMERICAN MALE

Several Paris Couturiers -- among them Pierre Cardin -- have begun to eye the American men's wear market. Long a major force in the women's fashion field, Cardin and others of his stature have successfully marketed specially designed men's wear throughout Europe. The affluent American male -- young or old -- may well get the next chance to pass judgment on the suitability of these special designs to his tenor and temperament. It has been reported that among these designs a man's white raincoat -- off the peg -- sells for around $350, cotton summer suits for about the same price and a Cashmere sport coat for $600. Then there enters the matter of buying, as typlified by this precisely accurate quote: -- "Men will begin buying clothing like women, for a few months' wear instead of a few years.'" Certain women have certainly done that. . . certain men may, too. Good fashion and bad fashion has always been available at many price levels.

THE QUESTION REMAINS

The intimately related tax and spending problems grow more clouded.

A short time ago the powerful House Ways and Means Committee voted to increase social security payments and to increase social security taxes by 5 per cent to meet the bill. There are excellent arguments in favor of this move in view of the slow but steady rises in living costs that have characterized the "creeping inflation" of recent years. But, the pros and cons of that aside, this increased tax will go a long way toward offsetting the reduction in income taxes that went into effect last year.

We are facing an ancient truism --- you can't have your cake and eat it, too. And the government, despite the occasional lip service that is paid to the cause of economy, continues to operate on a "spend more, owe more" basis. The disastrous end result of this kind of policy has been seen the world around in the post World War I era. So, an old and increasingly important question remains to be answered: Will we learn from the tragic experience of others before our own economic sins catch up with us at home?

The spenders in Congress have just voted a heavy increase in their salaries although they have failed miserably to show any ability to balance national expense with national income.

3. Show children that their ideas have value.
4. Occasionally have children do something "for practice" without threat of criticism.

Washington Merry- Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Vice President gave a private report to close friends at the Governor's Conference in Los Angeles expressing optimism regarding the Viet Nam war and giving some details to back it up.

One reason for optimism is Prime Minister Harold Wilson's trip to Moscow. The Russians have always been anxious for peace, and have made some peace overtures to North Viet Nam. However, they lack the influence with Ho Chi Minh that the Chinese have, and have always been rebuffed.

Recently, it's reported that the North Vietnamese have been getting war-weary and that Ho has informed the Chinese that his country can't take it much longer.

Prime Minister Wilson will try to impress the Russians that the United States is perfectly willing to have free and fair elections, just as in the Dominican Republic, and will abide by the outcome, no matter which side wins -- even the Viet Cong.

President Johnson wants to hold elections, set up a free government, and then get out.

The President and the Prime Minister of England have been talking two or three times a week over the private phone connecting the White House with No. 10 Downing Street. The public doesn't know this phone exists, but it's called the "Jack-Mac" line, having been nicknamed for Jack Kennedy and Harold MacMillan, who set it up.

LBJ'S GIRL FRIEND

There is one lady visitor at the White House who can always get in whenever she wishes. No appointment secretary has been able to keep her out.

She is Courtenay Valenti, 21/2 year-old daughter of Jack Valenti, former assistant to LBJ, and Mary Margaret Valenti, who long served as Senator Johnson's secretary.

Last week when the President was in Texas, Courtenay decided she wanted to ride a deer. She had heard that there were a lot of deer at the LBJ ranch, so she demanded that her mother put in a call to "Pres." The call was made. But "Pres" was out around the ranch and couldn't be reached. Courtenay was not at all pleased. She saw no reason why the President of the United States should not take her call.

Senators who some weeks earlier had attended a White House conference could easily understand her puzzlement. President Johnson was then meeting with a group of 10 or 12 leaders from the House and Senate, including genial Rep. Harley Staggers, D- W. Va., and austere Sen. Carl Hayden, the Democratic elder statesman from Arizona.

The group sat on couches on either side of the President, who sat in his rocking chair. In front of him, as usual, was his keyboard telephone.

Sitting on the floor at the President's feet was Courtenay Valenti. She sat there very quietly during the high-level conference between the nation's foremost lawmakers, not so much absorbed with their conversation as with "Pres's" telephone and with the occasional guffaw of elder statesman Hayden.

When it was all over Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., telephoned the White House.

$30 BILLION SEWER BILL

American cities face a $30 billion bill for building new sewers in order to prevent pollution, according to Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala.

"About 1,940 cities in the U. S. have combined sewers - carrying both raw sewage and rain water -- which serve about 59 million people," says the Congressman from Alabama. "These sewers flush about 65 billions gallons of raw sewage annually into the nation's watercourses. Their pollution effects are increasing and seriously damage downstream water quality.

"Ultimate elimination of pollution will probably require, in most cases, complete separation of storm-water from sewage flows. This would cost $30 billion or more, but other methods of control also would be very costly and probably would be only partially effective in preventing pollution."

Jones urges that the job be iniated by all urban renewal projects, both underway and planned. Most combined sewer systems were developed in the 19th century before there was much concern about water pollution.

THE DIPLOMATIC POUCH

Select Chinese pilots, stuck with obsolete planes that are no match for the latest American jets, are being trained in Kamikaze (suicide tactics) . . . Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., has accused the State Department privately of spreading the false report that Ambassador Edwin Ceischauer wanted to leave his post in Tokyo in order to retain his tenure on the Harvard University faculty. Aiken suspects this was the State Department's way of easing out the most effective ambassador we have had in Japan -- but who was not a member of the State Department's inner circle . . . President De Gaulle has asked the Kremlin to support his efforts to settle the Viet Nam War. He will go to Cambodia, next door to Viet Nam, in September, where he'll use his personal prestige to arrange truce talks. He wanted Russian support . . . The sudden retirement of Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto for health reasons has been interpreted as a shift in Pakistan's foreign policy toward the West. Bhutto was regarded as the Architect of Pakistan's friendship pact with Red China.

Doc. Duncan Says

In the past we have read quite a bit of criticism of Communist nations supplanting parents in teaching the children AND taking over all phases of education. Of late we don't read or hear much of that anymore, evidently our people have taken a look around and decided we are in the same boat now. Parents have no say as to what their children are taught or what school they attend. The mention of God in our school is a violation of the law, same as it is in anti-Christ nations. In all history, no nation has ever forsaken God without sooner or later crashing. At present we have our neck out all the way, so to speak. We have more tax free bonds than consumers can pay interest on in normal times and our fighting forces 10,000 miles from home in-between China and Russia. This could be it. Two Commie nations could do the trick.

H. L. Hunt Says

TEDDY IN WIDE
OPEN SPACES

In September 1905, I debarked from a freight train on my way to California, stopping to work in the fields topping sugar beets near Rifle, Colorado. Five months previously, President Teddy Roosevelt had his "temporary White House" nearby while on a hunting trip in the area. His adventures lost nothing in the telling by the ranchers, storekeepers, teachers and other admiring denizens of the Western Slope.

Fourteen years later I bought Valentine Plantation near the South boundaries of East Carroll Parish, Louisiana. Adjoining Valentine to the East was the Leo Shields plantation, whose fine plantation home had been another Teddy Roosevelt "temporary White House" during a presidential bear hunt in the dense canebrakes adjoining Valentine on the West.

I listened long to the planters reciting the prowess of Teddy. Barrel-chested "Jug" Metcalf, who lived on one of his plantations across the Mississippi, told of the dog baying a black bear in a dense canebrake West of Valentine. The canes, an inch in diameter and 10 to 15 ft. tall, grew at a density of about 5 per square foot, and when leaning formed lodges difficult to penetrate or traverse.

"Jug" reported that Teddy shouted, "That bear will cripple or kill those hounds," with which he grabbed a machete and started hacking and pushing his way to where the bear was "at bay." The planters could not stop Teddy, a bear of a man himself. Alone, he reached the great black bear, and when it turned on him, he killed it with the heavy hunting knife.

Teddy's simple, effective foreign policy was "Speak softly and carry a big stick." The stick he was willing to use when necessary, regardless of alleged "world opinion." HLH

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Airline Strike Call Was Signal For Sweeping Strike Offensive

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Now what say the intellectual critics and the university ivory-towerists of the lack of labor militancy? What say they of the "tired old men who lead labor?"

Had these critics left their round tables and forged forth instead of forumed, they would have known what a handful of insiders know -- that labor is on the march again. And that the Machinists' airline strike -- called last Friday -- is the worst in history.

It is not the beginning, for there is a new breed of labor leaders -- and a new breed does not mean a young breed.

It is prelude to strikes on railroads and city transit lines.

It is is the harbinger of new airline strikes, possibly as early as July 27 on the sprawling American Airlines, and later on the system-wide network of the Pan American World Airways -- with all its caretaker operations in missiles and space and atomic experimentation.

The Machinists' airline strike called the signal for open season on all vital functions, anywhere, anytime and in any pursuit.

Thus there will be strike crises, wrought by labor coalitions, which will startle the land from now right on through 1968.

And in the vortex will be men in their sixties -- just like the Machinists' leader "Roy" Siemiller, 62, Navy veteran long before World War II; and his airline specialist, vice president Joe Ramsey, of the same age.

They are militants.

They have replaced still older labor leaders -- and with their cadre came strike calls and walkouts which paralyzed production of swept-wing bombers, phantom jets, Viet Nam type helicopters, scarce ball powder, brass artillery and ammunition shells, million-candle power flares, grenades, small arms and intricate nuclear warhead wirings.

So they did not and will not hesitate to strike airlines, electronic corporations, copper mines, auto factories and aerospace plants in the next months and years.

Machinists president Roy Siemiller is a trade unionist -- pure but not so simple. Soft-voiced, sincere, good-humored, he nonetheless is tough.

He knows what he wants. He wants to deliver to his people.

He is a relatively new national union president. But he is of old union stock. He knows you can't get sherry from squeezing dried-cut grape pits.

So when last year the Civil Aeronaturics Board threatened to cut the fare rates on commercial airlines, Siemiller on September 27 wrote a strong letter to Chairman Charles Murphy telling him: "Though we have often disagreed with the managements of many airlines in the past, we believe they are correct, in this instance, in contending that a cut in fares will dilute revenues without generating enough new traffic to offset that dilution.

"Moreover -- the carriers have committed more than $2.4 billion for new equipment. This investment, plus the more equitable wage scales which, with the overwhelming support of our members, we are fully determined to pursue, demands that CAB refrain from tampering with the currant rate schedule."

Siemiller knows that the better the profits the better the wages. And when he could not get what he wanted -- roughly about half the profits earned -- he struck because he knew that is what his 35,300 followers wanted.

The corporations earned some $200 million last year. They offered increases of some $76 million.

But the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers demanded a package of $114 million, though the settling price always is lower. But they fought for a full half of the yearly profit.

They argued that the commerical airline field had been a sick industry but it "was made well by the jets." So union leaders hit hard.

There are other unions lining up for the attack. The Transport Workers Union, which struck the New York City transit system in the year's early turbulent days -- and won a package of some $65 million -- is going after American Airlines and Pan Am -- and the TWU chiefs are newly upgraded, albeit they are in their fifties and more.

There is no containing the "newcomers" -- whether they be the "younger" Paul Jennings of the International Union of Electrical Workers or the stalwart I. W. (Abe) Abel, the "man of steel." "Abe" is, at once, of the older generation and the new breed.

They waited long for their chance to deliver. They believe their predecessors were too close to the government, the Secretary of Labor, the White House, the President.

"IMPROVING" THE CAPITOL

Like knights of old rushing to the defense of a lady's honor, architects, Members of Congress and just plain taxpayers have rallied round the United States Capitol. The cause of their concern is a proposal to extend the west front of the building by as much as 88 feet, a project that would require $34 million and four years of construction work.

The proposal originated in the Commission for Extension of the United States Capitol, whose five members include the Speaker of the House, the President of the Senate, the minority leaders of both houses, and the capitol architect. As it happens, the incumbent capitol architect is no architect. He is J. George Stewart, a former building contractor who was appointed by President Eisenhower in 1954. To Stewart belongs the credit (or blame) for extension of the Capitol's east front, and for construction of the New Senate Office Building and Rayburn House Office Building.

"Vandalism" is a word often used by critics of the plan to extend the west front. But it can be argued that the Capitol is nothing if not adaptable to architectural change, even of a radical nature. The original design was submitted in 1793 by William Thornton, a British West Indian, who, like Stewart, had no formal architectural training.

The British burned the Capitol in 1814. Benjamin H. Lathrobe was put in charge of restoration, only to be succeeded in 1818 by Charles Bulfinch, who brought the design to completion in 1830. However, the structure soon proved inadequate; T. U. Walter was hired to add the north and south wings and the cast-iron dome. This great undertaking lasted from 1851 to 1865.

Since the dome stretched nearly 13 feet beyond its base, Walter proposed that the east front be extended as soon after the Civil War as possible. Stewart, not Walter, came under fire when the east front expansion finally was approved in 1958. But the capitol architect has shown he can endure criticism, just as the Capitol itself has shown it can withstand alteration.

MRS. GANDHI IN MOSCOW

Alignment with East or West is a luxury that India can ill afford. Dependent on the United States for food and on the Soviet Union for protection against Red Chinese aggression, India must of necessity tread the middle path.

The five-day visit to Moscow, starting Tuesday, July 12, of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi exemplifies her country's ambivalent foreign policy. A trip to the Soviet capital could hardly have been avoided after Mrs. Gandhi's journey to Washington last April. Since then, India has relaxed certain economic controls at the insistence of the United States. Mrs. Gandhi's Kremlin hosts no doubt will seek a full explanation of these actions.

Economic reform was part of the price India had to pay for full-scale resumption of American food assistance. Conditions may also be attached to continued Soviet economic and military aid. For a starter, Soviet leaders might demand that India take a more militant position against United States involvement in Viet Nam. India's task is to appease both superpowers without casting her lot with either. It is a delicate maneuver, but one which, off past performance, India seems to have mastered.

RIGHT'S OF THE ACCUSED

"We are very quiet there," Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said of the Supreme Court, "but it is the quiet of a storm center." Now comes evidence in the wake of the high court's June 13 decision on criminal confessions that the seat of judgment is as prickly as ever.

Even before the newest decision, which severely limits powers of the police to interrogate suspects, the Supreme Court was under considerable fire for its "social engineering." On the same day of the latest ruling, in fact, U. S. News & World Report went on the newsstands with a testy article entitled, "In the 13th Year of the 'Warren Revolution' -- How Supreme Court is Changing U. S."

Although canny in its timing, USN&WR erred in its conclusion that the Supreme Court now "may be inclined to slow the rapid tempo of court-directed changes in America." The 5-4 decision in the confessions case reveals that the "judicial activists" still are able to carry the day against the "advocates of judicial restraint."

The bitter dissent by Justice John M. Harlan came as something of a surprise. He denounced the majority decision as "dangerous experimentation" and "new doctrine" without substantial precedent. Only three years ago when the Court came under criticism from all sides it was Harlan who offered a defense, declaring that "ill-informed or intemperate criticism of the doings of the courts only serves to breed misunderstandings and ultimate disrespect for law."

THE IMMORTAL
HOT DOG

The hot dog has long been an American institution, and in all likelihood it is destined for immortality. It is inextricably related to fun -- whether that fun consists of sports, picnics, carnivals, fairs, or a still newer American institution, the backyard barbecue.

The hot dog's history is full of nostalgia. According to some accounts, it made its first appearance in 1871 at a Coney Island refreshment center and was an immediate hit. It solidified its popular standing at the Chicago Columbia Exposition of 1893 where Little Egypt was the headliner. Then came 1904 and the St. Louis Exposition -- and the everlasting marriage of the wiener and the elongated bun. This happened after a peddler, finding that the "red hots" were too hot to handle, provided his customers with white gloves. But profits fast disappeared with the globes, so he hit on the idea of a bun to fit the meat.

The hot dog was off and running. It soon became a familiar sight at carnivals, exhibitions and circuses throughout the Midwest. Later it formed its loving association with baseball -- a game which seems to demand that we grasp a hot dog in one hand and something cool and bubbly to drink in the other.

The hot dog has just about everything. It's succulent and cheap, and nothing does more to happily perfume the air, whatever the season. Now, we learn, it is rapidly establishing itself abroad -- one more of America's contributions to an older world!

BACK TO 'START',
LOSE TURN

"Sick" parlor games, which apparently are stepchildren of the sick jokes that were around a few years ago, are reportedly growing popular.

One example is a game of atomic war in which the object is to wipe out your friendly opponent on the other side of the kitchen table.

In another, players compete to see who can win the biggest funeral, with the most expensive hearse, tombstone and plot.

Sick as the sick games are, however, the trend toward them may be a healthy thing for the nation's psyche, says one game thinker-upper. Such games, he believes, help relieve a lot of tensions, frustrations and anxieties.

If this is true, and it probably is, the best game brains in the country ought to set to work devising something that could be played at the United Nations by all the heads of states.

It should be a game in which every president, premier and prime minister could take turns annihilating his enemies, conquering his neighbors, evening old scores and realizing new ambitions. Whoever passed "Go" would collect the world.

Every country, every ideology, would have a chance of winning once in a while. And nobody would really lose, because the nuclear bomb cards and what not would be reshuffled and a new game played every day.

Think of the tensions this sort of thing would relieve.

TRENDS: "Paisley" has grown into an important name in the men's field, says the American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear -- and is mistakenly being applied to every bold print pattern. It will continue along these lines, expanded into so - called Persians, medallions, cathedral - window types. . . The basic dark suit for teens in school is a black mohair -- or one with a high sheen. The three-button model is the best seller - the two-button, in the same black suits, is the next best.

"How the hell should I know!" shrieked Nick Nitwit into the phone. "Why don't you call the weather bureau?"

"Who was that on the phone?" his wife said.

"How should I know?" he snapped. "Just some damn fool wanting to know if the coast was clear."

The soldier had just returned from two years service in Korea. After an exciting reunion with his wife they went immediately to a hotel. Later that night there was a loud knock on their door and a voice shouted "Let me in."

"Great Scott," exclaimed the soldier, as he bolted upright in bed, "I'll bet that's your husband!"

"Don't be silly," his wife sleepily reassured him, "he's in Korea!"

THE QUESTION REMAINS

The intimately related tax and spending problems grow more clouded.

A short time ago the powerful House Ways and Means Committee voted to increase social security payments and to increase social security taxes by 5 per cent to meet the bill. There are excellent arguments in favor of this move in view of the slow but steady rises in living costs that have characterized the "creeping inflation" of recent years. But, the pros and cons of that aside, this increased tax will go a long way toward offsetting the reduction in income taxes that went into effect last year.

We are facing an ancient truism --- you can't have your cake and eat it, too. And the government, despite the occassional lip service that is paid to the cause of economy, continues to operate on a "spend more, owe more" basis. The disastrous end result of this kind of policy has been seen the world around in the post World War I era. So, an old and increasingly important question remains to be answered: Will we learn from the tragic experience of others before our own economic sins catch up with us at home?

The spenders in Congress have just voted a heavy increase in their salaries although they have failed miserably to show any ability to balance national expense with national income.

CHILDREN'S CREATIVITY
SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED

The Bureau of Educational Research of the University of Minnesota gives the following suggestions in the Catholic Digest for encouraging creativity in children:

1. Treat questions with respect.
2. Treat imaginative ideas with respect.
3. Show children that their ideas have value.
4. Occasionally have children do something "for practice" without threat of criticism.

Doc. Duncan Says

In the past we have read quite a bit of criticism of Communist nations supplanting parents in teaching the children AND taking over all phases of education. Of late we don't read or hear much of that anymore, evidently our people have taken a look around and decided we are in the same boat now. Parents have no say as to what their children are taught or what school they attend. The mention of God in our school is a violation of the law, same as it is in anti-Christ nations. In all history, no nation has ever forsaken God without sooner or later crashing. At present we have our neck out all the way, so to speak. We have more tax free bonds than consumers can pay interest on in normal times and our fighting forces 10,000 miles from home in-between China and Russia. This could be it. Two Commie nations could do the trick.

H. L. Hunt Says

TEDDY IN WIDE
OPEN SPACES

In September 1905, I debarked from a freight train on my way to California, stopping to work in the fields topping sugar beets near Rifle, Colorado. Five months previously, President Teddy Roosevelt had his "temporary White House" nearby while on a hunting trip in the area. His adventures lost nothing in the telling by the ranchers, storekeepers, teachers and other admiring denizens of the Western Slope.

Fourteen years later I bought Valentine Plantation near the South boundaries of East Carroll Parish, Louisiana. Adjoining Valentine to the East was the Leo Shields plantation, whose fine plantation home had been another Teddy Roosevelt "temporary White House" during a presidential bear hunt in the dense canebrakes adjoining Valentine on the West.

I listened long to the planters reciting the prowess of Teddy. Barrel-chested "Jug" Metcalf, who lived on one of his plantations across the Mississippi, told of the dog baying a black bear in a dense canebrake West of Valentine. The canes, an inch in diameter and 10 to 15 ft. tall, grew at a density of about 5 per square foot, and when leaning formed lodges difficult to penetrate or traverse.

"Jug" reported that Teddy shouted, "That bear will cripple or kill those hounds," with which he grabbed a machete and started hacking and pushing his way to where the bear was "at bay." The planters could not stop Teddy, a bear of a man himself. Alone, he reached the great black bear, and when it turned on him, he killed it with the heavy hunting knife.

Teddy's simple, effective foreign policy was "Speak softly and carry a big stick." The stick he was willing to use when necessary, regardless of alleged "world opinion." HLH

But, now and then, don't you have the uneasy feeling that some of the customs, beliefs, gadgets, characters and status symbols of our time are a bit overrated?

Here are a few which we doubt are worth all the hullabaloo of praise sometimes inspired in their behalf:

Home cooking, particularly in households in which the chief culinary instruments are the ice pick and the can opener.

All outdoor cooking within the city limits.

Ice cubes with holes in them.

Sex after 50.

Skinny trousers, skinny lapels, skinny neckties, skinny brief cases and skinny people.

Golf, water skiing, scuba diving and surfboard riding.

The ease of supermarket shopping. A husband who has to bruise his way through a supermarket mob to get a basket of groceries is lucky if he doesn't end up as a basket case himself.

The two-car garage. It has no more extra room to store lawnmowers and kids' tricycles than one-car garages.

The helpfulness of airline stewardesses. If you ask one of these busy maidens to help you find your lost false teeth, she asks right back: "Yes, sir, coffee, tea or milk?"

Hairy-chested folk music as sung by long-haired male folk singers who have to play the guitar with their knuckles to keep from getting their fingers entangled in the strings.

Contact lenses, drip-dry shirts and James Bond novels.

Foreign movies that begin and end in bedrooms.

Get-out-of-Viet-Nam books written by Frenchmen who were thrown out.

Pop art, mod clothes, pizza waffles.

Anything that you can get back in exchange for 25 cents and a box top.

The dream that by switching to a different toothpaste or deodorant you'll enjoy a richer, fuller life.

Ranch mink earmuffs.

Bikinis.

Buying emeralds or rare postage stamps as a hedge against inflation.

Napoleon brandy, Beluga caviar and Japanese sewing machines.

Batman jokes, elephant jokes, Italian jokes.

Psychoanalysis and Superman sweatshirts.

Any dance invented since the fox trot.

The advantages of buying now and paying later.

The financial rewards from writing smutty books. Most dirty-book authors drive second-hand cars and are behind in their rent.

The sex appeal of false eyelashes, suntans, and artificial fingernails.

The ability of the average woman to distinguish between administrative skill and physical charm in male political candidates.

The acting ability of Lassie. In "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," Elizabeth Taylor does a far better job of barking.

Vanilla milkshakes, Melba toast and Brigitte Bardot.

The value of garlic in tossed salads and the rhythm system in birth control.

Public interest in spinach, glue sniffing or the collected views of Bertrand Russell.

The power of American womanhood.

Washington Merry-Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Vice President gave a private report to close friends at the Governor's Conference in Los Angeles expressing optimism regarding the Viet Nam war and giving some details to back it up.

One reason for optimism is Prime Minister Harold Wilson's trip to Moscow. The Russians have always been anxious for peace, and have made some peace overtures to North Viet Nam. However, they lack the influence with Ho Chi Minh that the Chinese have, and have always been rebuffed.

Recently, it's reported that the North Vietnamese have been getting war-weary and that Ho has informed the Chinese that his country can't take it much longer.

Prime Minister Wilson will try to impress the Russians that the United States is perfectly willing to have free and fair elections, just as in the Dominican Republic, and will abide by the outcome, no matter which side wins -- even the Viet Cong.

President Johnson wants to hold elections, set up a free government, and then get out.

The President and the Prime Minister of England have been talking two or three times a week over the private phone connecting the White House with No. 10 Downing Street. The public doesn't know this phone exists, but it's called the "Jack-Mac" line, having been nicknamed for Jack Kennedy and Harold MacMillan, who set it up.

LBJ'S GIRL FRIEND

There is one lady visitor at the White House who can always get in whenever she wishes. No appointment secretary has been able to keep her out.

She is Courtenay Valenti, 21/2 year-old daughter of Jack Valenti, former assistant to LBJ, and Mary Margaret Valenti, who long served as Senator Johnson's secretary.

Last week when the President was in Texas, Courtenay decided she wanted to ride a deer. She had heard that there were a lot of deer at the LBJ ranch, so she demanded that her mother put in a call to "Pres." The call was made. But "Pres" was out around the ranch and couldn't be reached. Courtenay was not at all pleased. She saw no reason why the President of the United States should not take her call.

Senators who some weeks earlier had attended a White House conference could easily understand her puzzlement. President Johnson was then meeting with a group of 10 or 12 leaders from the House and Senate, including genial Rep. Harley Staggers, D- W. Va., and austere Sen. Carl Hayden, the Democratic elder statesman from Arizona.

The group sat on couches on either side of the President, who sat in his rocking chair. In front of him, as usual, was his keyboard telephone.

Sitting on the floor at the President's feet was Courtenay Valenti. She sat there very quietly during the high-level conference between the nation's foremost lawmakers, not so much absorbed with their conversation as with "Pres's" telephone and with the occasional guffaw of elder statesman Hayden.

When it was all over Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., telephoned the White House.

$30 BILLION SEWER BILL

American cities face a $30 billion bill for building new sewers in order to prevent pollution, according to Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala.

"About 1,940 cities in the U.S. have combined sewers - carrying both raw sewage and rain water -- which serve about 59 million people," says the Congressman from Alabama. "These sewers flush about 65 billions gallons of raw sewage annually into the nation's watercourses. Their pollution effects are increasing and seriously damage downstream water quality.

"Ultimate elimination of pollution will probably require, in most cases, complete separation of storm-water from sewage flows. This would cost $30 billion or more, but other methods of control also would be very costly and probably would be only partially effective in preventing pollution."

Jones urges that the job be iniated by all urban renewal projects, both underway and planned. Most combined sewer systems were developed in the 19th century before there was much concern about water pollution.

THE DIPLOMATIC POUCH

Select Chinese pilots, stuck with obsolete planes that are no match for the latest American jets, are being trained in Kamikaze (suicide tactics) . . . Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., has accused the State Department privately of spreading the false report that Ambassador Edwin Ceischauer wanted to leave his post in Tokyo in order to retain his tenure on the Harvard University faculty. Aiken suspects this was the State Department's way of easing out the most effective ambassador we have had in Japan -- but who was not a member of the State Department's inner circle . . . President De Gaulle has asked the Kremlin to support his efforts to settle the Viet Nam War. He will go to Cambodia, next door to Viet Nam, in September, where he'll use his personal prestige to arrange truce talks. He wanted Russian support . . . The sudden retirement of Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto for health reasons has been interpreted as a shift in Pakistan's foreign policy toward the West. Bhutto was regarded as the Architect of Pakistan's friendship pact with Red China.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Airline Strike Call Was Signal For Sweeping Strike Offensive

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Now what say the intellectual critics and the university ivory-towerists of the lack of labor militancy? What say they of the "tired old men who lead labor?"

Had these critics left their round tables and forged forth instead of forumed, they would have known what a handful of insiders know -- that labor is on the march again. And that the Machinists' airline strike -- called last Friday -- is the worst in history.

It is not the beginning, for there is a new breed of labor leaders -- and a new breed does not mean a young breed.

It is prelude to strikes on railroads and city transit lines.

It is is the harbinger of new airline strikes, possibly as early as July 27 on the sprawling American Airlines, and later on the system-wide network of the Pan American World Airways -- with all its caretaker operations in missiles and space and atomic experimentation.

The Machinists' airline strike called the signal for open season on all vital functions, anywhere, anytime and in any pursuit.

Thus there will be strike crises, wrought by labor coalitions, which will startle the land from now right on through 1968.

And in the vortex will be men in their sixties -- just like the Machinists' leader "Roy" Siemiller, 62, Navy veteran long before World War II; and his airline specialist, vice president Joe Ramsey, of the same age.

They are militants.

They have replaced still older labor leaders -- and with their cadre came strike calls and walkouts which paralyzed production of swept-wing bombers, phantom jets, Viet Nam type helicopters, scarce ball powder, brass artillery and ammunition shells, million-candle power flares, grenades, small arms and intricate nuclear warhead wirings.

So they did not and will not hesitate to strike airlines, electronic corporations, copper mines, auto factories and aerospace plants in the next months and years.

Machinists president Roy Siemiller is a trade unionist -- pure but not so simple. Soft-voiced, sincere, good-humored, he nonetheless is tough.

He knows what he wants. He wants to deliver to his people.

He is a relatively new national union president. But he is of old union stock. He knows you can't get sherry from squeezing dried-cut grape pits.

So when last year the Civil Aeronautics Board threatened to cut the fare rates on commercial airlines, Siemiller on September 27 wrote a strong letter to Chairman Charles Murphy telling him: "Though we have often disagreed with the managements of many airlines in the past, we believe they are correct, in this instance, in contending that a cut in fares will dilute revenues without generating enough new traffic to offset that dilution.

"Moreover -- the carriers have committed more than $2.4 billion for new equipment. This investment, plus the more equitable wage scales which, with the overwhelming support of our members, we are fully determined to pursue, demands that CAB refrain from tampering with the currant rate schedule."

Siemiller knows that the better the profits the better the wages. And when he could not get what he wanted -- roughly about half the profits earned -- he struck because he knew that is what his 35,300 followers wanted.

The corporations earned some $200 million last year. They offered increases of some $76 million.

But the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers demanded a package of $114 million, though the settling price always is lower. But they fought for a full half of the yearly profit.

They argued that the commerical airline field had been a sick industry but it "was made well by the jets." So union leaders hit hard.

There are other unions lining up for the attack. The Transport Workers Union, which struck the New York City transit system in the year's early turbulent days -- and won a package of some $65 million -- is going after American Airlines and Pan Am -- and the TWU chiefs are newly upgraded, albeit they are in their fifties and more.

There is no containing the "newcomers" -- whether they be the "younger" Paul Jennings of the International Union of Electrical Workers or the stalwart I. W. (Abe) Abel, the "man of steel." "Abe" is, at once, of the older generation and the new breed.

They waited long for their chance to deliver. They believe their predecessors were too close to the government, the Secretary of Labor, the White House, the President.

They have returned to the birthplace of their profession, the original weapon -- the picket line.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Spane

Miss Sharon Sims Says Vows With Ronald Spane Saturday

ADVANCE -- A single, very large basket of white gladioli on a tall standard centered the altar and was the focal point in a setting at the Methodist church Saturday evening for the 8 p.m. wedding of Miss Sharon Sims and Ronald Spane.

The flower arrangement was flanked on either side by a seven branched candelabrum. Potted palms completed the altar arrangement while satin bows of blue, marked the pews

The former Miss Sims is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims of Advance. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane of Painton.

The Rev. O. D. Niswonger of Patton officated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Eva Moore was at the organ to play the nuptial music and to accompany the solosts, Miss Sondra Harnes, of Advance, and Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., brother-in-law of the bride.

Ushers, who also served as candlelighters, were Mark Elfrink and Bob Kirpatrick of Advance, Mrs. David Harris, of Springfield, a sister of the bride, registered guests.

Preceding the bride to the altar was Miss Sondra Ward, of Advance, the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lura Robinson of Advance, Miss Teresa Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., a niece of the bride and Miss Tonya McGill, of Sikeston, a niece of the groom.

The bride's attendants wore identically fashioned waltz - length dresses of corn-flower blue, dotted dacron. The fitted bodices were cut empire style in front and sloped to a natural waistline level in the back. The double-ruffle trim with velvet ribbon was used on the sleeves and at the neck and waistline, where the ribbon terminated in streamers at the back. They wore bandeau-pillbox headpieces with ripple veils, and each carried a single, long stemmed white rose.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was gowned in traditional white, creation of angel-mist taffeta and chantilly lace.

Scallops of lace, studded with sequins, finished the deep-scooped neckline. The bodice was fitted and the long sleeves came to a point over the hand.

The very bouffant floor-length skirt, worn over hoops, had a deep scallop trim at the bottom. An overskirt in front was accented by an applique of lace sprinkled with sequins. The watteau chapel-length train had a lavish use of the sequin-studded lace and was detachable with a Dior bow, high above the waistline.

The tiered veil of imported illusion was secured to a frosted headpiece. The bride's bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses and pompons.

The mother of the bride chose a two-piece gold metallic dress with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations. The mother of the groom chose a two piece off-white metallic dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

James John Sims, only brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were David Dalton, Bell City; Billie Raber Advance, and Robert Jenkins, Bloomingdale, Ill., nephew of the bride.

Suggestive of the bride's wedding colors, Mr. and Mrs. Sims used a blue and white decorating scheme when they received guests in their home following the ceremony. Bowls of blue hydrangea and baby's breath appointed the reception room; the bride's table was laid with lace over blue and was centered with a tiered white cake with blue accents, with white and gold gas candles tied with blue ribbon bows. The cake was baked by the mother and decorated by LeRoy Stilts, a friend of the bride.

The cake was served by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield. The punch was poured by Mrs. Robert Fowler of Addison, Ill., sister of the bride and Mrs. Charles McGill, of Sikeston, sister of the groom. Mrs. Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., and Mrs. David Harris of Springfield, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Wilbur Raber of Advance and Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride, of Advance, also assisted at the table.

The former Miss Sims is a graduate with the 1966 class of the Advance high school and is employed by the Abest Data Processing Company, of Villa Park, Ill.

Spane is a graduate of the Bell City high school and attended State College, Cape Girardeau, the past year. On returning to College he will be a junior. For the summer he is employed by the Abbott Construction Company of Chicago, Ill.

BRIDAL SHOWER

The former Miss Sims was feted Thursday evening at a miscellaneous shower in the dining room of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Wilbur Raber arranged the shower event. She was assisted by Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride; Mrs. H. R. Cresap, Mrs. Ivan Ward, Mrs. Joe Tilley, Mrs. Fred Stilts, Miss Eva Moore, Mrs. James Harnes, Mrs. B. H. Sample, Mrs. Lyman Zimmerman, Mrs. Robert Crader and Mrs. Clyde Refelle.

Blue hydrangeas with blue corn flowers and baby's breath provided a centerpiece for the refreshment table arranged by Mrs. Zimmerman. Serving the table were Mrs. H. R. Cresap and Mrs. Wilbur Raber. In opening of gifts, the honoree was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Earl Jenkins and Teresa Jenkins, a niece, of Bloomingdale, Ill.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Marion Vancoy, of Belleville, Ill., Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield; Mrs. Lyman Spane, mother of the groom of Painton, and Mrs. Charles McGill, sister of the groom, of Sikeston.

HOSTS TO THE WEDDING PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims, Friday evening, following a rehearsel at the Methodist church to compliment the marriage of their son, Ronald Spane, to Sharon Sims.

Guests were members of the wedding party.

Miss Ginger Chism

Ginger Chism Is Engaged To John Netteler

Mrs. Cuma Chism, 1401 East Gladys St., announces the engagement of her eldest daughter, Ginger, to John Netteler, son of Mrs. Patricia Netteler, route two.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. Esther Walls of Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. George Chism. She is a 1966 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed as a secretary at the Braswell Sani-Soft Water Service.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Sikeston high school and is now serving with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans.

Wedding plans are indefinite at this time.

Sharon Walker Is Honored With Lingerie Shower

Miss Sharon Walker, bride-elect of Wayne Hatley, was honored at a lingerie shower Wednesday. Her bridesmaids, Miss Ann Bess, Miss Sandy Ford, and Miss Katie Blanton were hostesses.

The Bess home was decorated with roses, pom-pom daisies, and Marguerite daisies. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with white tapers in triple crystal candelabra and a silver bowl of yellow and white Marguerite daisies.

Miscellaneous advice was given to Miss Walker by each guest. Pictures were taken during the evening and presented to the bride-elect as momentoes.

The guest list included Mrs. J. N. Walker, Jr., mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Atlas Hatley and Miss Sharon Hatley, mother and sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Cynthia Cullins, Misses Becky Turner, Judy Sidwell, Sandy Carr, Anne Wissman, Pat Howard, Brenda Schaeffer, Carol Miller, Kay Woods, Mary Cauthorn, Kathy Hahs and Pat Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Spane

Miss Sharon Sims Says Vows With Ronald Spane Saturday

ADVANCE -- A single, very large basket of white gladioli on a tall standard centered the altar and was the focal point in a setting at the Methodist church Saturday evening for the 8 p.m. wedding of Miss Sharon Sims and Ronald Spane.

The flower arrangement was flanked on either side by a seven branched candelabrum. Potted palms completed the altar arrangement while satin bows of blue, marked the pews.

The former Miss Sims is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims of Advance. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane of Painton.

The Rev. O. D. Niswonger of Patton officated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Eva Moore was at the organ to play the nuptial music and to accompany the solosts, Miss Sondra Harnes, of Advance, and Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., brother-in-law of the bride.

Ushers, who also served as candlelighters, were Mark Elfrink and Bob Kirpatrick of Advance, Mrs. David Harris, of Springfield, a sister of the bride, registered guests.

Preceding the bride to the altar was Miss Sondra Ward, of Advance, the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lura Robinson of Advance, Miss Teresa Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., a niece of the bride and Miss Tonya McGill, of Sikeston, a niece of the groom.

The bride's attendants wore identically fashioned waltz-length dresses of corn-flower blue, dotted dacron. The fitted bodices were cut empire style in front and sloped to a natural waistline level in the back. The double-ruffle trim with velvet ribbon was used on the sleeves and at the neck and waistline, where the ribbon terminated in streamers at the back. They wore bandeau-pillbox headpieces with ripple veils, and each carried a single, long stemmed white rose.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was gowned in traditional white, creation of angel-mist taffeta and chantilly lace.

Scallops of lace, studded with sequins, finished the deep-scooped neckline. The bodice was fitted and the long sleeves came to a point over the hand.

The very bouffant floor-length skirt, worn over hoops, had a deep scallop trim at the bottom. An overskirt in front was accented by an applique of lace sprinkled with sequins. The watteau chapel-length train had a lavish use of the sequin-studded lace and was detachable with a Dior bow, high above the waistline.

The tiered veil of imported illusion was secured to a frosted headpiece. The bride's bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses and pompons.

The mother of the bride chose a two-piece gold metallic dress with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations. The mother of the groom chose a two piece off-white metallic dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

James John Sims, only brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were David Dalton, Bell City; Billie Raber Advance, and Robert Jenkins, Bloomingdale, Ill., nephew of the bride.

Suggestive of the bride's wedding colors, Mr. and Mrs. Sims used a blue and white decorating scheme when they received guests in their home following the ceremony. Bowls of blue hydrangea and baby's breath appointed the reception room; the bride's table was laid with lace over blue and was centered with a tiered white cake with blue accents, with white and gold gas candles tied with blue ribbon bows. The cake was baked by the mother and decorated by LeRoy Stilts, a friend of the bride.

The cake was served by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield. The punch was poured by Mrs. Robert Fowler of Addison, Ill., sister of the bride and Mrs. Charles McGill, of Sikeston, sister of the groom. Mrs. Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., and Mrs. David Harris of Springfield, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Wilbur Raber of Advance and Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride, of Advance, also assisted at the table.

The former Miss Sims is a graduate with the 1966 class of the Advance high school and is employed by the Abest Data Processing Company, of Villa Park, Ill.

Spane is a graduate of the Bell City high school and attended State College, Cape Girardeau, the past year. On returning to College he will be a junior. For the summer he is employed by the Abbott Construction Company of Chicago, Ill.

BRIDAL SHOWER

The former Miss Sims was feted Thursday evening at a miscellaneous shower in the dining room of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Wilbur Raber arranged the shower event. She was assisted by Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride; Mrs. H. R. Cresap, Mrs. Ivan Ward, Mrs. Joe Tilley, Mrs. Fred Stilts, Miss Eva Moore, Mrs. James Harnes, Mrs. B. H. Sample, Mrs. Lyman Zimmerman, Mrs. Robert Crader and Mrs. Clyde Refelle.

Blue hydrangeas with blue corn flowers and baby's breath provided a centerpiece for the refreshment table arranged by Mrs. Zimmerman. Serving the table were Mrs. H. R. Cresap and Mrs. Wilbur Raber. In opening of gifts, the honoree was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Earl Jenkins and Teresa Jenkins, a niece, of Bloomingdale, Ill.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Marion Vancoy, of Belleville, Ill., Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield; Mrs. Lyman Spane, mother of the groom of Painton, and Mrs. Charles McGill, sister of the groom, of Sikeston.

HOSTS TO THE WEDDING PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims, Friday evening, following a rehearsal at the Methodist church to compliment the marriage of their son, Ronald Spane, to Sharon Sims.

Guests were members of the wedding party.

Miss Ginger Chism

Ginger Chism Is Engaged To John Netteler

Mrs. Cuma Chism, 1401 East Gladys St., announces the engagement of her eldest daughter, Ginger, to John Netteler, son of Mrs. Patricia Netteler, route two.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. Esther Walls of Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. George Chism. She is a 1966 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed as a secretary at the Braswell Sani-Soft Water Service.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Sikeston high school and is now serving with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans.

Wedding plans are indefinite at this time.

Sharon Walker Is Honored With Lingerie Shower

Miss Sharon Walker, bride-elect of Wayne Hatley, was honored at a lingerie shower Wednesday. Her bridesmaids, Miss Ann Bess, Miss Sandy Ford, and Miss Katie Blanton were hostesses.

The Bess home was decorated with roses, pom-pom daisies, and Marguerite daisies. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with white tapers in triple crystal candelabra and a silver bowl of yellow and white Marguerite daisies.

Miscellaneous advice was given to Miss Walker by each guest. Pictures were taken during the evening and presented to the bride-elect as momentoes.

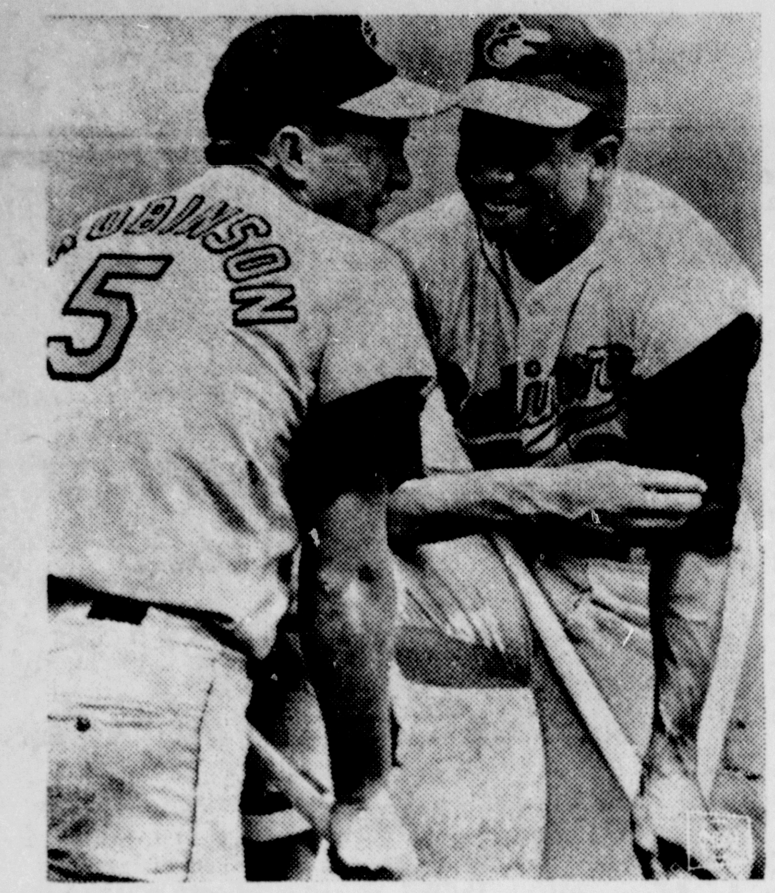
N.L. All-Stars Triumph, 2-1, McCarver Scores Winning Run In Tenth



BALTIMORE MUTUAL—or the Robinsons, Brooks and Frank—is a special kind of life insurance to the Oriole pitching staff. Their spectacular hitting and fielding offsets slips by Baltimore pitchers.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Communist bloc has dropped the other shoe with Poland joining Russia's boycott of scheduled track and field meets in the United States this month.

Now amateur sports officials are waiting to see whether the International Amateur Athletics Federation drops either shoe on the Communists.

The IAAF, headquartered in London, presides over track and field throughout the world and could administer a severe wrist slapping to Poland and Russia for failing to keep their commitments, a tactic the IAAF usually frowns upon. So far, it has remained silent.

Polish athletes were ready to leave for their scheduled meet at Berkeley, Calif., this weekend when word of the cancellation came Tuesday. The Russians had called off their July 23-24 meet in Los Angeles on Monday. American involvement in the war in Viet Nam was given as the reason for both pullouts.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said he deplored political influence in sports.

"Representatives of all countries have joined in denunciation of political influence," Brundage said. "In this case, the first reaction will come from the IAAF to determine if there is a violation of rules or principles.

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is in Europe, said he would fly to Moscow to try and bind the split.

Hull told Glenn Davis, director of the Los Angeles meet, in a telephone conversation that he "could not believe the Soviet sports people would jeopardize their standings with the IAAF by failing to complete their contract to compete in Los Angeles."

The Communist sports freeze extended to basketball with the announcement that Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia were cancelling games against a touring American all - star team.

The Americans opened their swing through Europe with a 104-81 victory over an Austrian team in Vienna Monday night but plans for the remainder of the trip were uncertain.

Meanwhile, the 19 - member U. S. swimming team arrived in Moscow to compete in an international meet this weekend. The team was treated routinely in line with the Soviet announcement that it would take no action in events involving other countries besides the United States. The meet involves a number of countries besides the United States and Russia.

Plans went ahead in Berkeley and Los Angeles for replacement meets. The Berkeley meet was renamed the All-American Invitational and Los Angeles promoters invited Australian and New Zealand teams to compete in their meet.

Frederick Humphreys, manager of the Australian track and field squad, said he thought the Australians would accept the invitation.

At the same time, the Russians and Poles agreed to compete against each other at Minsk, Russia, July 23-24, the weekend the Soviets were to be in Los Angeles.

Polish officials seemed saddened over the cancellation and so were the American athletes.

"If only the Russians had waited a day or two to announce their decision," said one Pole, "we would have been on our way."

The announcement came only hours before the Polish delegation was to leave for the United States.

Ralph Boston, veteran Olympian and holder of the world record in the broad jump, called the Polish cancellation unfortunate. "There always had been good relations between the athletes," Boston said.

The Americans lost to the Russian men 118-112 at Kiev last summer after winning six of the previous seven meets. At Warsaw last year, the Americans beat the Poles 118-93.

Cards Announce Photo and Autograph Night

On July 19, during the opener of a three - game series with Atlanta at new Busch Stadium, the Cardinals for the second year will distribute Photo - Autograph Folders to fans in attendance.

The attractive folder contains individual pictures and printed autographs of Manager Red Schoendienst, all Cardinal players and members of the coaching staff. A Red Bird roster is also included.

Tickets for the three-game set with Atlanta can be purchased over the counter or by mail at Busch stadium, St. Louis, Missouri 63102.

Steinbeck Fires Challenge Back

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. AP - John Steinbeck responded Monday to a plea by Soviet poet Gevgeny Yevtushenko that the American novelist speak out on the war in Viet Nam.

In an open letter to the Russian published in the Long Island newspaper Newsday, Nobel and Pulitzer prizewinner Steinbeck chided Yevtushenko.

"You know well how I detest all war," wrote Steinbeck, "but for this one I have a particular and personal hatred. I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it."

"But, my beloved friend, you asked me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join in denouncing the whole war."

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- "You read what an edge the National League has," said Detroit pitcher Denny McLain, "How their pitching is better, how their hitting is better. It's as if we're supposed to go out there and concede the game."

The National League did that, 2-1 in 10 innings.

Only in Tuesday's 37th All-Star Game it wasn't better pitching and it wasn't the powerful NL sluggers who took command. The job was accomplished with a pair of 10th inning singles by Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Maury Wills of Los Angeles, and extended National League domination of the midsummer classic through 10 games.

The American League has won only once during that period-there also was a tie-and the National now has reeled off four straight victories while pushing its over-all lead in the series to 19-17-1.

There's little doubt that the American League wanted this one. Manager Sam Mele even admitted that the Al Stars were getting embarrassed, and Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson would have handed back in awards and records for a victory.

Robinson, who played the full 10 innings and collected three hits, the Most Valuable Player award and two fielding records, said as much after the game.

"It's nice to get the MVP thing and nice to get the records, but it's nicer to win," Robinson said. "A hit in the right place the last couple of years and we win one. But they win. . . well. . . it takes a little glitter off everything."

It may have taken some of the glitter off, but there was no shoving the American League around. As a matter of fact, the American League came away with all the awards, better pitching performances and the same number of hits. But they couldn't find a way to win.

"Score a few more runs," said Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who used to be on the National League side. "That's the only answer."

The answer, however, came from the National League after a 10-inning struggle in oppressive 102-degree heat that turned new Busch Memorial Stadium into a furnace. It was so hot that about 100 of the 49,936 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

The heat was on the National League at first, despite the fact that the Dodgers' great left-hander, Sandy Koufax, was making his first All-Star start.

In the second inning, Brooks Robinson slammed a liner to left field. Hank Aaron of Atlanta, started back, apparently lost the ball in the sun, then raced in, but was unable to make a shoestring catch. When he retrieved the ball Robinson was standing at third with a triple.

Boston's George Scott fouled out but Koufax then uncorked a wild pitch over the head of Atlanta catcher Joe Torre and Robinson raced home for a 1-0 lead. McLain protected that with three perfect innings, taking only 28 pitches to retire nine batters.

Willie Mays of San Francisco then started things for the National Leaguers against Jim Kaat of Minnesota, rifling a single to left in the fourth inning for his 22nd All-Star hit and extending his own record.

A single by Robert Clemente and a grounder got Mays to third and he raced home on a dribbler down the third base line by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs that went for a single. The run also extended another one of Mays' records, giving him 19 in All-Star competition.

It stayed 1-1 through a profusion of pitchers - Mel Stottlemyre of New York and Sonny Siebert of Cleveland for the American and Jim Bunning of Philadelphia and Juan Marichal of San Francisco for the National- until the 10th when Gaylord Perry of the Giants ran into trouble.

Brooks Robinson led off with a pop fly single, and immediately proceeded to second on a wild pitch.

"I felt good," Perry said. "Robinson broke his bat on that hit."

Still there was a conference as Manager Walt Alston trotted out.

"He was getting a little tired," said Alston. "I went out to talk to him to give him a little breather."

Perry went back to work. Detroit's Norm Cash flied out, Willie McCovey of San Francisco reached into the stands for a pop by New York's Bobby Richardson and Perry threw a third strike by California's Jim Fregosi.

Then Washington's Pete Richert, a left-hander, came in to pitch for the American with McCarver, also a left-hander, due up. The book called for a pinch hitter.

"It was no hunch to let McCarver bat against the left-hander," Alston explained. "He hits left-handers pretty well."

"I was on my own whether to bunt or hit away." Wills said. "A safe bunt would have been a great play - men on first and third."

Wills squared away as if to bunt, then pulled back on the pitch.

"I started to bunt, but it was a bad ball," he explained. "Then I noticed Brooks Robinson move a couple of steps at third, so I decided to hit away."

The hit didn't go to Robinson. It went to the opposite field, but fell in for a single that Tony Oliva of Minnesota grabbed on one hop and fired home - too late to get the sliding McCarver.

"Two - to - one," said McCarver later, "that's a laugher for Los Angeles."

But not the American League.

Handless Batboy Finds Some Big League Pals

By DICK YOUNG
Globe-Democrat Special Writer

In a locker, in the corner of the American League clubhouse at Busch Memorial Stadium, stood a Louisville slugger bat. Burned into the barrel was the name, "Jay Mazzone."

A young boy in an American League uniform walked over to the locker, picked up the bat and flipped it fondly and you watched him and marveled, because Jay Mazzone has no hands.

Jay Mazzone was the batboy for the American League All-Stars Tuesday. On other days, he is the batboy for the visiting club at Baltimore. Some players will tell you he is the best darned batboy in the American League.

When Jay Mazzone was 2 1/2 he played with fire. That was 10 years ago. His face has the wrinkled scars of fire from ear to ear, where a man would grow a beard, and where his hands should be there are claws in the shape of a hooked-v, and each is operated by a long, thin cable which runs up the arm sheath.

There is hardly anything a batboy in the big leagues can do that Jay Mazzone cannot do, and there are some little things Jay Mazzone does extra because he has the attentiveness and the desire of the handicapped to succeed.

A little more than a week ago, Jay Mazzone was notified by Joe Cronin, the A. L. president, that he had been chosen batboy for the All-Star game. The Twins were in Baltimore at the time. The first thing the kid did was to go to Sam Mele, who was the manager of the American League team, and ask him if there were any little services he might do for him during the All-Star game. Since then, as the names of the players were announced in the newspapers, Jay Mazzone would study them, and remember what each man expects of him.

"They are all different," says Jay Mazzone.

Somebody asked for an example and the kid smiled.

"Well," he said, "there is Birdie Tebbetts. Every inning he has to have Sanka. He is a very nice man."

Somebody asked who else Jay Mazzone liked among the visitors to Baltimore.

He thought a moment. "Whitey Ford," he said finally. "He always talks to me, and Ed Stanky."

Jay Mazzone thought of more names, and they came faster and soon you got the idea. He likes everyone, and everyone likes him.

The fellows Jay Mazzone really likes are the ones across the field each day in Baltimore, the ones he roots for, the Orioles. That is the tough part of the job. He is on the other side, and he must root in silence. He cannot cheer, like the other kids in Baltimore, when Frank Robinson hits a homer, or Brooks.

A batboy gets $2 a day, which isn't much, plus tips, which are generous. Before Mele and the Twins played their last game in Baltimore last week, they had something extra for Jay Mazzone. They took up a collection, and Mele handed the kid $170 and said, here, get yourself a new suit and things for your trip to St. Louis.

When it came time to come to the All-Star game, Jay Mazzone had an offer of a lift. The Angels had wound up in Baltimore, and they were using the White Sox plane to fly back L. A. They were stopping off in St. Louis to drop their All-Stars, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop, and they would be glad to take the kid along, and his dad, who is an undercover man on the Maryland State Police.

As the plane neared St. Louis, they handed Jay Mazzone something. It was money. $410 dollars of it. They had taken another collection.

"Have a good time in St. Louis," said Bob Rodgers.

There are some very wonderful people in this world, and some of them are in baseball. And then there are the ones who can leave Mickey Mantle out of an All-Star game.

Scientists Believe Hail Control Near

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Scientists, concluding the largest study of its kind, say they believe they can help reduce hail and prevent millions of dollars in crop damage.

But they are uncertain whether preliminary findings would be applicable outside of the Northern Plains area.

Dr. Richard Schleusener, head of a team of scientists doing the study here in conjunction with the National Science Foundation, said the team is optimistic that cloud modification through cloud seeding could reduce hail and increase rain.

The group, including 70 weather scientists representing 23 organizations, conducted a 30-day survey using a maze of equipment to change the composition of clouds.

"What has been accomplished during this test in western South Dakota will point the way toward hail mitigation procedures in the foreseeable future," Dr. Schleusener said.

It will be several years before continuing field programs will be able to provide firm conclusions, he said, but that the scientists were optimistic about initial findings in the study dubbed "Project Hailswath."

During the 30 - day period, there were 10 in which cloud conditions enabled seeding with silver iodide by various methods and leaving other areas unseeded for comparison purposes. The boxscore for the project indicated less hail in the seeded areas than the corresponding non-seeded areas.

Dr. Schleusener said there was no way of knowing from the study, a pilot project, to what extent hail was reduced and rain increased.

Rainfall during the period was .43 of an inch in the seeded area, .29 of an inch in the non-seeded area, he said.

The scientist said weather is influenced by different factors in the various regions of the nation and that preliminary findings may not apply outside of the Northern Plains.

Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Lexington, Mass., one of the participants in the study, said the benefits of suppressing hail would be many times over the cost of cloud seeding. He said the nation has an annual loss of $300 million due to hail, including $150 million in direct and $150 million in indirect damage.

Easy Living Blamed For Flabby, Stooped Postwar Generation

LOS ANGELES AP -- The postwar babies have grown into a flabby generation of Americans, puffed by the easy life, and stooped by lengthy television vigils.

That's the opinion of athletic trainers George Sullivan of the University of Nebraska and William Newell of Purdue University, at the 43rd annual American Physical Therapy Association meeting here.

"They're too fat," Sullivan said Monday of Americans born in 1945 and 1947.

"Youngsters use power mowers to mow the lawn, ride bicycles almost as soon as they've learned to walk, and then, of course, graduate to cars and motor bikes," Newell said.

"They get round shoulders and curvature of the spine from sitting in front of television like this," Sullivan said, demonstrating a slumped position with most of the body weight on the back of the neck.

Du Quoin Fair To Feature Four Days of Racing

DU QUOIN, Ill --An estimated $264,540 in purses, including $125,000 for top place- winners in the Hambletonian, will again make the 1966 Du Quoin State Fair one of the richest of all non- wagering harness racing meetings in the world.

A major stop on the Grand Circuit for years, the Du Quoin Fair features four other days of quality harness racing in addition to Hambletonian Day, Wednesday, Aug. 31, when top three - year - old trotters seek the most coveted prize in the business.

Grand Circuit week opens Monday, Aug. 29, at Du Quoin when a full card of Illinois Breeder's Futurity races offers purses totaling $14,000.

Tuesday's lineup is highlighted by the $25,000 Castleton Farm Stake for two-year-old trotters. A Breeders' Filly Stake for two - year-old trotters offers a $7,000 purse and four overnight races add $6,000 more to the day's total purse.

Although the Hambletonian captures prime attention Wednesday, the McMahon Memorial State for two - year - old pacers has a $24,000 tag and is a hotly - contested event each year. Other races for two and three - year - old pacers Wednesday are worth $6,000 each.

Thursday, Sept. 1, will be another day of outstanding racing. Feature event is the Hambletonian Maturity for four - year-old trotters and 18, including Noble Victory and Armbro Flight, are still eligible for the $20,000 event. Breeders' FKI $20,000 event. Breeders' filly Stakes for three - year - old pacers and trotters carry purses of $14,000 and four overnights assure at least 10 heats with seven different fields.

As far as horses are concerned, Friday is Land of Lincoln Day as the afternoon is reserved for Illinois Colt Stakes. Daily post time is 1:30 p.m. CDT.

Billy Galladay Sinks Hole-In-One

Bill Golladay, former Sikeston resident, made a hole in-one at the Sikeston Country Club Tuesday afternoon on hole 6, using a seven iron. Golladay is visiting in Sikeston from Corpus Christi, Tex.

Bertrand Downs Dexter

BERTRAND -- Dexter fell short of the home town nine here last night in Connie Mack play, by going down to defeat 12-11 in eight innings.

Doug Simmons, who relieved Dwayne Byrnes in the sixth inning was credited with the win.

Walter Lane started for Dexter but was relieved in the fifth inning by Ron White who pitched an inning and was relieved by Ken Walker who was charged with the loss.

Fred Brenderman pushed across the RBI's in the second inning for Bertrand, with a homer.

Bertrand is to travel to Poplar Bluff Thursday.

Split Season On Mourning Doves

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri will have another split season on mourning doves this year under regulations announced Monday by the State Conservation Commission.

The season will run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 10 and again from Nov. 10 through Nov. 29. Limits are 12 a day and 24 in possession.

For rails and gallinules the season will be Sept. 1 through Nov. 9 with limits of 15 a day and 30 in possession.

For Wilson's snipe and woodcock the season runs from Oct. 11 through Nov. 29 with limits of five a day and 10 in possession for woodcock and eight a day and 17 in possession for snipe.

Special permits for the early teal season, Sept. 17 through Sept. 28, may be bought until Aug. 18.

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- "You read what an edge the National League has," said Detroit pitcher Denny McLain, "How their pitching is better, how their hitting is better. It's as if we're supposed to go out there and concede the game."

The National League did that, 2-1 in 10 innings.

Only in Tuesday's 37th All-Star Game it wasn't better pitching and it wasn't the powerful NL sluggers who took command. The job was accomplished with a pair of 10th inning singles by Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Maury Wills of Los Angeles, and extended National League domination of the midsummer classic through 10 games.

The American League has won only once during that period-there also was a tie-and the National now has reeled off four straight victories while pushing its over-all lead in the series to 19-17-1.

There's little doubt that the American League wanted this one. Manager Sam Mele even admitted that the Al Stars were getting embarrassed, and Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson would have handed back in awards and records for a victory.

Robinson, who played the full 10 innings and collected three hits, the Most Valuable Player award and two fielding records, said as much after the game.

"It's nice to get the MVP thing and nice to get the records, but it's nicer to win," Robinson said. "A hit in the right place the last couple of years and we win one. But they win. . . well. . . it takes a little glitter off everything."

It may have taken some of the glitter off, but there was no shoving the American League around. As a matter of fact, the American League came awav with all the awards, better pitching performances and the same number of hits. But they couldn't find a way to win.

"Score a few more runs," said Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who used to be on the National League side. "That's the only answer."

The answer, however, came from the National League after a 10-inning struggle in oppressive 102-degree heat that turned new Busch Memorial Stadium into a furnace. It was so hot that about 100 of the 49,936 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

The heat was on the National League at first, despite the fact that the Dodgers' great left-hander, Sandy Koufax, was making his first All-Star start.

In the second inning, Brooks Robinson slammed a liner to left field. Hank Aaron of Atlanta, started back, apparently lost the ball in the sun, then raced in, but was unable to make a shoestring catch. When he retrieved the ball Robinson was standing at third with a triple.

Boston's George Scott fouled out but Koufax then uncorked a wild pitch over the head of Atlanta catcher Joe Torre and Robinson raced home for a 1-0 lead. McLain protected that with three perfect innings, taking only 28 pitches to retire nine batters.

Willie Mays of San Francisco then started things for the National Leaguers against Jim Kaat of Minnesota, rifling a single to left in the fourth inning for his 22nd All-Star hit and extending his own record.

A single by Robert Clemente and a grounder got Mays to third and he raced home on a dribbler down the third base line by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs that went for a single. The run also extended another one of Mays' records, giving him 19 in All-Star competition.

It stayed 1-1 through a profusion of pitchers - Mel Stottlemyre of New York and Sonny Siebert of Cleveland for the American and Jim Bunning of Philadelphia and Juan Marichal of San Francisco for the National- until the 10th when Gaylord Perry of the Giants ran into trouble.

Brooks Robinson led off with a pop fly single, and immediately proceeded to second on a wild pitch.

"I felt good," Perry said. "Robinson broke his bat on that hit."

Still there was a conference as Manager Walt Alston trotted out.

"He was getting a little tired," said Alston. "I went out to talk to him to give him a little breather."

Perry went back to work. Detroit's Norm Cash flied out, Willie McCovey of San Francisco reached into the stands for a pop by New York's Bobby Richardson and Perry threw a third strike by California's Jim Fregosi.

Then Washington's Pete Richert, a left-hander, came in to pitch for the American with McCarver, also a left-hander, due up. The book called for a pinch hitter.

"It was no hunch to let McCarver bat against the left-hander," Alston explained. "He hits left-handers pretty well."

"I was on my own whether to bunt or hit away." Wills said. "A safe bunt would have been a great play - men on first and third."

Wills squared away as if to bunt, then pulled back on the pitch.

"I started to bunt, but it was a bad ball," he explained. "Then I noticed Brooks Robinson move a couple of steps at third, so I decided to hit away."

The hit didn't go to Robinson. It went to the opposite field, but fell in for a single that Tony Oliva of Minnesota grabbed on one hop and fired home - too late to get the sliding McCarver.

"Two - to - one," said McCarver later, "that's a laugher for Los Angeles."

But not the American League.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Communist bloc has dropped the other shoe with Poland joining Russia's boycott of scheduled track and field meets in the United States this month.

Now amateur sports officials are waiting to see whether the International Amateur Athletics Federation drops either shoe on the Communists.

The IAAF, headquartered in London, presides over track and field throughout the world and could administer a severe wrist slapping to Poland and Russia for failing to keep their commitments, a tactic the IAAF usually frowns upon. So far, it has remained silent.

Polish athletes were ready to leave for their scheduled meet at Berkeley, Calif., this weekend when word of the cancellation came Tuesday. The Russians had called off their July 23-24 meet in Los Angeles on Monday. American involvement in the war in Viet Nam was given as the reason for both pullouts.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said he deplored political influence in sports.

"Representatives of all countries have joined in denunciation of political influence," Brundage said. "In this case, the first reaction will come from the IAAF to determine if there is a violation of rules or principles.

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is in Europe, said he would fly to Moscow to try and bind the split.

Hull told Glenn Davis, director of the Los Angeles meet, in a telephone conversation that he "could not believe the Soviet sports people would jeopardize their standings with the IAAF by failing to complete their contract to compete in Los Angeles."

The Communist sports freeze extended to basketball with the announcement that Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia were cancelling games against a touring American all - star team.

The Americans opened their swing through Europe with a 104-81 victory over an Austrian team in Vienna Monday night but plans for the remainder of the trip were uncertain.

Meanwhile, the 19 - member U. S. swimming team arrived in Moscow to compete in an international meet this weekend. The team was treated routinely in line with the Soviet announcement that it would take no action in events involving other countries besides the United States. The meet involves a number of countries besides the United States and Russia.

Plans went ahead in Berkeley and Los Angeles for replacement meets. The Berkeley meet was renamed the All-American Invitational and Los Angeles promoters invited Australian and New Zealand teams to compete in their meet.

Frederick Humphreys, manager of the Australian track and field squad, said he thought the Australians would accept the invitation.

At the same time, the Russians and Poles agreed to compete against each other at Minsk, Russia, July 23-24, the weekend the Soviets were to be in Los Angeles.

Polish officials seemed saddened over the cancellation and so were the American athletes.

"If only the Russians had waited a day or two to announce their decision," said one Pole, "we would have been on our way."

The announcement came only hours before the Polish delegation was to leave for the United States.

Ralph Boston, veteran Olympian and holder of the world record in the broad jump, called the Polish cancellation unfortunate. "There always had been good relations between the athletes," Boston said.

The Americans lost to the Russian men' 118-112 at Kiev last summer after winning six of the previous seven meets. At Warsaw last year, the Americans beat the Poles 118-93.

Cards Announce Photo and Autograph Night

On July 19, during the opener of a three - game series with Atlanta at new Busch Stadium, the Cardinals for the second year will distribute Photo - Autograph Folders to fans in attendance.

The attractive folder contains individual pictures and printed autographs of Manager Red Schoendienst, all Cardinal players and members of the coaching staff. A Red Bird roster is also included.

Tickets for the three-game set with Atlanta can be purchased over the counter or by mail at Busch stadium, St. Louis, Missouri 63102.

Steinbeck Fires Challenge Back

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. AP - John Steinbeck responded Monday to a plea by Soviet poet Gevgeny Yevtushenko that the American novelist speak out on the war in Viet Nam.

In an open letter to the Russian published in the Long Island newspaper Newsday, Nobel and Pulitzer prizewinner Steinbeck chided Yevtushenko.

"You know well how I detest all war," wrote Steinbeck, "but for this one I have a particular and personal hatred. I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it."

"But, my beloved friend, you asked me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join in denouncing the whole war."

Handless Batboy Finds Some Big League Pals

By DICK YOUNG
Globe-Democrat Special Writer

In a locker, in the corner of the American League clubhouse at Busch Memorial Stadium, stood a Louisville slugger bat. Burned into the barrel was the name, "Jay Mazzone."

A young boy in an American League uniform walked over to the locker, picked up the bat and flipped it fondly and you watched him and marveled, because Jay Mazzone has no hands.

Jay Mazzone was the batboy for the American League All-Stars Tuesday. On other days, he is the batboy for the visiting club at Baltimore. Some players will tell you he is the best darned batboy in the American League.

When Jay Mazzone was 2 1/2 he played with fire. That was 10 years ago. His face has the wrinkled scars of fire from ear to ear, where a man would grow a beard, and where his hands should be there are claws in the shape of a hooked-v, and each is operated by a long, thin cable which runs up the arm sheath.

There is hardly anything a batboy in the big leagues can do that Jay Mazzone cannot do, and there are some little things Jay Mazzone does extra because he has the attentiveness and the desire of the handicapped to succeed.

A little more than a week ago, Jay Mazzone was notified by Joe Cronin, the A. L. president, that he had been chosen batboy for the All-Star game. The Twins were in Baltimore at the time. The first thing the kid did was to go to Sam Mele, who was the manager of the American League team, and ask him if there were any little services he might do for him during the All-Star game. Since then, as the names of the players were announced in the newspapers, Jay Mazzone would study them, and remember what each man expects of him.

"They are all different," says Jay Mazzone.

Somebody asked for an example and the kid smiled.

"Well," he said, "there is Birdie Tebbetts. Every inning he has to have Sanka. He is a very nice man."

Somebody asked who else Jay Mazzone liked among the visitors to Baltimore.

He thought a moment. "Whitey Ford," he said finally. "He always talks to me, and Ed Stanky."

Jay Mazzone thought of more names, and they came faster and soon you got the idea. He likes everyone, and everyone likes him.

The fellows Jay Mazzone really likes are the ones across the field each day in Baltimore, the ones he roots for, the Orioles. That is the tough part of the job. He is on the other side, and he must root in silence. He cannot cheer, like the other kids in Baltimore, when Frank Robinson hits a homer, or Brooks.

A batboy gets $2 a day, which isn't much, plus tips, which are generous. Before Mele and the Twins played their last game in Baltimore last week, they had something extra for Jay Mazzone. They took up a collection, and Mele handed the kid $170 and said, here, get yourself a new suit and things for your trip to St. Louis.

When it came time to come to the All-Star game, Jay Mazzone had an offer of a lift. The Angels had wound up in Baltimore, and they were using the White Sox plane to fly back L. A. They were stopping off in St. Louis to drop their All-Stars, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop, and they would be glad to take the kid along, and his dad, who is an undercover man on the Maryland State Police.

As the plane neared St. Louis, they handed Jay Mazzone something. It was money. $410 dollars of it. They had taken another collection.

"Have a good time in St. Louis," said Bob Rodgers.

There are some very wonderful people in this world, and some of them are in baseball.

And then there are the ones who can leave Mickey Mantle out of an All-Star game.

Scientists Believe Hail Control Near

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Scientists, concluding the largest study of its kind, say they believe they can help reduce hail and prevent millions of dollars in crop damage.

But they are uncertain whether preliminary findings would be applicable outside of the Northern Plains area.

Dr. Richard Schleusener, head of a team of scientists doing the study here in conjunction with the National Science Foundation, said the team is optimistic that cloud modification through cloud seeding could reduce hail and increase rain.

The group, including 70 weather scientists representing 23 organizations, conducted a 30-day survey using a maze of equipment to change the composition of clouds.

"What has been accomplished during this test in western South Dakota will point the way toward hail mitigation procedures in the foreseeable future," Dr. Schleusener said.

It will be several years before continuing field programs will be able to provide firm conclusions, he said, but that the scientists were optimistic about initial findings in the study dubbed "Project Hailswath."

During the 30 - day period, there were 10 in which cloud conditions enabled seeding with silver iodide by various methods and leaving other areas unseeded for comparison purposes. The boxscore for the project indicated less hail in the seeded areas than the corresponding non-seeded areas.

Dr. Schleusener said there was no way of knowing from the study, a pilot project, to what extent hail was reduced and rain increased.

Rainfall during the period was .43 of an inch in the seeded area, .29 of an inch in the non-seeded area, he said.

The scientist said weather is influenced by different factors in the various regions of the nation and that preliminary findings may not apply outside of the Northern Plains.

Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Lexington, Mass., one of the participants in the study, said the benefits of suppressing hail would be many times over the cost of cloud seeding. He said the nation has an annual loss of $300 million due to hail, including $150 million in direct and $150 million in indirect damage.

Easy Living Blamed For Flabby, Stooped Postwar Generation

LOS ANGELES AP -- The postwar babies have grown into a flabby generation of Americans, puffed by the easy life, and stooped by lengthy television vigils.

That's the opinion of athletic trainers George Sullivan of the University of Nebraska and William Newell of Purdue University, at the 43rd annual American Physical Therapy Association meeting here.

"They're too fat," Sullivan said Monday of Americans born in 1945 and 1947.

"Youngsters use power mowers to mow the lawn, ride bicycles almost as soon as they've learned to walk, and then, of course, graduate to cars and motor bikes," Newell said.

"They get round shoulders and curvature of the spine from sitting in front of television like this," Sullivan said, demonstrating a slumped position with most of the body weight on the back of the neck.

Du Quoin Fair To Feature Four Days of Racing

DU QUOIN, Ill --An estimated $264,540 in purses, including $125,000 for top place- winners in the Hambletonian, will again make the 1966 Du Quoin State Fair one of the richest of all non- wagering harness racing meetings in the world.

A major stop on the Grand Circuit for years, the Du Quoin Fair features four other days of quality harness racing in addition to Hambletonian Day, Wednesday, Aug. 31, when top three - year - old trotters seek the most coveted prize in the business.

Grand Circuit week opens Monday, Aug. 29, at Du Quoin when a full card of Illinois Breeder's Futurity races offers purses totaling $14,000.

Tuesday's lineup is highlighted by the $25,000 Castleton Farm Stake for two-year-old trotters. A Breeders' Filly Stake for two - year-old trotters offers a $7,000 purse and four overnight races add $6,000 more to the day's total purse.

Although the Hambletonian captures prime attention Wednesday, the McMahon Memorial State for two - year - old pacers has a $24,000 tag and is a hotly - contested event each year. Other races for two and three - year - old pacers Wednesday are worth $6,000 each.

Thursday, Sept. 1, will be another day of outstanding racing. Feature event is the Hambletonian Maturity for four - year-old trotters and 18, including Noble Victory and Armbro Flight, are still eligible for the $20,000 event. Breeders' FKI $20,000 event. Breeders' filly Stakes for three - year - old pacers and trotters carry purses of $14,000 and four overnights assure at least 10 heats with seven different fields.

As far as horses are concerned, Friday is Land of Lincoln Day as the afternoon is reserved for Illinois Colt Stakes. Daily post time is 1:30 p.m. CDT.

Billy Galladay Sinks Hole-In-One

Bill Golladay, former Sikeston resident, made a hole in-one at the Sikeston Country Club Tuesday afternoon on hole 6, using a seven iron. Golladay is visiting in Sikeston from Corpus Christi, Tex.

Bertrand Downs Dexter

BERTRAND -- Dexter fell short of the home town nine here last night in Connie Mack play, by going down to defeat 12-11 in eight innings.

Doug Simmons, who relieved Dwayne Byrnes in the sixth inning was credited with the win.

Walter Lane started for Dexter but was relieved in the fifth inning by Ron White who pitched an inning and was relieved by Ken Walker who was charged with the loss.

Fred Brenderman pushed across the RBI's in the second inning for Bertrand, with a homer.

Bertrand is to travel to Poplar Bluff Thursday.

Split Season On Mourning Doves

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri will have another split season on mourning doves this year under regulations announced Monday by the State Conservation Commission.

The season will run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 10 and again from Nov. 10 through Nov. 29. Limits are 12 a day and 24 in possession.

For rails and gallinules the season will be Sept. 1 through Nov. 9 with limits of 15 a day and 30 in possession.

For Wilson's snipe and woodcock the season runs from Oct. 11 through Nov. 29 with limits of five a day and 10 in possession for woodcock and eight a day and 17 in possession for snipe.

Special permits for the early teal season, Sept. 17 through Sept. 28, may be bought until Aug. 18.

Let's Keep Our Teeth-We Can PRECEDE: Despite modern knowledge, dental disease is on the rise. In this country alone, it has been estimated that about 97 per cent of the population suffers from dental decay or diseases of the gums and other supporting tissues of the teeth. Yet dentists tell us that most tooth loss can be prevented, that most dental disease can be stopped before it starts. So that you may act to improve your health, Sikeston Standard in cooperation with the Southeast Missouri society today begins a series of articles on "Your Dental Health."

But it has only been in recent centuries that man has considered his teeth to be of real importance. Until the major killing diseases were brought under some measure of control, man had too many other things to worry about. Why be concerned about keeping his teeth when his life expectancy was only 35 or 40 years?

But now, the average man lives until age 70 -- and in his seventieth year he should still have his natural teeth.

If we follow the rules of good dental health, the American Dental Association says, our teeth can last a lifetime. Nature meant them to.

Strange, isn't it, that although our teeth are naturally strong and although we know more than ever about how to keep our teeth, most Americans suffer from dental disease.

A recent national survey showed dental patients under four years of age had an average of three teeth in need of fillings:

--those aged 15 to 19 had five on the average. And these figures don't include those persons who never see a dentist.

--one American in eight has no teeth at all.

Yet if we understand the cause of tooth loss and act on our knowledge, we need not be a nation of dental cripples.

What are our teeth like?

The crown is protected by a hard outer coat of enamel. The bulk of the tooth under the enamel consists of dentin. Inside the dentin is the pulp, a delicate tissue, which contains nerves and blood vessels.

The root of the tooth is covered with Cementum, which serves to bind the tooth to the jawbones and the gums by means of periodontal fibers projecting from it. The jawbone, periodontal fibers, and the gums are the tooth's supporting tissues.

The enamel protects the tooth against damage from the outside and provides the hard surface we need for biting and chewing. The dentin, which is also hard, and the pulp, provide the pathways for tooth nourishment. Food for the tooth is carried by the blood stream through the jawbone and into the tooth's blood vessels in the pulp.

So long as the teeth remain intact and the supporting tissues are kept strong, our teeth remain healthy.

Good dental habits assure good tooth health. In future articles, we will discuss what these dental habits are.

COFFEE CORNER

by Cherie

Boy, am I ever pooped! Thanks to my general coming apart at the seams, it was deemed best I get someone in to help me do my housework, and I believe all this extra aid has just about done me in.

I felt like you do sometimes when you wash your hair before going to the beauty parlour, I just didn't want anyone seeing certain spots before I'd had a chance to clean and straighten----particularly the "black hole of Calcutta", or in other words, the boy's room. I never saw so many broken toys in all my life!! You know all these new modern gadgets that are made of bright plastic and are so sanitary? Well, I wish they were a little more germy and a little less breakable. You know, the only toys my kids can play with that are still intact, are the things they have dragged down from Mama Mickey's attic that belonged to me ---some were even hers. Oh, for the days of rubber and steel and nice solid wooden blocks---it's a cinch they wouldn't cost anymore than these cheap plastic items you get the pleasure of being drastically overpriced for, and then get to take home in a box to put together (always with at least one or two screws or bolts missing). But, back to the cleaning---and that seems to be where I constantly am---I waded through the boy's room throwing out everything in sight and lo and behold I found that the furniture was still in there, so I cleaned the room and felt like my help could now make it on their own. Not so!!! I had to show, if not physically, then verbally, everything I wanted done until by the time they left I was exhausted. They had been at it for three nerve wracking hours longer than it takes me by myself, and for this I was paying, no wonder I was pooped! Is there any answer? I hope nobody recommends anything else like this to help me lighten my load or to aid my physical state, as I don't think I can stand it. Just the other day the doctor advised me to take the tape off my toe--- I did --- Charles bounced into bed and ---%#$!! I knew he would, I'd been hiding that toe from Charles ever since it got broken. I've ducked his feet, picked mine up off the floor when he's entered the room, gone to all sorts of ridiculous lengths to keep him from tripping and stepping on it, but I just somehow never expected him to sit on it! Well, I've learned---now I'm back in tape again and right back where I started from, and now everytime Charles gets ready to sit ---I'll stand!! So, as I said before, please no more advice from anyone as it's just not working out well at all. However, if you'll allow me, I'll give you some very good advice on a nice cool summer salad, one that is particularly nice with baked ham.

CHEESE PINEAPPLE SALAD

Heat 2 cups of crushed pineapple

Add juice of 1 lemon and 1 cup sugar and stir until dissolved.

Soak 2 TBS. of Knox plain gelatin for 10 minutes in 1/2 cup of cold water. Then add to hot mixture and mix well. When cool and beginning to set, add 1 cup of grated American cheese and 1/2 pint of beaten, whipping cream.

I make this in a ring mold and put the dressing for it in the center and it is very attractive.

DRESSING

Mix 2 TBS. each of finely chopped celery, onion, and green pepper to 1 cup of mayonnaise.

Sufficient Grounds

OCALA, Fla. AP - Mat Robinson, 94, won a divorce - with the argument that his wife took care of the dog but didn't take care of him.

Robinson said that about 10 years ago his wife, Charity, 66, set up separate housekeeping in his house at Ocala, Fla., although he paid the bills.

He said she cooked meals for the dog but not for him.

Circuit Court Judge D. R. Smith said Mrs. Robinson was guilty of "obstinate and continuous desertion" and gave her two weeks to leave the house. They had been married 16 years.

24-Hour Time System

CHICAGO AP - The United States will switch to a 24-hour time system in the next five years, says a watch company executive.

Irving A. Kathman, a vice president of the Gruen Watch Co., said America would follow Europe's lead in adopting the 24-hour clock because of the influence of this nation's space effort.

Thomas E. Richter

Appoint Richter

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- President Elmer Ellis announced today that Thomas (Tom) E. Richter will succeed Thomas C. Morelock as director of the University of Missouri Office of Public Information Sept. 1.

Richter joined the office Jan. 24 as associate director of public information and special events. He came here from St. Louis, where for the last seventeen years he has been assistant to the president and manager of the public relations department of the Automobile Club of Missouri, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association (AAA).

Morelock, who opened the offic in 1945, will retire Aug. 31 as director and as professor of journalism.

Richter was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, his native city, and at the University of Missouri where he received a Bachelor of Journalism degree and an ROTC commission in 1942. He entered the Army that year and served as a field artillery officer for two and a half years.

Upon returning to St. Louis after World War II, Richter organized and headed the public relations, merchandising, and advertising department of a radio station, and spent most of one year as a public relations counsel before joining the staff of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Richter is past president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis, the University Journalism Alumni Association, the St. Louis Journalism Alumni Association of the University, and the St. Louis chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

He is former secretary of the St. Louis chapter of the Public Relations Society of America and has been accredited by the national organization. He is also a member of the American College Public Relations Association, associate member of the Missouri Press Association, and vice - chairman of the Missouri Highway Users Conference. He is a former member of the American Automobile Association National Committee on Urban Transportation, the AAA National Highway Committee, and the Board of Directors of the Missouri Good Roads Association.

Columbia organizations in which he holds membership are the Kiwanis Club and the Columbia Country Club.

Richter married the former Rachel Palmer of Sturgeon, Mo., in 1942. They live at 2614 Luan Court in Columbia with their two children, Scot, 21 years old, and Linda, 19, both of whom are students in the University of Missouri.

The U.S. Government Printing Office is considered the world's largest printer.

Code Office Receives 33,669 Documents

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Uniform Commercial Code office received 33,669 documents in its first year of operation, Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick reported today.

It averaged 136 filings a day on mortgaged personal property and collected almost $60,000 in fees for the year, with operating expenses under $50,000.

Most of the filings are routine coverage of merchandise held by retailers. Several listed male and female chinchillas as the secured property. One listed $8,000 in U. S. half dollars.

Robinson said that about 10 years ago his wife, Charity, 66, set up separate housekeeping in his house at Ocala, Fla., although he paid the bills.

He said she cooked meals for the dog but not for him.

Circuit Court Judge D. R. Smith said Mrs. Robinson was guilty of "obstinate and continuous desertion" and gave her two weeks to leave the house. They had been married 16 years.

24-Hour Time System

CHICAGO AP - The United States will switch to a 24-hour time system in the next five years, says a watch company executive.

Irving A. Kathman, a vice president of the Gruen Watch Co., said America would follow Europe's lead in adopting the 24-hour clock because of the influence of this nation's space effort.

Thomas E. Richter

Appoint Richter

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- President Elmer Ellis announced today that Thomas (Tom) E. Richter will succeed Thomas C. Morelock as director of the University of Missouri Office of Public Information Sept. 1.

Richter joined the office Jan. 24 as associate director of public information and special events. He came here from St. Louis, where for the last seventeen years he has been assistant to the president and manager of the public relations department of the Automobile Club of Missouri, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association (AAA).

Morelock, who opened the offic in 1945, will retire Aug. 31 as director and as professor of journalism.

Richter was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, his native city, and at the University of Missouri where he received a Bachelor of Journalism degree and an ROTC commission in 1942. He entered the Army that year and served as a field artillery officer for two and a half years.

Upon returning to St. Louis after World War II, Richter organized and headed the public relations, merchandising, and advertising department of a radio station, and spent most of one year as a public relations counsel before joining the staff of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Richter is past president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis, the University Journalism Alumni Association, the St. Louis Journalism Alumni Association of the University, and the St. Louis chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

He is former secretary of the St. Louis chapter of the Public Relations Society of America and has been accredited by the national organization. He is also a member of the American College Public Relations Association, associate member of the Missouri Press Association, and vice - chairman of the Missouri Highway Users Conference. He is a former member of the American Automobile Association National Committee on Urban Transportation, the AAA National Highway Committee, and the Board of Directors of the Missouri Good Roads Association.

Columbia organizations in which he holds membership are the Kiwanis Club and the Columbia Country Club.

Richter married the former Rachel Palmer of Sturgeon, Mo., in 1942. They live at 2614 Luan Court in Columbia with their two children, Scot, 21 years old, and Linda, 19, both of whom are students in the University of Missouri.

The U.S. Government Printing Office is considered the world's largest printer.

Code Office Receives 33,669 Documents

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Uniform Commercial Code office received 33,669 documents in its first year of operation, Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick reported today.

It averaged 136 filings a day on mortgaged personal property and collected almost $60,000 in fees for the year, with operating expenses under $50,000.

Most of the filings are routine coverage of merchandise held by retailers. Several listed male and female chinchillas as the secured property. One listed $8,000 in U. S. half dollars.

HERE'S A DISH FOR FAMILY MEAL..Serve Tuna Salad-Duo hot or cold--either way it's the sure way to satisfy appetites. Tuna's an excellent source of protein and much more economical than most protein foods.

Tuna Salad-Duo Can Be Served Hot or Cold

One of the delightful poems in Alice in Wonderland begins, "I sent a message to the fish; I told them this is what I wish," and goes on to tell how the fish replied: "The little fishes' answer was, 'We cannot do it, sir, because.' "

Obviously, the frustrated petitioner had not addressed himself to a school of tuna, because a tuna never says no. Whatever kind of meal you want -- a casserole, a curry, a salad or a chowder, tuna supplies you with an excellent, economical and tasty main dish ingredient that needs only to be removed from the can. Tuna is rich in protein value comparable to that of lean beef- and just look at the price! Quite a saving when you serve tuna for family meals.

In the summer, a basic tuna salad mixture obliges you twice over because it leads a double life. If you like your warm-weather meals hot, place the mixture on thick tomato slices set on toasted buns and make tuna burgers. You can broil them in five minutes. If you prefer a cold lunch or dinner, use the tuna salad to stuff tomatoes, artfully cut to resemble tulips

Use the tuna with the vegetable oil it is packed in for the basic mixture. Tuna packed in oil emerges from the can in all its glory because the vegetable oil, by covering the surface of the fish, actually seals in the flavor. It also helps the fish to retain its attractive appearance and texture. Moreover, whatever you plan to do with the tuna, the oil will fall in with your plan. In this case, it slides easily into the mayonnaise.

Once you've made your choice between tuna burgers and tomato tulips, make the rest of your menu easy, too. Serve potato sticks with the burgers and French bread with the stuffed tomatoes, and bring on a nice tall glass of iced tea or coffee. Everybody will heave a sigh of relief on two counts: the meal is light, as it should be in summer, and you haven't worked up a fever producing it.

TUNA-SALAD-DUO
(Hot and Cold)

BASIC TUNA MIXTURE:
2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ozs. ea.) tuna in vegetable oil
1/2 c. finely diced celery
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. mayonnaise
1 tsp. lemon juice

Combine ingredients; blend thoroughly.

GRILLED TUNA BURGERS:

Split 3 hamburger buns; toast halves. Place a thick slice of tomato on each half, top with tuna mixture. Place under broiler heat 5 minutes, or until browned. Yield: 6 servings.

TUNA-TOMATO TULIPS:

Cut each of 6 tomatoes into 5 or 6 sections almost to stem end; spread apart slightly. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt, fill with tuna mixture. Serve in lettuce cup, garnished with ripe olive. Yield: 6 servings.

Drinking Difficulty

Weightlessness, such as prevails in a space capsule in orbit, renders it difficult for astronauts to pour or drink liquids from an open vessel, so they must be squeezed out of tubes. Otherwise, they would form globules and float around the space capsule.

Truce No Nearer In Airline Strike

By STEPHEN M. AUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists today accused the five airlines shut down by a strike of overestimating by at least $25 million the cost to them of a settlement proposed by the union.

Joseph W. Ramsey, IAM vice president and chief negotiator for the union, said there was no indication of any "give" in the management's stand at this time.

He added that the union was ready to make compromises on proposals but would not take one cent less than its previous request.

"We have stated our minimum and plan to make no departure from it," he said.

Ramsey's reference to a compromise offer had to do with the union's proposal that employes required to have licenses be given a premium of 10 cents an hour for each license.

The negotiations recessed Monday afternoon to permit the unions, at the request of Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, to provide statistical data as to the cost to the airlines of the union's minimum request for higher wages and various working benefits.

Ramsey, on returning to the negotiating rooms today, said that the union statistics indicated that the airline estimate of $114 million was at least $25 million too high.

Ramsey noted that the airlines had said they probably would be unable to reach an agreement this week because of the union stand. He said, "There is not much to be encouraged about at the moment."

Reynolds conferred separately with the union officials and with representatives of the five airlines closed down by the IAM strike -- Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

CONTINUED

The origin of the privilege against self-incrimination is often ascribed to the desire to prevent physical torture. But even in the later Eighteenth Century people were not particularly sensitive to torture. The objection to torture was not the agonies it inflicted but the unreliability of the evidence which it elicited. The development of the privilege in Anglo-Saxon law goes back to the struggles in Tudor times over the power of the ecclesiastical courts to try and punish for heresies and other errors; in exercising these powers they employed the "oath ex-officio," requiring (like a modern "PSQ") that the suspect swear to his innocence, and then answer fully and truthfully all subsequent questions put to him. The result was not to elicit the truth, since the investigation was into the intangibles of belief, but to make it easy to entrap the subject into inconsistencies, apparent perjuries, and confessions of guilty as meaningless (although just as fatal to the defendant) as those with which the Russian treason trials of recent times have made us familiar.

When men are, in effect, tried for seditious belief (however the charge may be worded, or whatever the extra-judicial character of the tribunal or the punishments imposed), conviction can be obtained only by forcing them to incriminate or entrap themselves. A striking demonstration of the meaning of the ancient oath ex-officio (and of the reason for the privilege against self-incrimination which resulted from it) was provided by the Lattimore case in 1952, perhaps the one most extraordinary episode in the war upon subversion.

Missouri Press Report

by Senator

Edward V. Long

President Johnson has signed the Freedom of Information bill which I introduced and pushed through the Senate last year.

His signature marks the climax of many years of struggle in behalf of the people's right to know. Senator Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., began the effort to open government records and when I succeeded him upon his death I took up the fight. Finally, On July 31, 1964, was able to get my bill passed by the Senate after public hearings before the Subcommittee on Administrative Practice, of which I am chairman. The House failed to take action on the bill in the 88th Congress, so we began the fight again in the 89th Congress. Again the bill I authored was passed by the Senate, October 13, 1965.

Each year, Freedom of Information picked up more and more support. The public was becoming more and more aware of the importance of the right to know what their government is doing.

This year, with tremendous support from the press in Missouri and all over the country, the House passed the bill with important leadership from Congressman John E. Moss.

I know I speak for all Missourians in congratulating President Johnson for signing this bill and for ringing in a new era of hope for freedom of the press and the public's right to know.

Over 30,000 Missouri young men and women have taken part in Neighborhood Youth Corps projects during the past two years, according to the latest figures.

During the twelve months just ended, 11,155 Missourians took part in 76 Neighborhood Youth Corps projects. Last year there were only 53 projects in Missouri.

The U.S. Department of Labor has just reported that the Federal investment in these Missouri projects for the two years totals $16,620,929. Missouri communities contributed an additional $4,200,000.

The Youth Corps provides:

--Part-time work for youth 16 to 22 in order to help them stay in school.

--Full-time work training for youth who have left school but who are untrained to hold a job. Corps members in Missouri train in such jobs as nurses aides, dietitian's assistants, clerks and typists, auto mechanics, draftsmen, and landscape assistants.

Missouri has just won approval for three of the nation's first mental health centers to be established under the new Community Mental Health Centers Act we passed in the Congress last year.

The centers, located in Kansas City, Columbia, and St. Louis, will serve population areas including 575,000 Missourians.

To help the centers expand their in-patient and out-patient staffs, the U.S. Public Health Service is providing $1,570,856 for the centers during the next twelve months.

K.C. Firemen End Strike

KANSAS CITY AP -- The long standing dispute between Kansas City firemen and the city cooled to its usual simmering point Tuesday as Missouri National Guard troops were withdrawn and firefighters resumed normal shifts.

The firemen's four-day work stoppage ended when they voted 391 to 90 with 18 abstentions to accept a six-point city proposal as a basis for negotiations.

The National Guard, which was posted at the 44 firehouses after scattered incidents of vandalism, was released after a City Council resolution declared the emergency passed.

Stanton Gladden, president of Fire Fighters Local 42, said many members were incensed at Mayor Ilus W. Davis's "lack of faith in the union." Davis had refused to call off the National Guard and police on duty until the voting was completed.

Atlantic City's famous Boardwalk is 60 feet wide and five miles long.

Supreme Court Leaves Charter Amendments On Election Ballot

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court refused Tuesday to rehear the April 11 decision having the effect of putting two charter amendments on the St. Louis County ballot in the Nov. 8 general election.

The dispute started in September, 1964, when the county council voted, 4-3, to put the amendments before the people.

One would make the office of county engineer appointive instead of elective. The other would extend the county merit system to certain employes.

The county election board declined to put them on the November, 1964, ballot on the grounds they were emergency matters and should have been approved by at least five of the seven council members.

But the Supreme Court said it is a judicial function to decide whether a legislative act is an emergency. It held the two charter proposals were not in any sense emergencies and ordered the election board to put them on the ballot next November.

Voice of Innocence

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. AP - "Which of us has not done something of which we were ashamed?" asked the Rev. George S. Nable, preaching at the annual novena of the Sisters of Mount Carmel Sunday night.

Father Nable said he would redirect his question to persons 12 years old and above.

Whether you're walking, driving or boating, Southwestern Bell does its best to see you're never far from dependable communications.

For calling Mom to say you'll be a few minutes late — the game went into extra innings. For calling ahead while on vacation to tell the folks when you'll arrive. For calling friends to invite them up for a day at the lake.

Whatever the reason, the season or the place, a public phone is mighty handy to have around. So handy, we plan to install 2,000 more during 1966. We're making your telephone service—already the world's best — even better.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MO.
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Frisco Street from Ruth Street to Dorothy Street extended in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.50 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of July, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

Morehouse News

Mrs. Nelson Gruen accompanied three boys to the Blue Mountain Methodist Camp in New Fredericktown. They will spend this week at camp. The three boys that went were John Shaptaw, Dougie Hammock, and Eugene Gruen.

The Darlene Sears Intermediate G.A.'s met on Wednesday at the First Baptist Church in Morehouse. President Sharon Breeden called the meeting to order. Linda Neal read the prayer calendar and Peggy Orr lead in prayer. Mrs. Bohannon gave the devotional period. They made July plans which include a slumber party for July 15 and they will be going to camp next week. Peggy Orr served refreshments of brownies and soft drinks. Those attending were Peggy Orr, Sharon Breeden, Debbie Payne, Linda Neal, Carlene Winkle, and Mrs. Bohannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Crain and six children of Cocoa Beach, Fla., spent Tuesday evening at a barbecue at the home of his sister and family and Mr. and Mrs. Slim Parks and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Marrel Newton left Thursday morning to visit her sister, Mrs. Glaydys Huey of Hayti, where they were overnight guests and they spent the weekend with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Fulkerson and children, Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Appleton, Mrs. Hullie Baty, Mrs. Eula Fay Stroud and daughter, Linda were weekend guests of Mrs. Martha Stroud, Arcola, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hally from Birmingham, Ala., visited the later's cousins, Miss Pearl Gregory, Clyde Gregory, and Mrs. Charlie Sturgeon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Guess of Kevil, Ky., visited Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gregory Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Goodwin and children left Wednesday for St. Louis to visit their daughters, Mrs. Shirley Ledbetter and family and Mrs. Wanda Dillard and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Agee and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jim young, Herbert Brown, all of Morehouse and Miss Jean Groff of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wyrick and family of Poplar Bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Adkins had as fourth of July dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Jackson, Larry and Linda, Cypress, Calif; Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Adkins and children Linda and Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bryant and baby, Mrs. Loretta McGuirt and baby, Marilyn McGuirt and Rayborn Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Jackson and two children returned home Thursday to Cypress, Calif. after spending a two-week vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milem Adkins of Morehouse and his mother, Mrs. Mattie Jackson of Sikeston.

Harold Case celebrated his birthday Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Harold Case. Five of the six children came home to help their father celebrate his birthday. Those attending were Lt. and Mrs. P. M. (Fredda) Wethington and son, Midway Island; Mrs. (Betty) Payne and children, Masiwa, Japan; Sgt. and Mrs Darrel (Bonnie) Wilson and two children, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin (Helen) Taylor and sons, Rockford, Ill; Mr. and Mrs. Merlin (Esther) Dewitt, Sikeston. Mrs. (Delores) King, Encitas, Calif. was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle (Slim) Sparks entertained Sunday with a barbecue. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Belling, Florisant; Mrs. Ray Boley and daughter Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Boley, Morley; Jack Luil, Dover, Ark.; Mrs. Dorothy Boley, Sikeston; Sam Sparks, and Norva, Dennis, and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle (Slim) Sparks had all their children home on the fourth of July for the first time in five years for a family reunion. Those attending were Tommy Sparks in the United States Navy stationed in Norfolk, Va., Mrs. (Mary) Metzger, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Russell (Laura Lee) Bolin and two children, Millington, Tenn., and Norva, Dennis, and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Rhyon and three children left Thursday for their home in Phoenix, Ariz. after spending a three weeks' vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rhyons.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brown and daughters of St. Louis spend the fourth of July with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Seagraves.

Mrs. Jerry Lee and children Clayton, Sherry, and Karrol have returned to their home in Cartersville, Ga., after a two weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Seagraves.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Orr and children spent Sunday and the fourth of July with her brother, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Brasfield of Pocahontas, Ark. Mr. Orr and son, Jimmy spent Sunday night with his sister, Mr. and Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Elaine Moore and daughter, Claire of St. Louis are spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschill Gray.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MO.
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Frisco Street from Ruth Street to Dorothy Street extended in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special t a x bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction o f said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.50 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of July, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? (Mark 8:36)

PRAYER: Eternal God and Father of all mankind, we praise Thy holy name for being near us. Help us to be conscious of Thy never-failing love for us, and to live in obedience to Thy In Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a large organization and all telephone calls go through the switchboard, with the exception of the executives' private lines, which, of course, I cannot use.

My husband called me this morning and I knew at once he was bombed and calling from a bar. It is Jack's habit to telephone and pick a fight when he knows he's in the doghouse -- which he certainly was, because he didn't come home last night.

I lost my temper and used some rather salty language. Jack said some things he shouldn't have said and it was not a conversation you'd want an outsider to hear.

As I was leaving the office for lunch, I encountered one of the telephone operators. She gave me a wise-apple smirk and asked, "And how are things at YOUR house?" I felt like strangling her.

Should I write an anonymous letter to the personnel manager about this snoop? If she listens in on my conversations she undoubtedly listens in on others. Your advice is wanted. -- INVADED PRIVACY.

Dear I.P.: Most telephone operators have very little interest and even less time to tune in on family fights. The woman's greeting was probably an unfortunate coincidence. In the future make it a rule never to discuss private business on the phone and then you don't need to worry about eavesdroppers.

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please, please -- let me know how a man can tell a woman that he is in love with her, ask her to marry him, let her clue in family and friends, make all sorts of plans, and then change his mind? If he was only infatuated why would he propose marriage?

This happened to me and I am so humiliated I can't hold up my head. My friends tell me that my former fiance loves me but he is afraid of the responsibility of marriage. They say I should be patient and wait, and that he will come back.

What I need to know is how long should I wait? It has been eight months and I have not heard one word from him. Am I being a silly romantic to believe that true love can overcome any obstacle?-- LEIGH

Dear Leigh: You are right. TRUE love can overcome any obstacle, but from your account of the way the young man has treated you, I would doubt that this is true love.

I suspect your friends are trying to be kind, but I don't think it's an act of kindness to give you false hope. If you have not heard one word from your ex-love in eight months I suggest you write him off and make new friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Please give us an answer to a question that is bothering us. Our daughter is 17. At first we thought she was just putting on weight. Now we know she is pregnant.

Last week she told us she and her boy friend want to get married because he may be called into the service soon. He is 21. What kind of a wedding should a pregnant girl have? -- NO NAME PLEASE.

Dear No Name: A QUICK one-- with as little hoopla as possible.

Confidential to NEED A WISER HEAD THAN MINE: There's nothing wrong with your head, my dear. Your letter was an extremely good one. Those "friends" are giving you a bum steer. I've never heard of such "biblical advice." It may be a little late for you to "go forth and multiply" but a marriage that offers companionship in the evening of your lives makes a great deal of sense. Good luck, and God bless you.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the bobby traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Children Experience, Learn in Summer

by CAROL MILLER

During the summer vacation children have a tendency to forget part of what they learned in school. Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the Sikeston Public Schools, was contacted to find out how parents can best make the summer into a learning experience for their children.

Twitty believes that the amount of summer regression is reasonably slight and that the experiences children have in the summer may compensate for any knowledge they might forget.

Daytime television in the summer is especially geared to the younger set. Kiddie programs tell stories and explain questions on the child's level; quiz shows which emphasize vocabulary and others which have question-answer sessions increase the child's knowledge of the world.

In "Preparing Your Child for School" by Hazel F. Gabbard, family vacations were named one of the best means to add to a child's compilation of experiences. When he returns from his trip, his play is usually stimulated as he recreates the places he has been, and his vocabulary is enlarged.

A child will also learn from his friends and their experiences while playing, from the movies he sees, and from almost everything he does, but his parents are his real teachers. In his earliest days, he learned to brush his teeth and change his clothing by imitation of his parents. As he grows, his parents and the enviroment they create contribute much toward giving him a headstart or a delay on the road to learning.

As Twitty said, "Children are not necessarily created equal. Those born to well-read, intelligent parents naturally have an advantage in the speech and environment they have been exposed to. This can make a difference in their early years of schooling."

Reading, more than anything else, opens the entire world to a child's mind, but there is one problem. A child can not read during the summer months if he has not learned to read in school.

However, the parent can encourage reading by making books available in the home or by taking the child on frequent trips to the library. By developing an appreciation of literature in the child, the parent can increase the child's knowledge, enlarge his vocabulary, and add to his understanding of life.

One way to make the child practice written communication is to encourage letterwriting. This can be a pleasurable undertaking. He can believe that grandma would enjoy receiving a letter from him, which she probably would. In this way the child can get the satisfaction of doing something worthwhile for someone, and the parent will have a chance to refresh the child's grammar and punctuation by correcting his mistakes and explaining them.

"Although summer experiences are valuable they can not take the place of regular school work," Twitty stated. He also said that schools are to teach children five fundamentals; these are communication, reading, facility in using numbers accurately, living with people, and a desire to work.

Parents play a major part in the child's learning in the wintertime too. If the parents are aware of the schools--read about them, visit them, and show concern over them -- they naturally transmit this attitude of educational importance to their children.

Parents can encourage good school work by showing an interest in what the child is doing, commending him for good work, and then working with the school to remedy poor performance.

One important thing pointed out in "Your Child as a First Grader," prepared by the staff of the Sikeston Public Schools, is to avoid comparing children. If a group of youngsters were lined up for a race, no one would expect any two of them to reach the finish line at exactly the same time. It is the same way with school work.

In general Sikeston can be proud of its part in living up to the standards of education. Twitty said, "Our community is way above average in giving support to the city's schools, and this fact is reflected in the schools we have and the high composite score of our classes on standardized tests."

Washington Report
Sen. Stuart Symington

IN THE SPECIAL ARMED SERVICES SUBCOMMITTEE which I chaired, hearings have been completed on proposed legislation to expand health benefits for the military. Following the review of the views of the witnesses and organizational representatives, we will make recommendations to the full Committee.

During the course of these hearings, I reiterated my continuing concern over the general fiscal and monetary problems we are now facing, including the danger of the growing imbalance of international accounts.

While the estimate of expenditures for fiscal year 1967, which began this month, is $112.8 billion, it is fairly well known that the expenditures will go well above this amount.

For example, in order to maintain the present Vietnam level of effort, an additional appropriation of between $5 billion and $12 billion is expected. All legislation, therefore, must be subject to the total fiscal problems we face.

MINING SAFETY

Metal and non-metallic mining operations will be subject to minimum Federal health and safety standards under a bill recently passed by the Senate.

The measure was passed by the House of Representatives and approved with minor amendments by the Senate.

The object is to reduce the high accident rate and health hazards in mining and milling operations carried on in the metal and non-metallic mineral industires.

A recent Bureau of Mines study showed more than 12,000 remedial hazards in U. S. mining and milling operations.

The measure provides for a system of Federal inspection under the Department of Interior and the development and enforcement of mandatory standards dealing with conditions or practices dangerous to life or health.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

When the present law covering the Selective Service System comes up for renewal or revision next June, we hope to develop a feasible plan to increase the degree of fairness in the present system.

The House Armed Services Committee recently has heard the testimony of General Lewis B. Hershey as well as spokesmen for the Department of Defense and many Congressmen on the operation of the draft. The Senate Armed Services Committee also will consider this legislation, but probably not until next spring.

Meanwhile President Johnson also has named a civilian committee to study the draft and make recommendations for improvements.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

If passport applications are any indication, the number of Missourians traveling abroad has increased dramatically. More than 17,030 applied for passports in 1965, an increase of 57 percent over 1964.

The number of U. S. residents traveling overseas in 1965 was up 18 percent to 2,620,000. They spent more than $3 billion in foreign countries and on foreign carriers.

Foreign visitors, on the other hand, spent only $1.4 billion in the states and on U. S. carriers, leaving a tourists' deficit in our balance of payments of about $1.74 billion in 1965. This compared with $1.6 billion in 1964.

Infantry Men Needed

The 83rd. Infantry Division - the famed THUNDERBOLT DIVISION of World War II, is conducting the greatest manhunt in history. They are seeking some 25,000 of their former members. That is the number of men on their original roster, who have not been contacted, since the end of the war. These men are scattered all over the nation.

At the close of the war, an 83rd. Infantry Division Assn. was formed and an annual reunion has been held every year. This year the 20th annual conclave will be staged at Pittsburg Pa., in August.

Injunction Cities P. Bluff Grocers

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. AP -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations have been named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act filed in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

The complaint, filed by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, is against Barnes Grocer Company, Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributors, Inc.

The complaint alleges that the stores operated a monopoly and failed to pay the required minimum wage and time and a half for overtime.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Are We Fair in Our News Reports?

We think we are. In our news columns, we do our best to bring you facts only . . . without expression of personal opinion of reporters or editors.

We Always Do Our Best

. . . to give you both sides in our news reports, if there are two sides. Or three sides, if there are three. Everyone deserves fair representation in a news report.

Who You Are Doesn't Matter

. . . if the publisher of this newspaper were caught speeding on Main street . . . or anywhere else . . . you'd find it reported in this newspaper . . . more than likely on the front page! And so with the banker, the baker, the candlestick maker . . . and the advertiser, too. Business accorded this paper does not buy protection against news reports.

This Is Only Right . . .

To be fair, a newspaper must report what happened . . . to whom . . . where . . . how . . . and why—without regard to who it is . . . or his position . . . or how much money he has . . . or how good a friend he is of the editor. This is this newspaper's news policy—a policy we believe fair and equitable to all.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? (Mark 8:36)

PRAYER: Eternal God and Father of all mankind, we praise Thy holy name for being near us. Help us to be conscious of Thy never-failing love for us, and to live in obedience to Thy In Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a large organization and all telephone calls go through the switchboard, with the exception of the executives' private lines, which, of course, I cannot use.

My husband called me this morning and I knew at once he was bombed and calling from a bar. It is Jack's habit to telephone and pick a fight when he knows he's in the doghouse -- which he certainly was, because he didn't come home last night.

I lost my temper and used some rather salty language. Jack said some things he shouldn't have said and it was not a conversation you'd want an outsider to hear.

As I was leaving the office for lunch, I encountered one of the telephone operators. She gave me a wise-apple smirk and asked, "And how are things at YOUR house?" I felt like strangling her.

Should I write an anonymous letter to the personnel manager about this snoop? If she listens in on my conversations she undoubtedly listens in on others. Your advice is wanted. -- INVADED PRIVACY.

Dear I.P.: Most telephone operators have very little interest and even less time to tune in on family fights. The woman's greeting was probably an unfortunate coincidence. In the future make it a rule never to discuss private business on the phone and then you don't need to worry about eavesdroppers.

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please, please -- let me know how a man can tell a woman that he is in love with her, ask her to marry him, let her clue in family and friends, make all sorts of plans, and then change his mind? If he was only infatuated why would he propose marriage?

This happened to me and I am so humiliated I can't hold up my head. My friends tell me that my former fiance loves me but he is afraid of the responsibility of marriage. They say I should be patient and wait, and that he will come back.

What I need to know is how long should I wait? It has been eight months and I have not heard one word from him. Am I being a silly romantic to believe that true love can overcome any obstacle?-- LEIGH

Dear Leigh: You are right. TRUE love can overcome any obstacle, but from your account of the way the young man has treated you, I would doubt that this is true love.

I suspect your friends are trying to be kind, but I don't think it's an act of kindness to give you false hope. If you have not heard one word from your exlove in eight months I suggest you write him off and make new friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Please give us an answer to a question that is bothering us. Our daughter is 17. At first we thought she was just putting on weight. Now we know she is pregnant.

Last week she told us she and her boy friend want to get married because he may be called into the service soon. He is 21. What kind of a wedding should a pregnant girl have? -- NO NAME PLEASE.

Dear No Name: A QUICK one-- with as little hoopla as possible.

Confidential to NEED A WISER HEAD THAN MINE: There's nothing wrong with your head, my dear. Your letter was an extremely good one. Those "friends" are giving you a bum steer. I've never heard of such "biblical advice." It may be a little late for you to "go forth and multiply" but a marriage that offers companionship in the evening of your lives makes a great deal of sense. Good luck, and God bless you.

Children Experience, Learn in Summer

by CAROL MILLER

During the summer vacation children have a tendency to forget part of what they learned in school. Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the Sikeston Public Schools, was contacted to find out how parents can best make the summer into a learning experience for their children.

Twitty believes that the amount of summer regression is reasonably slight and that the experiences children have in the summer may compensate for any knowledge they might forget.

Daytime television in the summer is especially geared to the younger set. Kiddie programs tell stories and explain questions on the child's level; quiz shows which emphasize vocabulary and others which have question-answer sessions increase the child's knowledge of the world.

In "Preparing Your Child for School" by Hazel F. Gabbard, family vacations were named one of the best means to add to a child's compilation of experiences. When he returns from his trip, his play is usually stimulated as he recreates the places he has been, and his vocabulary is enlarged.

A child will also learn from his friends and their experiences while playing, from the movies he sees, and from almost everything he does, but his parents are his real teachers. In his earliest days, he learned to brush his teeth and change his clothing by imitation of his parents. As he grows, his parents and the enviroment they create contribute much toward giving him a headstart or a delay on the road to learning.

As Twitty said, "Children are not necessarily created equal. Those born to well-read, intelligent parents naturally have an advantage in the speech and environment they have been exposed to. This can make a difference in their early years of schooling."

Reading, more than anything else, opens the entire world to a child's mind, but there is one problem. A child can not read during the summer months if he has not learned to read in school.

However, the parent can encourage reading by making books available in the home or by taking the child on frequent trips to the library. By developing an appreciation of literature in the child, the parent can increase the child's knowledge, enlarge his vocabulary, and add to his understanding of life.

One way to make the child practice written communication is to encourage letterwriting. This can be a pleasurable undertaking. He can believe that grandma would enjoy receiving a letter from him, which she probably would. In this way the child can get the satisfaction of doing something worthwhile for someone, and the parent will have a chance to refresh the child's grammar and punctuation by correcting his mistakes and explaining them.

"Although summer experiences are valuable they can not take the place of regular school work," Twitty stated. He also said that schools are to teach children five fundamentals; these are communication, reading, facility in using numbers accurately, living with people, and a desire to work.

Parents play a major part in the child's learning in the wintertime too. If the parents are aware of the schools--read about them, visit them, and show concern over them -- they naturally transmit this attitude of educational importance to their children.

Parents can encourage good school work by showing an interest in what the child is doing, commending him for good work, and then working with the school to remedy poor performance.

One important thing pointed out in "Your Child as a First Grader," prepared by the staff of the Sikeston Public Schools, is to avoid comparing children. If a group of youngsters were lined up for a race, no one would expect any two of them to reach the finish line at exactly the same time. It is the same way with school work.

In general Sikeston can be proud of its part in living up to the standards of education. Twitty said, "Our community is way above average in giving support to the city's schools, and this fact is reflected in the schools we have and the high composite score of our classes on standardized tests."

Washington Report
Sen. Stuart Symington

IN THE SPECIAL ARMED SERVICES SUBCOMMITTEE which I chaired, hearings have been completed on proposed legislation to expand health benefits for the military. Following the review of the views of the witnesses and organizational representatives, we will make recommendations to the full Committee.

During the course of these hearings, I reiterated my continuing concern over the general fiscal and monetary problems we are now facing, including the danger of the growing imbalance of international accounts.

While the estimate of expenditures for fiscal year 1967, which began this month, is $112.8 billion, it is fairly well known that the expenditures will go well above this amount.

For example, in order to maintain the present Vietnam level of effort, an additional appropriation of between $5 billion and $12 billion is expected. All legislation, therefore, must be subject to the total fiscal problems we face.

MINING SAFETY

Metal and non-metallic mining operations will be subject to minimum Federal health and safety standards under a bill recently passed by the Senate. The measure was passed by the House of Representatives and approved with minor amendments by the Senate.

The object is to reduce the high accident rate and health hazards in mining and milling operations carried on in the metal and non-metallic mineral industires.

A recent Bureau of Mines study showed more than 12,000 remedial hazards in U. S. mining and milling operations.

The measure provides for a system of Federal inspection under the Department of Interior and the development and enforcement of mandatory standards dealing with conditions or practices dangerous to life or health.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

When the present law covering the Selective Service System comes up for renewal or revision next June, we hope to develop a feasible plan to increase the degree of fairness in the present system.

The House Armed Services Committee recently has heard the testimony of General Lewis B. Hershey as well as spokesmen for the Department of Defense and many Congressmen on the operation of the draft. The Senate Armed Services Committee also will consider this legislation, but probably not until next spring.

Meanwhile President Johnson also has named a civilian committee to study the draft and make recommendations for improvements.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

If passport applications are any indication, the number of Missourians traveling abroad has increased dramatically. More than 17,030 applied for passports in 1965, an increase of 57 percent over 1964.

The number of U. S. residents traveling overseas in 1965 was up 18 percent to 2,620,000. They spent more than $3 billion in foreign countries and on foreign carriers.

Foreign visitors, on the other hand, spent only $1.4 billion in the states and on U. S. carriers, leaving a tourists' deficit in our balance of payments of about $1.74 billion in 1965. This compared with $1.6 billion in 1964.

Infantry Men Needed

The 83rd. Infantry Division - the famed THUNDERBOLT DIVISION of World War II, is conducting the greatest manhunt in history. They are seeking some 25,000 of their former members. That is the number of men on their original roster, who have not been contacted, since the end of the war. These men are scattered all over the nation.

At the close of the war, an 83rd. Infantry Division Assn. was formed and an annual reunion has been held every year. This year the 20th annual conclave will be staged at Pittsburg Pa., in August.

Injunction Cities P. Bluff Grocers

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. AP -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations have been named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act filed in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

The complaint, filed by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, is against Barnes Grocer Company, Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributors, Inc.

The complaint alleges that the stores operated a monopoly and failed to pay the required minimum wage and time and a half for overtime.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Are We Fair in Our News Reports?

We think we are. In our news columns, we do our best to bring you facts only . . . without expression of personal opinion of reporters or editors.

We Always Do Our Best

. . . to give you both sides in our news reports, if there are two sides. Or three sides, if there are three. Everyone deserves fair representation in a news report.

Who You Are Doesn't Matter

. . . if the publisher of this newspaper were caught speeding on Main street . . . or anywhere else . . . you'd find it reported in this newspaper . . . more than likely on the front page! And so with the banker, the baker, the candlestick maker . . . and the advertiser, too. Business accorded this paper does not buy protection against news reports.

This Is Only Right . . .

To be fair, a newspaper must report what happened . . . to whom . . . where . . . how . . . and why—without regard to who it is . . . or his position . . . or how much money he has . . . or how good a friend he is of the editor. This is this newspaper's news policy—a policy we believe fair and equitable to all.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 13, the 194th day of 1966. There are 171 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, Congress passed the first act providing for the government of territory outside the original 13 colonies. The Northwest Territory was organized under this act; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin were all cut from it later.

On this date:

In 1821, the Confederate cavalry officer, Nathan Bedford Forrest, was born.

In 1919, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, the British 34, completed its round trip.

In 1943, British forces occupied the Sicilian port of Augusta.

Ten years ago--Seven Hungarian students made a daring escape from their Communist homeland.

One year ago-A severe typhoon hit the Pacific island of Mindanao. At least 17 persons were drowned.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 13, the 194th day of 1966. There are 171 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, Congress passed the first act providing for the government of territory outside the original 13 colonies. The Northwest Territory was organized under this act; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin were all cut from it later.

On this date:

In 1821, the Confederate cavalry officer, Nathan Bedford Forrest, was born.

In 1919, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, the British 34, completed its round trip.

In 1943, British forces occupied the Sicilian port of Augusta.

Ten years ago--Seven Hungarian students made a daring escape from their Communist homeland.

One year ago-A severe typhoon hit the Pacific island of Mindanao. At least 17 persons were drowned.

"Friendliest, Most Courteous" MALE EMPLOYE

Name ....

Place of business ....

Yes, Sikeston is FRIENDLY! We can be proud of our residents -- their hospitality extended to all. At our places of business: our personnel are friendly folks. Yet, do we "slip a bit" at times? Can we all be FRIENDLIER? Isn't it an idea to, each day, think of this: "LET'S MAKE SIKESTON THE FRIENDLIEST CITY IN MISSOURI. Bear in mind: the person whom you don't know may be just passing through -- may be "looking our town over" with the idea of "locating here" -- regardless, you will give that person "his or her impression" of our city.

Clip out, fill in and please send or bring the above coupon to "Friendliest, Most Courteous" Employe Award at The Bank of Sikeston, 1st National Bank, Security Federal Savings & Loan Assn., The Daily Sikeston Standard, or mail to the Daily Sikeston Standard, 205 S. New Madrid St., Sikeston, Mo. Voting ends July 16. Vote as often as you wish, but use only this award voting ballot.

Matthews News

The Conrads arrived home late Wednesday afternoon from a four-week vacation to find a "dead" telephone. When I asked the 'girls' at the beauty shop on Friday to bring me up-to-date on happenings one replied, "It has been hot, no rain for three weeks, farmers are busy irrigating, the town water supply is low, and the telephones are all out of order-- so we can't even discuss our problems over the phone with any satisfaction."

Our community did get some relief from the drought late Fridat afternoon with rainfall varying from a half-inch to one and one-half inches in various locations. Strong winds blew down several trees and branches from many. The telephone company has men working on that problem and we are hoping for an early solution.

After attending commencement at the University of Minnesota where our daughter, Bonnie, and son-in-law, "Kip" were among the 4334 graduates, we left with them to visit his parents the Hilding C. Nelson's at Mount Vernon, Wash. and relatives at Portland, Ore., Pullman, Tacoma, Seattle, and Spokane, Wash. Highpoints of interest on the trip were a boat trip to Victoria where we visited the Parliament Buildings, Vancouver, B. C., and the islands in Puget Sound. Enroute we visited at Yellowstone, Glacier, and Teddy Roosevelt Memorial Parks.

Four weeks of the summer school program have been completed at Matthews R-V School. Teachers working with the remedial reading groups are Mrs. Pauline Decker, Mrs. Lilian Kemp, Miss Alice Deane, Mrs. Bernice Stafford, Mrs. Addie Hatcher, Mrs. Kathryn Moore, Mrs. Virgie Beane, Mrs. Emma Cooper, and Mrs. Shirley Whiffen. The Headstart classes are being taught by Mrs. Mattye Speed, Miss Georgia Deane, Mrs. Lois Hooks, Mrs. Margaret Ward, and Mrs. Virginia Keaton.

Carla Shelby and Debbie and Roberta Rudisill spent last week at Pinecrest, the Nazarene Church Camp, near Fredericktown. They were accompanied by Mrs. Carl Shelby.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roberts of Flint, Mich. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fairies and Lila and Reggie Vandiver.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Alsup and daughters of Amory, Miss. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Parsons, Mrs. Florence Wilson, and Mrs. Frank Parsons.

Mrs. Pearl Green and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore spent the 4th of July weekend with Mrs. Green's daughter, Mrs. Louise Hudson, and family at Columbus, Miss.

Miss Donna Reid and brother, Bill, of Jonesboro, Ark. spent last weekend with their father, Ellis V. Reid. Bill is attending summer term at Arkansas State College.

Mrs. Alfred Byrd, who has completed one five-week term at Arkansas State College, Jonesboro, spent the weekend at her home here. She will return Tuesday to begin the second term for which she had pre-enrolled.

Mrs. Lester King and daughter, Brenda, visited last week with her mother, Mrs. Beryl Franklin, and family at Atchison, Kans. Mr. King and son, Joe Lynn, went to accompany then home this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Yates and daughter, Natasha, of Boston, Mass. are expected to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Yates from July 20 to 26th. They will visit his aunt, Mrs. L. D. Youngblood, at Dundee, Miss. enroute to Waynesboro, Miss. where they will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham.

The Matthews 4-H Club was represented at the New Madrid County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello by Carla Shelby, Roberta Rudisill, Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch) and Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch), Karen Faulkner, Dennis and Brian Clark, and Brian Tippett.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Vann and children of Searcy, Arkansas visited during the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Vann.

Miss Sandra Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Porter and bride-elect of Arthur McCoy, was complimented with a miscellaneous household shower on Friday evening, June 24, at the Baptist Church. Hostesses for the occasion were members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Tim Tippett and Bill Rogers, who are attending summer term at Missouri University, Columbia, spent the July 4th weekend at their homes here.

Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Kasten and sons, Mark and Mike, of Cape Girardeau, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Critchlow and family of Sikeston, C. A. Crithclow, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kelso and sons, Duane and Jock, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Depro and son, Bruce.

Mrs. Bess Presents Program

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church met Thursday in the Fellowship Hall.

Sept. 1 has been designated as the next general meeting of the society.

The meditation and program was presented by Mrs. William Bess. Her subject was "Where the Women Are." This program was designed to bring each woman into a new understanding of herself in relation to the church and its mission in the world.

Mrs. Bess used a large sketch of a compass and placed a cross in the center instead of the needle point. Around the eight points of this compass were two circles. One represented the part of the earth that we can see; the other, the world we cannot see. Each point was represented by the following words, Church, Chart, Change, Community, Christian, Citizen, Commission and Challenge.

Mrs. Bess explained how the image of woman has been changing. She named the few women who head church activities today and urged a greater interest in church activities.

The Bible was named as the main chart, and a very true chart and a sure map of God's travels to meet man. Mrs. Bess said "As church women, we must keep abreast of change whether we like it or not." She continued, "As laity, we need to develop a sense of community service, and as a Christian we are called under God to help achieve a greater oneness in our churches and community."

The group was reminded that all women are needed no matter where their homes are.

Mrs. Bess stressed the organization of a committee on Christian vocations. This committee should awaken and challenge Methodist congregations, youth, students and young adults to the needs of missionary service.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. F. Weidemann.

Mrs. Vincent Wissman, spiritual life secretary, conducted a memorial service for Mrs. A. R. Puckett.

Brief reports were given of the Poplar Bluff - Sikeston District Officers' Training Day held at Dexter June 23.

State Tax Take Shows $25.6 Million Rise

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Collections of state corporation and individual income taxes, corporate franchise taxes and intangible taxes increased $25.6 million last year, Revenue Director Thomas A. David reported today.

"Missouri's healthy economic conditions and increased activities in enforcement and compliance helped bring about this situation," he said.

Corporation and income tax collections for the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $104,889,219 -- an increase of $19,731,733 over the previous year.

Inheritance taxes rose $3,363,381 to $10,643,159.

Intangible tax collections rose to $13,213,903 or $1,744,050 more than a year ago.

"Part of the increase in corporation and individual income tax collections may also be attributed to the decrease in federal income taxes which were effective for 1965," David said.

Matthews News

The Conrads arrived home late Wednesday afternoon from a four-week vacation to find a "dead" telephone. When I asked the 'girls' at the beauty shop on Friday to bring me up-to-date on happenings one replied, "It has been hot, no rain for three weeks, farmers are busy irrigating, the town water supply is low, and the telephones are all out of order-- so we can't even discuss our problems over the phone with any satisfaction."

Our community did get some relief from the drought late Fridat afternoon with rainfall varying from a half-inch to one and one-half inches in various locations. Strong winds blew down several trees and branches from many. The telephone company has men working on that problem and we are hoping for an early solution.

After attending commencement at the University of Minnesota where our daughter, Bonnie, and son-in-law, "Kip" were among the 4334 graduates, we left with them to visit his parents the Hilding C. Nelson's at Mount Vernon, Wash. and relatives at Portland, Ore., Pullman, Tacoma, Seattle, and Spokane, Wash. Highpoints of interest on the trip were a boat trip to Victoria where we visited the Parliament Buildings, Vancouver, B. C., and the islands in Puget Sound. Enroute we visited at Yellowstone, Glacier, and Teddy Roosevelt Memorial Parks.

Four weeks of the summer school program have been completed at Matthews R-V School. Teachers working with the remedial reading groups are Mrs. Pauline Decker, Mrs. Lilian Kemp, Miss Alice Deane, Mrs. Bernice Stafford, Mrs. Addie Hatcher, Mrs. Kathryn Moore, Mrs. Virgie Beane, Mrs. Emma Cooper, and Mrs. Shirley Whiffen. The Headstart classes are being taught by Mrs. Mattye Speed, Miss Georgia Deane, Mrs. Lois Hooks, Mrs. Margaret Ward, and Mrs. Virginia Keaton.

Carla Shelby and Debbie and Roberta Rudisill spent last week at Pinecrest, the Nazarene Church Camp, near Fredericktown. They were accompanied by Mrs. Carl Shelby.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roberts of Flint, Mich. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fairies and Lila and Reggie Vandiver.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Alsup and daughters of Amory, Miss. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Parsons, Mrs. Florence Wilson, and Mrs. Frank Parsons.

Mrs. Pearl Green and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore spent the 4th of July weekend with Mrs. Green's daughter, Mrs. Louise Hudson, and family at Columbus, Miss.

Miss Donna Reid and brother, Bill, of Jonesboro, Ark. spent last weekend with their father, Ellis V. Reid. Bill is attending summer term at Arkansas State College.

Mrs. Alfred Byrd, who has completed one five-week term at Arkansas State College, Jonesboro, spent the weekend at her home here. She will return Tuesday to begin the second term for which she had pre-enrolled.

Mrs. Lester King and daughter, Brenda, visited last week with her mother, Mrs. Beryl Franklin, and family at Atchison, Kans. Mr. King and son, Joe Lynn, went to accompany then home this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Yates and daughter, Natasha, of Boston, Mass. are expected to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Yates from July 20 to 26th. They will visit his aunt, Mrs. L. D. Youngblood, at Dundee, Miss. enroute to Waynesboro, Miss. where they will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham.

The Matthews 4-H Club was represented at the New Madrid County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello by Carla Shelby, Roberta Rudisill, Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch) and Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch), Karen Faulkner, Dennis and Brian Clark, and Brian Tippett.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Vann and children of Searcy, Arkansas visited during the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Vann.

Miss Sandra Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Porter and bride-elect of Arthur McCoy, was complimented with a miscellaneous household shower on Friday evening, June 24, at the Baptist Church. Hostesses for the occasion were members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

U.S. Taste for Seafood Leaving Fishermen Behind

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) The people of the United States are eating more seafood than ever before.

Yet, the nation's commercial fishermen are failing to capitalize on the demand, even though they received more for their catch last year than ever before, government officials say.

They pointed to statistics showing:

1. Per capita consumption of fishery products in 1965 reached 11 pounds, the highest annual figure since 1954 and nearly half a pound higher than the 1964 average. The population also increased.

2. For the first time in history, U.S. imports of edible fishery products in 1965 exceeded 50 per cent of the supply and this country became the world's largest importer of such products.

3. The catch by U.S. fishermen, including industrial fish, was 4.7 billion pounds last year, only 4 per cent higher than the 1964 take, but the income of these fishermen was a record $451 million, compared with $390 million in 1964.

4. The total supply of edible fishery products was 5.1 billion pounds last year, a record, and up from the previous high of 4.9 billion pounds in 1964.

5. It developed that fishery resources off the shores of the United States could supply this nation with five times its present catch and provide the raw material needed to make it a major exporter of fishery products.

The Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, in the Interior Department, points out that the world's seafood harvest soared from 102.3 billion pounds in 1963 to 113.8 billion pounds in 1964 and that the expansion continued into 1965.

"The United States, however, did not share in this expansion of production and remained fifth among the fishing nations of the world," the bureau said.

Donald L. McKernan, director of the bureau, said in an interview there is cause for optimism, however, that domestic fisheries will be restored to their traditional place as one of the leading fishing nations of the world.

He said the government, aware of the tremendous potential fishery resources and the increase of foreign fishing activity off the U. S. coasts, has expanded programs of research, development, and services in its effort to insure that the nation participates fully in the harvest.

McKernan rejected suggestions that there are shortages of various types of seafood because of over-fishing of the oceans, or because of foreign fishing off the American coasts. He said a major reason for price increases of some fishery products has been public demand for higher quality, and preparation as convenience foods.

He said the normal law of supply and demand also has been reflected in prices for such things as canned tuna and oysters, with reduced production followed by higher prices.

Concept of Democracy Slow To Take Root in Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE -- The Associated Press has just completed an informal survey in which average newspaper readers across the country were asked what interested or troubled them most about the United States and the world. A series of typical readers' questions were selected from the survey. This article on the prospects for democracy in Viet Nam is one of several that seek to supply the answers.

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

Four thousand years ago, the bride of a fairy-tale prince laid 100 eggs--and hatched the nation that is today's Viet Nam.

Even now, many Vietnamese believe the story.

American advisers are working hard to inoculate them with the concept of Western democracy. It's just as strange to the average Vietnamese as the legend of the 100 eggs is to the American mind.

This is a situation you must keep in mind in surveying the prospect for democracy in Viet Nam.

The conditions and traditions which make for political democracy, evolved through centuries in Europe and the United States, are sparse indeed in Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, the hope for a democratic system in this embattled Southeast Asian nation is a pillar of U.S. policy here. Only a solidly implanted democracy can save the country from communism, American officials say.

They face this problem: Viet Nam, 1966, is really not too far from the story of Prince Lac Long Quan who married the egg-laying fairy princess named Au Co.

Despite cars, plastic dishes and the freightening methods of modern warfare, Viet Nam is largely a nation of superstition and suspicion of the outside world, a nation where Buddhism -the predominant religion- promises a bridge to the world of spirits.

What major obstacles stand in the way of the spirit of democracy?

1. Democracy is a meaningless term to most Vietnamese. The exception is the handful of those who have had the benefit of a French education and, more recently, scholarship to the United States.

2. Regional loyalties are deeply embedded, and there's a lack of national cohesion despite the fiery trials of war.

3. Almost throughout its rich history, Viet Nam has been ruled by autocratic monarchs, fierce invaders and, finally by French colonizers before the 1954 independence, giving the citizens no practice in self-government.

4. Equality before the law a key concept of democracy, applied only to some. Elections held in this century were invariably rigged. In modern Viet Nam, few citizens have much faith in government officials.

Against such negative elements, Americans hopeful of setting Viet Nam's course towards democracy cite these factors:

1. The inner desire of most people to express themselves freely and in freedom.

2. The bold trends sweeping the world's underdeveloped nations.

3. The fact that, on occasion, a desire for democratic processes has been visible in Viet Nam, and that the American example may prove infectious.

Perhaps in conditions of peace and stability, the spirit of democracy eventually could grow in Viet Nam.

The continuing war, lack of faith in the regimes in power, the presence of "foreigners with their long noses and strange habits," seem to discourage such a trend.

Some of the most valuable elements in modern Viet Nam have been eliminated. About 4,000 government officials-district, village and hamlet chiefs have been killed by the Communist Viet Cong.

There are still men who are willing to sacrifice a lot so their nation can prosper. They are becoming fewer as the war goes on.

Americans expect to accomplish something in the general elections, promised for Sept. 11. To many U. S. officials, it is then that the cornerstone for real Vietnamese democracy could be laid.

The country's feuds, divisions, clashes, the 70-odd political parties - most steeped in clandestine struggle - offer little encouragement.

In North Viet Nam, the Communists have eliminated religion, supersitution and opposition, by brutal methods and iron discipline that few Americans would support and that negate the very idea of democracy.

In South Viet Nam, blooded by continuous war and terror, the likelihood of full - blown democracy also seems distant to most observers.

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN"

The following lines that I will try and submit in my poor power.

I hereby wish to state that my people have been voluntary since this great nation has become a world power. At this time I am very much concerned as to whether we will survive, as we all know that greater empires in the past have vanished.

But of course there can be no doubt this is the greatest nation that has existed upon the earth.

I cannot think that we have arrived at the point whereby we can turn the other cheek and I still think that Washington was right.

This has been proven at Pearl Harbor and again at the wall of Berlin, and history shows that it was the German American population that saved this union.

In conclusion I think that it is time to get our guns and help our poor police to maintain this society of all good Americans which draw no distinction of race, creed or color.

Missouri Press Association Established May 17, 1867

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- With a desire to increase the efficiency of the press in Missouri, state publishers got together in St. Louis on May 17, 1867. From this initial session developed today's Missouri Press Association, presently observing its centennial.

Ideas for a newspapermen's association date to the mid-19th century when several were created, the first in New York state in 1853. Organizational plans were slowed down when the Civil War opened, but after this conflict more such groups were formed. Many publishers, especially those in border states such as Missouri, recognize in these organizations an opportunity to aid in rebuilding the states and reuniting the people.

Early gatherings stressed the social aspects more than the utilitarian element. For example, the MPA's first constitution in 1867 provided for annual addresses and poems. There prevailed an emphasis on the spirit of reunion, a fraternal feeling as the publishers from across the state gathered to review their problems and exchange ideas.

Elaborate banquets and excursions highlighted these annual conventions. The first excursion was in 1869, a train trip from St. Louis to Iron Mountain and Pilot Knob. Later excursions during the association's first decade included visits to Maryville, Sedalia and Boonville, where a wine company's "cellars provided a point of resistless attraction to the thirsty travelers"; to Fort Scott and Indian Nation in Kansas; a steamer trip on the Mississippi; to Chicago and Colorado.

Eugene Field, at the time writing for the St. Louis Journal, read one of his poems at the 1875 meeting in Lexington. It was "A Weird Idyl-- Solomon Burch's Fighting Editor." Field attended several MPA sessions and provided other poems. The secretary reported that this poem was "unique or possibly outre, but his inimitable delivery rendered it a most capital entertainment."

J. W. Barrett and Norman J. Colman were the first presidents. Barrett, of the Canton Press, served for three years, the only member so honored. Colman, later the nation's first secretary of agriculture, served two years while editing his Rural World.

Interesting talks, or "orations," sparked the first decade. Col. W. F. Switzler, of Columbia, spoke at the first decade anniversary session in 1876, saying that the "country papers are the papers of the people. They are published in their midst and by those who understand their wants, and who sympathize with them in all their efforts at advancement."

While America was celebrating its centennial as a republic, Missouri publishers recognize their obligations, saying that the press is "above - Presidents, because it makes Presidents; above Congress and Legislatures, because it makes and unmakes legislation. It also educates jurors and modernizes judicial thought."

J. W. Barrett prepared the first history of the association covering this decade. Probably the spirit voiced in these words by an early "orator" reflects the feeling of MPA members today:

"Journalism has a high and immortal mission to perform. Like the wand of a magician, its wing sweeps nearly every land, and shall yet penetrate the wildest haunts of the world, where the shadow and superstition of ignorance falls heavily over the people."

The "Great Commoner," William Jennings Bryan, in 1908 urged the teaching of newspapermen in the University of Missouri, stressing the need for editorials that voiced the "honest convictions" of the writers, and including only what the writers were "firmly convinced is true."

Stray Tomcat Object Of 800-Mile Trip

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. AP - A strayed tomcat, pet of an Illinois family, is in the Livingston County jail in custody of Sheriff and Mrs. Kelsie Reeter. The owners are driving here from Hinsdale, a suburb of Chicago, to get it -- providing it's the right cat -- a round trip of 800 miles.

The sheriff said a Mrs. Norman Green telephoned that the cat, belonging to her parents, disappeared Saturday while they were stopped at the park on U.S. 36, near Utica. Reeter went to the park, located a tomcat, and called back. It met the description, and Mrs. Green said they'd be back for it.

The sheriff said he'd be glad. The cat kept him awake half the night.

Concept of Democracy Slow To Take Root in Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE -- The Associated Press has just completed an informal survey in which average newspaper readers across the country were asked what interested or troubled them most about the United States and the world. A series of typical readers' questions were selected from the survey. This article on the prospects for democracy in Viet Nam is one of several that seek to supply the answers.

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

Four thousand years ago, the bride of a fairy-tale prince laid 100 eggs—and hatched the nation that is today's Viet Nam.

Even now, many Vietnamese believe the story.

American advisers are working hard to inoculate them with the concept of Western democracy. It's just as strange to the average Vietnamese as the legend of the 100 eggs is to the American mind.

This is a situation you must keep in mind in surveying the prospect for democracy in Viet Nam.

The conditions and traditions which make for political democracy, evolved through centuries in Europe and the United States, are sparse indeed in Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, the hope for a democratic system in this embattled Southeast Asian nation is a pillar of U.S. policy here. Only a solidly implanted democracy can save the country from communism, American officials say.

They face this problem: Viet Nam, 1966, is really not too far from the story of Prince Lac Long Quan who married the egg-laying fairy princess named Au Co.

Despite cars, plastic dishes and the freightening methods of modern warfare, Viet Nam is largely a nation of superstition and suspicion of the outside world, a nation where Buddhism -the predominant religion- promises a bridge to the world of spirits.

What major obstacles stand in the way of the spirit of democracy?

1. Democracy is a meaningless term to most Vietnamese. The exception is the handful of those who have had the benefit of a French education and, more recently, scholarship to the United States.

2. Regional loyalties are deeply embedded, and there's a lack of national cohesion despite the fiery trials of war.

3. Almost throughout its rich history, Viet Nam has been ruled by autocratic monarchs, fierce invaders and, finally by French colonizers before the 1954 independence, giving the citizens no practice in self-government.

4. Equality before the law a key concept of democracy, applied only to some. Elections held in this century were invariably rigged. In modern Viet Nam, few citizens have much faith in government officials.

Against such negative elements, Americans hopeful of setting Viet Nam's course towards democracy cite these factors:

1. The inner desire of most people to express themselves freely and in freedom.

2. The bold trends sweeping the world's underdeveloped nations.

3. The fact that, on occasion, a desire for democratic processes has been visible in Viet Nam, and that the American example may prove infectious.

Perhaps in conditions of peace and stability, the spirit of democracy eventually could grow in Viet Nam.

The continuing war, lack of faith in the regimes in power, the presence of "foreigners with their long noses and strange habits," seem to discourage such a trend.

Some of the most valuable elements in modern Viet Nam have been eliminated. About 4,000 government officials-district, village and hamlet chiefs have been killed by the Communist Viet Cong.

There are still men who are willing to sacrifice a lot so their nation can prosper. They are becoming fewer as the war goes on.

Americans expect to accomplish something in the general elections, promised for Sept. 11. To many U. S. officials, it is then that the cornerstone for real Vietnamese democracy could be laid.

The country's feuds, divisions, clashes, the 70-odd political parties - most steeped in clandestine struggle - offer little encouragement.

In North Viet Nam, the Communists have eliminated religion, supersitution and opposition, by brutal methods and iron discipline that few Americans would support and that negate the very idea of democracy.

In South Viet Nam, blooded by continuous war and terror, the likelihood of full - blown democracy also seems distant to most observers.

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN"

The following lines that I will try and submit in my poor power.

I hereby wish to state that my people have been voluntary since this great nation has become a world power. At this time I am very much concerned as to whether we will survive, as we all know that greater empires in the past have vanished.

But of course there can be no doubt this is the greatest nation that has existed upon the earth.

I cannot think that we have arrived at the point whereby we can turn the other cheek and I still think that Washington was right.

This has been proven at Pearl Harbor and again at the wall of Berlin, and history shows that it was the German American population that saved this union.

In conclusion I think that it is time to get our guns and help our poor police to maintain this society of all good Americans which draw no distinction of race, creed or color.

Redistrlltricting of Missouri Legislature Wins Approval

KANSAS CITY AP – A three - judge federal panel has ruled that reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri Legislature is constitutional.

"We believe that the Senate apportionment committee and the House apportionment committee have done a commendable job in apportioning the various districts of the state into districts of substantial equality of population," the judges said in their decision, filed Friday in U. S. District Court.

Members of the panel were Albert A. Ridge and Floyd R. Gibson of the U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals and William H. Becker of the U. S. District Court.

The decision pointed out that the state had been divided into 34 senatorial districts varying in population from 132,848 to 122,221. The perfect district would have 127,053 residents.

There are 163 House districts, ranging from 28,778 to 23,856, and the average would be 26,502.

The court said it would take at least 49.1 per cent of the voters to elect one - half of the state senators, and 48.54 per cent to elect a majority of the House.

The decision was made in acting on a motion filed in April by the state, which sought approval of the redistricting and an end to court litigation.

Plaintiffs in the case were Mrs. H. Constance Jones, Stuart E. Hipshman, Harold Holliday, and James L. Robinson, Jr., all of Kansas City. Paul W. Preisler, Joseph Roddy and David M. Grant of St. Louis were intervenor - plaintiffs.

Watch out, Frankie, Mrs. Miller's Singing Your Song

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP - Watch out, Frank Sinatra, here comes Mrs. Miller with her version of "Strangers In The Night."

Capitol Records is rushing a version by Elva Miller onto the market, and the Sinatra hit song may never be the same. But then, the whole record business hasn't been quite the same since Mrs. Miller came on the scene.

Her album, "Mrs. Miller's Greatest Hits," has already sold 150,000 copies, a highly respectable figure. Her style? It has defied description. Suffice to say that she sings teen-age record hits in a mature contralto. She also whistles.

Frankly, at 58 Mrs. Miller has no illusions about her achievement. "I'll go along with it as long as it lasts," she remarked. "It would be foolish at my age to become starry-eyed. If all this comes to an end, I still have my home and my many interests. And I will have had a lot of fun."

It all started because Mrs. Miller, an amateur singer of Claremont, Calif., made regular visits to a Hollywood studio to record songs, mostly of a sacred nature, for her own pleasure. On one occasion, her accompanist, Fred Bock, slipped some rock 'n' roll numbers among her hymns.

"I think you're having fun with Mrs. Miller," she said. But she went along with him. It happened that Capitol had been searching for an operatic voice to render beatle-type hits. Mrs. Miller seemed an ideal choice.

Most of her numbers were recorded in one take, to preserve the ingenuous quality. Some of the errors were deliberate, as in one number when she was instructed to begin singing a half-beat behind the orchestra.

Concerning the sales of her records, Mrs. Miller declared: "I don't understand it, but teen-agers seem to be buying them. As I see it, there are two kinds of teen-agers. There are the sophisticated ones; who dress like Sonny and Cher; they don't buy my album. Then there are the teen-agers who dress neatly; they are the ones who do buy my records."

Mrs. Miller, who had done no real performing since her high school days in Dodge City, Kans., now finds herself in show business. She has appeared on the TV programs of Ed Sullivan, Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and Art Linkletter. During the Griffin show she found herself sharing a dressing room with Sally Rand -- "a nice person; she lives in Glendora, not far from Claremont."

Recently she made her acting debut, portraying a dance-hall singer in a new TV series, "The Road West." Next month she plays her first night club engagement at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe.

Does she have any qualms about appearing in night clubs? "Not as long as the stage is separated from the audience," she said. "I like to sing. What people do in the auditorium is their own affair."

Mrs. Miller has now had to acquire a manager, press agent, tax lawyer, accountant, etc. She is also planning to move to nearby Glendale to be closer to the entertainment capital. Her husband, a retired rancher, John Miller, is symathetic with her career.

"He knows I am mature enough to realize that things like this run their course," explained Mrs. Miller.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What incident set the stage for the Spanish-American War?

A—In 1898, in Havana Harbor, a blast destroyed the battleship Maine, which burst into flames and sank in the harbor. Of some 350 men aboard, 260 died. The exact cause of the explosion was never known.

Q—Are there any pure races of man today?

A—Anthropologists believe not.

Q—What U.S. citizen was fined in 1872 for trying to vote in a presidential election?

A—Susan B. Anthony. She voted in order to test her status as a citizen.

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Library of Congress, growing at the knowledge-explosion rate of a million items a year, is splitting its marble and steel seams.

Help is in sight, but far off. After a decade of talk, Congress has approved in principle a new building that may contain the library's expansion for 25 years.

The start of construction has been delayed by a tangle that involves architects, some of the most senior members of Congress, the late Speaker Sam Rayburn and James Madison, fourth president of the United States and father of the Bill of Rights.

Meanwhile, the library, which cautiously describes itself as "in all probability the world's largest," is housed in an ornate and overcrowded Italian Renaissance building completed in 1897. A more austere, and also overcrowded, annex was completed in 1939. And the library uses portions of buildings at the former Navy gun factory several miles away on the Anacostia River and an abandoned aircraft hangar. Arrangements are now being made to lease a warehouse given up by a Washington department store.

Although Congress loves its library, the agony of decision-making has delayed the new building.

"At least two years have been lost," protests Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., a library buff who is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee responsible for financing the library. "This funny monstrosity of a bill requires 42 different people to agree before anything can be done. It will be a miracle if the library can move into its new building five years from now."

But Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill., who piloted through a sea of compromises the bill authorizing a $75 million building, insists it is workable legislation.

"A lot of people had to be satisfied," Gray said. "Some of the people making up the commissions involved are such as the speaker and some of the most senior members on both sides (Democratic and Republican). You couldn't leave them out of the decisions if you wanted to — and nobody wants to."

The result was legislation that gives some role in the planning and construction of the building to the House Building Committee, the Senate Building Committee, the Capitol Building Commission, the James Madison Memorial Commission, the architect of the capitol, who is not a professional architect but an executive officer for the commissions, and a special committee of the American Institute of Architects.

Under Rayburn's leadership, Congress acquired a square of land near the original library and cleared it, razing a small business section and some lovingly restored old Capitol Hill houses.

The square has stood vacant ever since, a prize sought by three groups. One wants it for the library, another for an office building, and the third wants to build a memorial to James Madison, sometimes called the founding father most neglected by posterity.

The key compromise that got the Gray bill through the House was agreement to use the site for a building that would combine a Madison memorial hall with expansion space for the library.

When the redoubtable Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, chairman of the Rules Committee and head of the Madison forces, agreed, the fight was over. Only five votes were cast against the bill. Of course, the Madison Commission got on the control group.

Meanwhile the flood of new acquisitions pours daily into the library, whose employes in many cases literally inch their way around the 44 million items already there.

More people are needed to operate the legislative reference service, the copyright office, the cataloguing section that produces most of the cards used by the libraries of the United States, the program for the blind and a dozen lesser known activities, to say nothing of the shelving books and of the scholarly assistance given 864,000 individuals in 1965.

One by one, public rooms of the original building, special reading rooms, exhibit galleries and the like, have lost their original use and their flamboyant turn of the century charm as they were invaded by ugly wallboard partitions cutting them into temporary work spaces.

At the end of a tour, a staffer looked out over the cluttered great hall.

"I don't think there will even be room for the staff Christmas tree this year," she said sadly.

Redistrltricting of Missouri Legislature Wins Approval

KANSAS CITY AP — A three-judge federal panel has ruled that reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri Legislature is constitutional.

"We believe that the Senate apportionment committee and the House apportionment committee have done a commendable job in apportioning the various districts of the state into districts of substantial equality of population," the judges said in their decision, filed Friday in U. S. District Court.

Members of the panel were Albert A. Ridge and Floyd R. Gibson of the U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals and William H. Becker of the U. S. District Court.

The decision pointed out that the state had been divided into 34 senatorial districts varying in population from 132,848 to 122,221. The perfect district would have 127,053 residents.

There are 163 House districts, ranging from 28,778 to 23,856, and the average would be 26,502.

The court said it would take at least 49.1 per cent of the voters to elect one-half of the state senators, and 48.54 per cent to elect a majority of the House.

The decision was made in acting on a motion filed in April by the state, which sought approval of the redistricting and an end to court litigation.

Plaintiffs in the case were Mrs. H. Constance Jones, Stuart E. Hipshman, Harold Holliday, and James L. Robinson, Jr., all of Kansas City. Paul W. Preisler, Joseph Roddy and David M. Grant of St. Louis were intervenor-plaintiffs.

Watch out, Frankie, Mrs. Miller's Singing Your Song

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP — Watch out, Frank Sinatra, here comes Mrs. Miller with her version of "Strangers In The Night."

Capitol Records is rushing a version by Elva Miller onto the market, and the Sinatra hit song may never be the same. But then, the whole record business hasn't been quite the same since Mrs. Miller came on the scene.

Her album, "Mrs. Miller's Greatest Hits," has already sold 150,000 copies, a highly respectable figure. Her style? It has defied description. Suffice to say that she sings teen-age record hits in a mature contralto. She also whistles.

Frankly, at 58 Mrs. Miller has no illusions about her achievement. "I'll go along with it as long as it lasts," she remarked. "It would be foolish at my age to become starry-eyed. If all this comes to an end, I still have my home and my many interests. And I will have had a lot of fun."

It all started because Mrs. Miller, an amateur singer of Claremont, Calif., made regular visits to a Hollywood studio to record songs, mostly of a sacred nature, for her own pleasure. On one occasion, her accompanist, Fred Bock, slipped some rock 'n' roll numbers among her hymns.

"I think you're having fun with Mrs. Miller," she said. But she went along with him. It happened that Capitol had been searching for an operatic voice to render beatle-type hits. Mrs. Miller seemed an ideal choice.

Most of her numbers were recorded in one take, to preserve the ingenuous quality. Some of the errors were deliberate, as in one number when she was instructed to begin singing a half-beat behind the orchestra.

Concerning the sales of her records, Mrs. Miller declared: "I don't understand it, but teen-agers seem to be buying them. As I see it, there are two kinds of teen-agers. There are the sophisticated ones; who dress like Sonny and Cher; they don't buy my album. Then there are the teen-agers who dress neatly; they are the ones who do buy my records."

Mrs. Miller, who had done no real performing since her high school days in Dodge City, Kans., now finds herself in show business. She has appeared on the TV programs of Ed Sullivan, Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and Art Linkletter. During the Griffin show she found herself sharing a dressing room with Sally Rand -- "a nice person; she lives in Glendora, not far from Claremont."

Recently she made her acting debut, portraying a dance-hall singer in a new TV series, "The Road West." Next month she plays her first night club engagement at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe.

Does she have any qualms about appearing in night clubs? "Not as long as the stage is separated from the audience," she said. "I like to sing. What people do in the auditorium is their own affair."

Mrs. Miller has now had to acquire a manager, press agent, tax lawyer, accountant, etc. She is also planning to move to nearby Glendale to be closer to the entertainment capital. Her husband, a retired rancher, John Miller, is sympathetic with her career.

"He knows I am mature enough to realize that things like this run their course," explained Mrs. Miller.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What incident set the stage for the Spanish-American War?

A—In 1898, in Havana Harbor, a blast destroyed the battleship Maine, which burst into flames and sank in the harbor. Of some 350 men aboard, 260 died. The exact cause of the explosion was never known.

Q—Are there any pure races of man today?

A—Anthropologists believe not.

Q—What U.S. citizen was fined in 1872 for trying to vote in a presidential election?

A—Susan B. Anthony. She voted in order to test her status as a citizen.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE is actually a meat loaf layered with eggplant slices and a sour cream sauce. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese adds robust richness to the basic meat loaf and also serves as a sauce to garnish this delectable entree.

Grecian Bake Combines Meat Loaf, Eggplant

Meat loaf in layers with a vegetable and sauce is an interesting departure from the classic meat loaf. Here we've created an appealing oven dish with eggplant as the vegetable. Eggplant slices, sour cream and shredded cheese go between the meat layers. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese gives a glorious color accent to the top.

The hidden bonus with this entree is that very few recognize the eggplant, so have no fears that this dish won't please all the family. They will eat it and love it -- even though there may be some "eggplant-doubters" among the group. Put medium-sized potatoes in the oven to bake at the same time as the meat loaf. Complete the menu with a green vegetable, a crips, cool salad, French bread, and fruit and you have a satisfying meal.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE
1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1/2 c. chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1 tsp. basil
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce with cheese
1 small egg plant, pared and sliced
1/2 c. dairy sour cream
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese

Combine first 7 ingredients with 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Pack half the meat mixture into an 8" x 8" square or round baking dish. Place eggplant slices on top. Combine sour cream and shredded cheese; spread over eggplant slices. Top with remaining meat mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Drain off excess fat. Top with remaining 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Bake an additional 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

C. B. Lane,
Retired Teacher

Dear Charlie:

The American Cotton Farmer is getting a royal screwing from our so-called U.S. spinner "friends"?

The attached letter to the V.P. is self-explanatory. Thought you might possibly be interested.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Honorable Hubert H. Humphrey
Vice President of the United States
United States Capitol
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Cotton farmers are dismayed and shocked to learn of increasing difficulties being encountered by the Department of Defense in procuring cotton fabrics needed for our defense efforts. Requirements for all-cotton materials are being made known by Defense Procurement officials. The supplies of cotton are available but the textile industry and apparel manufacturers appear reluctant to make adjustments required to fill military needs.

In World War II, cotton was listed next to steel as being of strategic and vital importance in the war effort. Also, one of the first acts of our government during the Korean War was to impose export controls on U. S. cotton -- the reason being to assure adequate supplies for military uses.

It is important to note that the imposition of export controls and price ceilings on U. S. cotton at that time triggered a series of circumstances and events that have had an adverse impact on U. S. cotton farmers throughout the intervening years. First, because supplies of U. S. cotton were shut off, foreign cotton prices immediately skyrocketed while the price of U. S. cotton was held down by price ceilings. This price bonanza in foreign markets in turn triggered the beginning of a wave of increased cotton production in foreign countries, often at the expense of badly needed food crops.

This increase in foreign production has been aided and abetted by our foreign aid policies and by our export pricing which has served as an umbrella under which the foreign crop has been marketed. The United States appears to have willingly assumed the position of residual supplier in world markets and the interests of the U. S. cotton farmer and the cotton industry have been sacrificed on the altar of "foreign policy" as virtually important export markets for U. S. cotton have been allowed to be diverted.

U. S. cotton farmers have been called upon repeatedly to make the supply readjustments for the entire world. This has required drastic curtailments of cotton acreage in this country that, in turn, have disrupted the economics of entire communities and areas of the nation.

We now have a radically new cotton program embracing the "one price" concept said by the U. S. textile industry to be the answer to our dilemma. Under the new program, cotton farmers have been required to make new adjustments and to forego many latitudes and freedoms with regard to the use of their farm land even for alternative crops. These adjustments were accepted with the great hope of giving cotton a "fighting chance" in the market place.

Of great significance is the fact that U. S. cotton is being made available to U. S. mills at a price that is approximately 9 cents per pound or $45 per bale less than that which prevailed before the "one price" program was initiated. As a result of cheaper raw material prices, mill profits have increased and the textile industry has been able to finance a massive modernization program under which efficiencies have been dramatically improved.

Now, however, we find our country locked in a life and death battle with international communism. Our President has clearly recognized that we must make a determined stand for freedom in Vietnam or perhaps make such a stand later on in the continental United States. The importance of cotton as a strategic war material is again of paramount and overriding importance.

Instead, however, of a determined commitment by the U. S. textile and apparel industries to supply our Government with all of the cotton materials needed by our fighting men, excuses and foot dragging are being encountered on every hand. Apparel manufacturers, riding the crest of high-consumer demands, evidently do not wish to switch over to military requirements even though shortages of all-cotton uniforms and needed cotton materials have been reported and the cooperation of the industry requested.

On May 3 of this year, the Journal of Commerce reported that the Marketing Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Association had set up a sub-committee to work with the Military -- not to cooperate in filling needs for all-cotton goods that have been demonstrated by tests and experience as superior especially in tropical climates -- but to study new blends for the military. The purpose of the new subcommittee was described as:

"Will seek development of alternate or substitute fabrics in the field of blends for military fabrics now in use under specifications developed in previous wars. In this manner, it is hoped to gear military buying more effectively to present-day production patterns of the industry and increase the number of plants that may be sources of military supply."

More recently, Defense Procurement requested bids on 5 million yards of cotton duck for military use in the Vietnam conflict. Out of the entire U. S. textile industry, only one and one-half million yards have been committed -- but -- the textile industry has come forward and generously offered to substitute nylon for cotton in filling this basic military need.

These developments are shocking and disturbing to cotton farmers who more than any other segment of the entire industry have been called upon to make adjustments and sacrifices. These developments also warrant a close look at the overall problem in the light of the following facts:

1. It is recognized that the military considers 100 percent cotton fabrics to be superior in a wide range of uses.

2. With the large expansion in textile processing capacity and the modernization of the industry that has taken place in this nation, there should be no difficulty in shifting from blends back to all-cotton to fill defense requirements.

3. Mill earnings are at such high levels that they should have no hesitancy or hardship in getting in step with military needs --rather than trying to change the military.

4. This country will have 16 million bales plus of cotton on hand August 1, 1966. And, a new crop -- estimated at 10 1/2 to 11 million bales -- will be harvested this fall.

5. This Administration has given textile mills great assistance. They should not in turn show reluctance to make adjustments in an all-out effort to fill military requirements.

6. Shifting away from cotton will take additional markets away from over one-half million farmers and will reduce their incomes. It will reduce jobs and incomes in hundreds of cotton communities.

7. The success of this Administration's cotton program is predicated on a high level of domestic consumption and exports. Action to fill military requirements for cotton is not only in the best interest of national defense but will also help reduce the supply of cotton already owned by the U.S. Government, and thereby reduce the cost of the current cotton program. Conversely, substituting other materials for cotton on a "second-best" basis will reduce offtake and could jeopardize future markets as well as accounting for immediate losses.

You will recall that a representative group of cotton producers visited with you in your office on May 24 and discussed this problem. We feel that developments since that time emphasize the critical nature of the situation both as it pertains to our Government and individual cotton producers. We wish, therefore, to again call this matter to your attention with the sincere hope that steps can be taken to fill military requirements for all-cotton materials and to prevent the further erosion of cotton markets.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

One of those who recalls the service is Melvin W. Payne, who now lives in nearby Atchison, Kan. Among his mementos is a flag-decorated, gold-embossed Roll of Honor of the men of Company M, 4th Missouri Infantry, who served on the border.

"John D. McNeely was our colonel and Clay C. MacDonald was major of the regiment. Our company was composed mostly of men from St. Joseph and Northwest Missouri, but there were others united from Kansas City," he recalled.

"We were federalized on June 18, 1916, and sent to Camp Clark. I think none of us will ever forget July 4, 1916, as that was the day we left for the border. We arrived at Laredo, Tex. on July 6. We took over the task of border patrol and relieved regular troops who were assigned to go with Gen. John H. Pershing into Mexico looking for Pancho Villa, the Mexican rebel leader, who raided the American city of Columbus, N. M.

"We stayed on the border until Feb. 20, 1917, when we were shipped to Ft. Riley, Kan. We received our discharges there on March 1, 1917."

Ingredients in the squabble which resulted in the guardsmen being sent to the border were Venustiano Carranza, president of Mexico, and the bandit, Villa, a thorn in Carranza's side. Villa, an illiterate farmer but shrewd military leader, who made several raids into the United States.

These raids finally led President Woodrow Wilson to use the National Guard. At first only state troops from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona were federalized. Finally, the entire guard, 100,000 men in all, was called.

With guardsmen replacing them, the regular troops continued into Mexico but met with no success in their search for Villa. The situation became tense as Carranza was angered over the intrusion of American troops into his country.

In an effort to avert war the United States-Mexican Commission was established.

But before the commission could reach an agreement, the world situation worsened as World War I thunder rolled in Europe. American leaders, realizing there was every chance of the United States being involved agreed to begin withdrawal of troops from Mexico in January, 1917, and Carranza was appeased.

The guardsmen were withdrawn and discharge of the units was ordered.

But for many of the civilian soldiers it was only a brief respite from duty.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE is actually a meat loaf layered with eggplant slices and a sour cream sauce. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese adds robust richness to the basic meat loaf and also serves as a sauce to garnish this delectable entree.

Grecian Bake Combines Meat Loaf, Eggplant

Meat loaf in layers with a vegetable and sauce is an interesting departure from the classic meat loaf. Here we've created an appealing oven dish with eggplant as the vegetable. Eggplant slices, sour cream and shredded cheese go between the meat layers. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese gives a glorious color accent to the top.

The hidden bonus with this entree is that very few recognize the eggplant, so have no fears that this dish won't please all the family. They will eat it and love it -- even though there may be some "eggplant-doubters" among the group. Put medium-sized potatoes in the oven to bake at the same time as the meat loaf. Complete the menu with a green vegetable, a crips, cool salad, French bread, and fruit and you have a satisfying meal.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE
1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1/2 c. chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1 tsp. basil
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce with cheese
1 small egg plant, pared and sliced
1/2 c. dairy sour cream
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese

Combine first 7 ingredients with 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Pack half the meat mixture into an 8" x 8" square or round baking dish. Place eggplant slices on top. Combine sour cream and shredded cheese; spread over eggplant slices. Top with remaining meat mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Drain off excess fat. Top with remaining 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Bake an additional 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Dear Charlie:

The American Cotton Farmer is getting a royal screwing from our so-called U.S. spinner "friends"?

The attached letter to the V.P. is self-explanatory. Thought you might possibly be interested.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Honorable Hubert H. Humphrey
Vice President of the United States
United States Capitol
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Cotton farmers are dismayed and shocked to learn of increasing difficulties being encountered by the Department of Defense in procuring cotton fabrics needed for our defense efforts. Requirements for all-cotton materials are being made known by Defense Procurement officials. The supplies of cotton are available but the textile industry and apparel manufacturers appear reluctant to make adjustments required to fill military needs.

In World War II, cotton was listed next to steel as being of strategic and vital importance in the war effort. Also, one of the first acts of our government during the Korean War was to impose export controls on U. S. cotton -- the reason being to assure adequate supplies for military uses.

It is important to note that the imposition of export controls and price ceilings on U. S. cotton at that time triggered a series of circumstances and events that have had an adverse impact on U. S. cotton farmers throughout the intervening years. First, because supplies of U. S. cotton were shut off, foreign cotton prices immediately skyrocketed while the price of U. S. cotton was held down by price ceilings. This price bonanza in foreign markets in turn triggered the beginning of a wave of increased cotton production in foreign countries, often at the expense of badly needed food crops.

This increase in foreign production has been aided and abetted by our foreign aid policies and by our export pricing which has served as an umbrella under which the foreign crop has been marketed. The United States appears to have willingly assumed the position of residual supplier in world markets and the interests of the U. S. cotton farmer and the cotton industry have been sacrificed on the altar of "foreign policy" as virtually important export markets for U. S. cotton have been allowed to be diverted.

U. S. cotton farmers have been called upon repeatedly to make the supply readjustments for the entire world. This has required drastic curtailments of cotton acreage in this country that, in turn, have disrupted the economics of entire communities and areas of the nation.

We now have a radically new cotton program embracing the "one price" concept said by the U. S. textile industry to be the answer to our dilemma. Under the new program, cotton farmers have been required to make new adjustments and to forego many latitudes and freedoms with regard to the use of their farm land even for alternative crops. These adjustments were accepted with the great hope of giving cotton a "fighting chance" in the market place.

Of great significance is the fact that U. S. cotton is being made available to U. S. mills at a price that is approximately 9 cents per pound or $45 per bale less than that which prevailed before the "one price" program was initiated. As a result of cheaper raw material prices, mill profits have increased and the textile industry has been able to finance a massive modernization program under which efficiencies have been dramatically improved.

Now, however, we find our country locked in a life and death battle with international communism. Our President has clearly recognized that we must make a determined stand for freedom in Vietnam or perhaps make such a stand later on in the continental United States. The importance of cotton as a strategic war material is again of paramount and overriding importance.

Instead, however, of a determined commitment by the U. S. textile and apparel industries to supply our Government with all of the cotton materials needed by our fighting men, excuses and foot dragging are being encountered on every hand. Apparel manufacturers, riding the crest of high-consumer demands, evidently do not wish to switch over to military requirements even though shortages of all-cotton uniforms and needed cotton materials have been reported and the cooperation of the industry requested.

On May 3 of this year, the Journal of Commerce reported that the Marketing Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Association had set up a sub-committee to work with the Military -- not to cooperate in filling needs for all-cotton goods that have been demonstrated by tests and experience as superior especially in tropical climates -- but to study new blends for the military. The purpose of the new sub-committee was described as:

"Will seek development of alternate or substitute fabrics in the field of blends for military fabrics now in use under specifications developed in previous wars. In this manner, it is hoped to gear military buying more effectively to present-day production patterns of the industry and increase the number of plants that may be sources of military supply."

More recently, Defense Procurement requested bids on 5 million yards of cotton duck for military use in the Vietnam conflict. Out of the entire U. S. textile industry, only one and one-half million yards have been committed -- but -- the textile industry has come forward and generously offered to substitute nylon for cotton in filling this basic military need.

These developments are shocking and disturbing to cotton farmers who more than any other segment of the entire industry have been called upon to make adjustments and sacrifices. These developments also warrant a close look at the overall problem in the light of the following facts:

1. It is recognized that the military considers 100 percent cotton fabrics to be superior in a wide range of uses.

2. With the large expansion in textile processing capacity and the modernization of the industry that has taken place in this nation, there should be no difficulty in shifting from blends back to all-cotton to fill defense requirements.

3. Mill earnings are at such high levels that they should have no hesitancy or hardship in getting in step with military needs --rather than trying to change the military.

4. This country will have 16 million bales plus of cotton on hand August 1, 1966. And, a new crop -- estimated at 10 1/2 to 11 million bales -- will be harvested this fall.

5. This Administration has given textile mills great assistance. They should not in turn show reluctance to make adjustments in an all-out effort to fill military requirements.

6. Shifting away from cotton will take additional markets away from over one-half million farmers and will reduce their incomes. It will reduce jobs and incomes in hundreds of cotton communities.

7. The success of this Administration's cotton program is predicated on a high level of domestic consumption and exports. Action to fill military requirements for cotton is not only in the best interest of national defense but will also help reduce the supply of cotton already owned by the U.S. Government, and thereby reduce the cost of the current cotton program. Conversely, substituting other materials for cotton on a "second-best" basis will reduce offtake and could jeopardize future markets as well as accounting for immediate losses.

You will recall that a representative group of cotton producers visited with you in your office on May 24 and discussed this problem. We feel that developments since that time emphasize the critical nature of the situation both as it pertains to our Government and individual cotton producers. We wish, therefore, to again call this matter to your attention with the sincere hope that steps can be taken to fill military requirements for all-cotton materials and to prevent the further erosion of cotton markets.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Many Potential Home Buyers Foiled by Rising Loan Rates

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —John and his wife had made up their minds. They would take the $30,000 house in the neighborhood where they thought their children would have a better chance. The down payment of $3,000 had finally been scraped together. Monthly payments on the mortgage would be pretty high for them; but they thought they could swing it, just barely.

"Sorry, said the real estate agent. You should have come back a month ago. Now, the only possible source for the money to finance the purchase is asking a down payment of $6,000. And the interest on the mortgage has gone from 5.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent. Money's tight, you know."

On the other side of the country, an aggressive junior executive was being moved to a new post. Joe was happy at the promotion. His family were reconciled to leaving their friends and the home his wife liked so much. A buyer had been lined up for it.

But just before the deed was to be signed, the would-be buyer backed out. He still liked the house. But to swing the deal for him, the lender of the mortgage money was now asking much more in down payment and carrying charges that would put the monthly payments beyond the stretching point of the prospect's income—even if the asking price for the house was shaved. The lender had explained it was hard to find any money, even costlier money, for the deal—and the going interest rates for everything were up, way up.

Much the same thing is reported here and there by professional builders. The financial institutions that carry them while they build and hunt for home buyers are hard to deal with just now. Banks and savings and loan associations say they're short of funds to lend. They also are fearful that home buyers able to handle the costlier mortgages may prove few and far between.

Tight money is coming as a shock to many folk because the money supply actually is bigger than ever before. But there's a booming demand for credit to run a booming economy. Businessmen are competing for loans. Government agencies and private corporations are selling securities—and competing for any available money.

Homes are still being sold, and still being built. But financial institutions that traditionally lend the money for the purchase of homes are finding it harder to get more deposits, because people with idle money can get higher returns by depositing elsewhere, or buying securities.

Cost of Living Pinch Even Worse in Foreign Countries

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar doesn't go as far as it used to. Even so most other countries have more room for complaint.

Despite all the unpleasantness of the rising cost of living here, other lands have seen a bigger erosion of the market value of their currency in the last 12 or 18 months. And as here, higher food prices often have been the main culprit.

If you figure the market value of the local money as an even 100 in 1955 the U.S. dollar was worth 85 cents in 1965. Only three other countries beat that mark. In El Salvador and Guatemala the local currency still bought the same amount of goods and services 10 years later, as measured by cost of living index. In Venezuela the currency's index value is 89. And in Ecuador it's also 85, as in the United States.

Everywhere else the drop has been pretty bad over the long stretch, right down to the example of Brazil where an index value of 100 in 1955 is a lowly 3 in 1966.

The performance of money in 1965, when the cost of living started climbing in the United States to everyone's discomfort, shows Americans ahead of the game by comparison. In a compilation of the depreciation of the value of money in 45 countries in the last 10 years, the First National City Bank, New York, reports that the decline in 1965 was steeper in 31 of the lands than had been the 10 year average.

The one-year drop was 1.7 per cent in the United States. In Canada the drop was 2.3 per cent. France saw a 2.4 per cent slide. But this bettered its previous experience. The annual rate over the 1955-65 period had been 4.6 per cent in France. Fiscal policies to fight rising inflation apparently were helping France at least slacken the upward pace of the cost of living.

Depreciation in the value of the local money in West Germany, Switzerland and Belgium was held for the 1965 period to 3.8 per cent in each instance. Norway saw a 3.9 per cent decline in the purchasing power of its money.

The United Kingdom and Sweden saw their money depreciate at the rate of 4.6 per cent in 1965. Italy and Ireland each reported a 4.8 per cent drop. In the Netherlands the decline was an even 5 per cent. Denmark's loss was 6.4 per cent.

But of all the industrialized nations Japan apparently was worst hit by the rising cost of living. There, last year's depreciation in the value of money was 7.1 per cent, compared with a 10-year average of 3.7.

So the United States, despite its prolonged economic boom, and its recent pinch on consumer pocketbooks, still has been able to maintain a much lower rate of depreciation than other major industrial nations.

The rising cost of living has been a growing concern here, but a much more pressing one in other lands.

DuQuoin State Fair TV's All Star Revue

DU QUOIN, ILL. --(Special)-- Billed "The Steve Lawrence Show with Eydie Gorme" and "The Perry Como Show", Du Quoin State Fair's 1966 week-long and Labor Day night shows might singularly be called "TV's All-Star Revue".

The Lawrence- Gorme show, which runs Monday (Aug. 29) through Sunday (Sept. 4), is headed by one of the entertainment world's most highly-respected husband and wife combinations while the Labor Day night (Sept. 5) show will feature the inimitable Como himself.

Eydie, whose earliest claim to fame was a vocalist with Tex Beneke's orchestra, signed as a regular on Steve Allen's "Tonight Show" in 1953 and from that moment her career has progressed rapidly.

It was 1957, however, before she and Steve were married after meeting for the first time on the "Tonight Show". They combined their talents in 1960 and have been consistent smashes since. Eydie, in addition, is well known for frequent appearances on TV's "Jack Paar Show", "Password", and "I've Got a Secret".

Como, of course, has laid claim to every honor available to entertainers. A pro's pro, the 54-year-old master crooner promises to be one of the biggest box office attractions in the Du Quoin Fair's history.

Both Lawrence and Como are expected to emcee their respective shows which will include other talented acts as well.

Similar groups, the Young American Singers and The Young Americans will appear and both have long lines of TV accomplishments. The first mentioned will be on the week-long show, the Young Americans on the Como one-nighter.

A recent TV rage, comedians Davis and Reese will appear throughout the week as will Ferry Forst, called "Europe's greatest illusionist", and clever Diane Shelton who mixes beauty with juggling ability.

Both shows will follow two Grand Old Opry performances which are scheduled for opening Saturday (Aug. 27) night and Sunday (Aug. 28). The Du Quoin Fair's new free gate and free parking policy will prevail throughout the 10-day exposition.

GOLDEN BANANA PUDDING

½ cup un-cooked rice
1⅔ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cans (13 ounce) MILNOT, divided
½ cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 package (app. 3½ ounce) banana instant pudding mix
1 teaspoon vanilla
fresh sliced bananas for garnish

Combine rice, water and salt; bring to boil. Stir in 2⅓ cups MILNOT and sugar; cover and simmer about one hour—stirring frequently. Remove from heat, stir in egg. Blend remaining cup MILNOT and pudding mix, stir into the rice mixture—about one minute; stir in vanilla. Pour into deep bowl, cover and chill well. Top with sliced bananas. Serves 8-10.

MILNOT goes better wherever you would use milk or cream . . . in coffee, mashed potatoes, cream soups or desserts. It makes modern mixes richer and tastier, and whips into creamy peaks. Rich in flavor, in vitamins and proteins, because it takes a whole quart of milk to make one can of MILNOT.

MILNOT
use as cream or milk

If cows could . . . they'd give MILNOT.

Wardwell To Command Vessel

WASHINGTON, D.C. -- The United States will commission Wednesday its newest and finest oceanographic research vessel, the USC&GSS OCEANOGRAPHER, the largest, most modern and most completely automated ship built in this country to probe the secrets of the deep sea.

The ship will be commanded by Captain Arthur L. Wardwell, 58, of Chittenden, Vt. Wardwell was born in Chittenden where his mother, Mrs. Clara A. Wardwell, lives. He is married to the former Evelyn Sutton of Sikeston. Wardwell graduated from the University of Vermont and joined the commissioned corps in 1930.

The executive officer will be Commander John R. Plaggmier, 47, of Dickinson, N. D.

The colorful commissioning ceremonies will take place at 2 p.m. at the Washington Navy Yard in the presence of high government officials and invited guests.

Sanatorium to Get New Unit

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Mt. Vernon Sanatorium is going to get a new vocational rehabilitation unit to help recovered patients return to useful jobs.

Joy O. Talley, vocational rehabilitation director for the State Department of Education, and Dr. Charles A. Brasher, superintendent of the Tuberculosis Hospital, have signed an agreement providing $366,000 for the first year of operation.

The federal government provides 75 per cent of the cost.

The unit, similar to those at the Farmington, Nevada and St. Joseph state hospitals, will be headed by Vernon A. Babbitt, now a rehabilitation counselor at the Nevada hospital. It will have a staff of about 33.

British Bar Advises Six-Month Wait For Marriage

LONDON AP - Couples in love should be required to register their engagements with the government and wait six months to marry, the British Bar Association's General Council says.

"If marriages were made more difficult, divorce would become less prevalent," said a memorandum from the council to the British government.

"It is our view that no license to marry should ever - except in some exceptional cases-- be granted until the parties have been engaged for a period of at least six months."

The government is considering lowering the age for marriage without parental consent from 21 to 18.

Eureka Restricts Use of Water

EUREKA, Mo. AP -- The Eureka Board of Aldermen Monday restricted the use of water in the city to necessities only.

The ordinance prohibits use of water at automatic laundries and ready mix concrete plants between three p.m. and midnight.

City officials said the water level in the reservoir is low and might not be sufficient in case of emergency.

Q—What is the name of the first asteroid to be discovered?

A—Ceres, discovered in 1801. It is still the largest asteroid that has ever been found.

Find Treasure In Convenience On Pantry Shelf

Pineapple's a treasure in these kabobs, but so's the fact that they can be made quickly from foods on the pantry shelf.

It's a great convenience to have canned luncheon meat on the shelf for lunch or supper, says Reba Staggs, meat authority. Bake it whole with brown sugar and whole cloves, slice it for sandwiches or grind it on the fine blade of the food chopper for this wrapping around pineapple cubes.

Six wooden skewers are needed. These should be of medium length, measuring from six to eight inches.

Hidden Treasure

2 cans (12 ounces) luncheon meat, chopped fine
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 egg
½ cup milk
18 pineapple chunks
6 wooden skewers

Combine luncheon meat, bread crumbs, egg and milk. Place 3 pineapple chunks on each skewer. Divide meat mixture into 6 portions and mold around pineapple chunks. Place on broiler rack, place broiler rack and pan in broiler so that the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil, turning occasionally. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for broiling. 6 servings.

Many Potential Home Buyers Foiled by Rising Loan Rates

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —John and his wife had made up their minds. They would take the $30,000 house in the neighborhood where they thought their children would have a better chance. The down payment of $3,000 had finally been scraped together. Monthly payments on the mortgage would be pretty high for them; but they thought they could swing it, just barely.

"Sorry, said the real estate agent. You should have come back a month ago. Now, the only possible source for the money to finance the purchase is asking a down payment of $6,000. And the interest on the mortgage has gone from 5.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent. Money's tight, you know."

On the other side of the country, an aggressive junior executive was being moved to a new post. Joe was happy at the promotion. His family were reconciled to leaving their friends and the home his wife liked so much. A buyer had been lined up for it.

But just before the deed was to be signed, the would-be buyer backed out. He still liked the house. But to swing the deal for him, the lender of the mortgage money was now asking much more in down payment and carrying charges that would put the monthly payments beyond the stretching point of the prospect's income—even if the asking price for the house was shaved. The lender had explained it was hard to find any money, even costlier money, for the deal—and the going interest rates for everything were up, way up.

Much the same thing is reported here and there by professional builders. The financial institutions that carry them while they build and hunt for home buyers are hard to deal with just now. Banks and savings and loan associations say they're short of funds to lend. They also are fearful that home buyers able to handle the costlier mortgages may prove few and far between.

Tight money is coming as a shock to many folk because the money supply actually is bigger than ever before. But there's a booming demand for credit to run a booming economy. Businessmen are competing for loans. Government agencies and private corporations are selling securities—and competing for any available money.

Homes are still being sold, and still being built. But financial institutions that traditionally lend the money for the purchase of homes are finding it harder to get more deposits, because people with idle money can get higher returns by depositing elsewhere, or buying securities.

Cost of Living Pinch Even Worse in Foreign Countries

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar doesn't go as far as it used to. Even so most other countries have more room for complaint.

Despite all the unpleasantness of the rising cost of living here, other lands have seen a bigger erosion of the market value of their currency in the last 12 or 18 months. And as here, higher food prices often have been the main culprit.

If you figure the market value of the local money as an even 100 in 1955 the U.S. dollar was worth 85 cents in 1965. Only three other countries beat that mark. In El Salvador and Guatemala the local currency still bought the same amount of goods and services 10 years later, as measured by cost of living index. In Venezuela the currency's index value is 89. And in Ecuador it's also 85, as in the United States.

Everywhere else the drop has been pretty bad over the long stretch, right down to the example of Brazil where an index value of 100 in 1955 is a lowly 3 in 1966.

The performance of money in 1965, when the cost of living started climbing in the United States to everyone's discomfort, shows Americans ahead of the game by comparison. In a compilation of the depreciation of the value of money in 45 countries in the last 10 years, the First National City Bank, New York, reports that the decline in 1965 was steeper in 31 of the lands than had been the 10 year average.

The one-year drop was 1.7 per cent in the United States. In Canada the drop was 2.3 per cent. France saw a 2.4 per cent slide. But this bettered its previous experience. The annual rate over the 1955-65 period had been 4.6 per cent in France. Fiscal policies to fight rising inflation apparently were helping France at least slacken the upward pace of the cost of living.

Depreciation in the value of the local money in West Germany, Switzerland and Belgium was held for the 1965 period to 3.8 per cent in each instance. Norway saw a 3.9 per cent decline in the purchasing power of its money.

The United Kingdom and Sweden saw their money depreciate at the rate of 4.6 per cent in 1965. Italy and Ireland each reported a 4.8 per cent drop. In the Netherlands the decline was an even 5 per cent. Denmark's loss was 6.4 per cent.

But of all the industrialized nations Japan apparently was worst hit by the rising cost of living. There, last year's depreciation in the value of money was 7.1 per cent, compared with a 10-year average of 3.7.

So the United States, despite its prolonged economic boom, and its recent pinch on consumer pocketbooks, still has been able to maintain a much lower rate of depreciation than other major industrial nations.

The rising cost of living has been a growing concern here, but a much more pressing one in other lands.

DuQuoin State Fair TV's All Star Revue

DU QUOIN, ILL. --(Special)-- Billed "The Steve Lawrence Show with Eydie Gorme" and "The Perry Como Show", Du Quoin State Fair's 1966 week-long and Labor Day night shows might singularly be called "TV's All-Star Revue".

The Lawrence- Gorme show, which runs Monday (Aug. 29) through Sunday (Sept. 4), is headed by one of the entertainment world's most highly-respected husband and wife combinations while the Labor Day night (Sept. 5) show will feature the inimitable Como himself.

Eydie, whose earliest claim to fame was a vocalist with Tex Beneke's orchestra, signed as a regular on Steve Allen's "Tonight Show" in 1953 and from that moment her career has progressed rapidly.

It was 1957, however, before she and Steve were married after meeting for the first time on the "Tonight Show". They combined their talents in 1960 and have been consistent smashes since. Eydie, in addition, is well known for frequent appearances on TV's "Jack Paar Show", "Password", and "I've Got a Secret".

Como, of course, has laid claim to every honor available to entertainers. A pro's pro, the 54-year-old master crooner promises to be one of the biggest box office attractions in the Du Quoin Fair's history.

Both Lawrence and Como are expected to emcee their respective shows which will include other talented acts as well.

Similar groups, the Young American Singers and The Young Americans will appear and both have long lines of TV accomplishments. The first mentioned will be on the week-long show, the Young Americans on the Como one-nighter.

A recent TV rage, comedians Davis and Reese will appear throughout the week as will Ferry Forst, called "Europe's greatest illusionist", and clever Diane Shelton who mixes beauty with juggling ability.

Both shows will follow two Grand Old Opry performances which are scheduled for opening Saturday (Aug. 27) night and Sunday (Aug. 28). The Du Quoin Fair's new free gate and free parking policy will prevail throughout the 10-day exposition.

GOLDEN BANANA PUDDING

½ cup un-cooked rice
1⅔ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cans (13 ounce) MILNOT, divided
½ cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 package (app. 3½ ounce) banana instant pudding mix
1 teaspoon vanilla
fresh sliced bananas for garnish

Combine rice, water and salt; bring to boil. Stir in 2⅓ cups MILNOT and sugar; cover and simmer about one hour—stirring frequently. Remove from heat, stir in egg. Blend remaining cup MILNOT and pudding mix, stir into the rice mixture—about one minute; stir in vanilla. Pour into deep bowl, cover and chill well. Top with sliced bananas. Serves 8-10.

MILNOT
use as cream or milk

MILNOT goes better wherever you would use milk or cream . . . in coffee, mashed potatoes, cream soups or desserts. It makes modern mixes richer and tastier, and whips into creamy peaks. Rich in flavor, in vitamins and proteins, because it takes a whole quart of milk to make one can of MILNOT.

If cows could . . . they'd give MILNOT.

Two Conservatives Upset in Virginia Democratic Primary

By JOHN F. DAFFRON

RICHMOND, Va. (AP) — Democratic primary upsets of Virginia's senior pillars of conservatism in both houses of Congress sent tremors through the state's political structure today.

In three key races in the Tuesday election only Sen. Harry F. Byrd Jr. managed to win over the moderate to liberal challengers seeking to restyle the state party image.

However, a few precincts were still unreported and because of close races many winners were only tentative. None of the candidates had conceded by morning.

By the slimmest of margins — less than one-half of one per cent of the vote — Sen. A. Willis Robertson, 79, lost a see-saw fight to State Sen. William B. Spong Jr., 45, a Portsmouth attorney.

The margin of defeat was essentially the same for Rep. Howard W. Smith, 83, dean of the Virginia congressional delegation and chairman of the House Rules Committee.

And Byrd's victory margin was only one per cent in a relatively light vote of less than 435,000. The rival camps had forecast a vote of a half million or better.

Byrd defeated former State Sen. Armistead L. Boothe of Alexandria.

The unofficial Senate vote with only 10 of the state's 2,063 precincts still out showed: Robertson 216,420, Spong 216,899; Byrd 221,512, Boothe 213,227.

Complete unofficial returns from the 262 precincts in Smith's sprawling north central Virginia 8th Congressional District were: Smith 26,521, Rawlings 26,885.

There were two other primaries for the House which didn't shape up as real contests. Rep. Watkins M. Abbitt, state Democratic party chairman, easily trounced a political unknown, Lewis Curling, a Chesapeake attorney, in the southern agricultural 4th District.

In the other race, Clive L. DuVal II, an attorney, trounced Thomas H. Woods, a travel agent, for the party nomination in the northern Virginia 10th District to oppose Republican Rep. Joel T. Broyhill, a member of Congress since 1952.

The outcome in the major races — two upsets and close victory by Byrd who was regarded as a heavy favorite to win nomination for the four years remaining in the unexpired term of his father — almost certainly will cause some adjustments in the party outlook.

Some knowledgeable Democratic leaders regarded the results as a partial ratification — at least — of the gradual shift of sentiment that showed in the 1964 election when President Johnson carried the state into the Democratic column for the first time since President Truman did it in 1948.

Former Sen. Byrd Sr., patriarch of the organization, Robertson and Smith took no part for the national ticket in 1964.

Further shifts of attitude were apparent in the legislature this year with a sudden loosening of purse strings for education and modernization of the state's attitude toward the expansion of public services generally.

But all of the change wasn't obviously in one direction and practical party politics kept the flow uneven.

Sidney S. Kellam, Democratic national committeeman, of Virginia Beach, one of the organization powers, supported both Byrd and Robertson. Yet two years ago it was Kellam, as much as any individual, who helped swing the state to President Johnson.

The narrow Siong victory was directed by William C. Battle. His father, a former governor who came up through the Byrd organization, gave the moderate Spong a warm endorsement in the closing days of the campaign which could have provided the necessary nudge to victory.

Robertson's age vs. Spong's comparative youth and the issue of campaign financing, though, were the major campaign factors.

Banking sources disclosed they were conducting campaign fund drives as a way of saying "thank you" to Robertson — who is chairman of the Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

Robertson's campaigners declined to disclose the amount or source of his campaign war chest in advance of the primary. Spong made a public accounting of what he said were total contributions received.

Smith expressed no grave concern at the apparent loss of his first political campaign in 60 years of public life.

"I will wait until I am convinced that there is no mistake in the tabulation," he said. "If the figures hold up, alright, alright."

Smith thus indicated he might forego asking for a recount which state law allows in elections for the House of Representatives if 500 votes or less separate the winner and loser.

Police Nab Burglar

Charles Stanley Chessor, East Prairie, was charged with breaking and entering of the Leible-Crumpecker Implement Co., in which he was caught at 3:19 a.m. this morning.

Local police were investigating a window open in the garage and went into the building where they found Chessor in the office.

Chessor's car was discovered parked behind the highway department maintenance building on East Malone after he was apprehended.

Sikeston Guards Will Leave Friday

All members of the Sikeston National Guard unit, with the exception of the advance detachment, are requested to report Friday morning, for convoy movement to Camp Ripley, Minn., for two weeks annual field training.

The kitchen personnel will report at 6 a.m., while the balance of the unit will report no later than 6:45 a.m. All members are reminded to take both the garrison and service uniform caps with them.

Fire Destroys Truck Trailer

EAST PRAIRIE -- The trailer portion of a tractor - trailer truck owned by John Henderson of East Prairie was destroyed by fire Saturday. Henderson had the trailer loaded with straw and had been hauling watermelons.

While the vehicle was parked on Poplar street, the straw was ignited by an unknown cause. The tractor was pulled away from the trailer and damage was confined to the latter part of the vehicle.

House at Dudley Leveled by Fire

DEXTER -- A two-story frame house located four miles north of Dudley burned to the ground Monday morning about 10 a.m.

The house was located on the Battles farm and occupants of the house were Mr. and Mrs. Dewey Lusk.

The Dexter Fire Department answered the fire call. Fire Chief Leslie McMunn said that about 50 per cent of the Lusks' clothing and furniture was saved even though the house burned to the ground.

It is believed the house caught afire in the upstairs.

Whistle Saves Life, Fire Destroys Home

DEXTER -- The Paul Rickman residence, a large frame house located at the end of First Street, burned completely Saturday about 2:30 a.m.

The house is located near the Cotton Belt railroad. Rickman told Fire Chief Leslie McMunn that he believed the extra blowing of the train whistle was what awakened him and possibly saved his life. McMunn stated that Rickman "just got out" and that no clothing or furniture was saved.

A bottle gas tank and a kerosene barrel located near the house also burned during the fire.

Rickman was home alone at the time of the fire.

Hospital Expansion Told to Kiwanis

Mayor Kendall Sikes and Harold Jones, administrator of the Delta Community Hospital, were guests speakers at the Kiwanis Club last night at the Rustic Rock.

Mayor Sikes gave the need of raising money and said they must have close to a million dollars in donations to match the Hill Burton Fund of $915,000.00 grant. The total beds available after the new construction there will be approximately 200 beds, Kendall said. The community owned type of hospital has proven to be the most efficient and most dependable way of providing care, he said, for all involved.

Mississippi and New Madrid County courts have contributed money each year to partially cover the loss on individuals who are unable to pay hospital bills. A large area of population now use the facilities of the Sikeston hospital, he said. Business is created in Sikeston when they come to trade here.

Harold Jones stated that the 180 hospital employees have pledged and donated up to date a total of $11,033.00 on the new drive. It was brought out that the fund campaign manager who was brought in will be paid by anonymous donor. This man's salary will not come out of the money collected for the hospital. Administrator Jones said the growth of the hospital has been fantastic, an average of 10 per cent over all with a 37 per cent increase in laboratory tests, a 16 per cent increase in X-Ray tests. In 330 days, people were placed in beds out in the hall 115 days out of 330 or 1-3 of the time, due to crowded conditions.

The new wing will have three floors, the third floor held for future expansion, which can now be added for $123,000.00. The new addition will have a new emergency room to take care of five patients at a time, a new treatment room, a new waiting room, a new conference room, a new press reporter and police headquarters room plus two floors of 34 new beds each.

The hospital now has 26 physicians on the staff, 16 live in Sikeston. The new wing must be built, he said, and will be built.

Kiwanis President Lee Shell held a Board Meeting and announced that the new Learn to Swim program at the Chamber of Commerce pool now has 297 children enrolled under the guidance of a competent instructor, Mrs. Fred Davis, 729 Mimosa Drive.

The Club voted to discontinue fruit cake sales and substitute two pancake days per year instead. More Ford Gum machines were ordered to be placed around town and plans were kicked off for the annual Watermellon Picnic at the George Kirk flower garden grounds.

Final Drawings Drawings Begin For Dexter Hospital

DEXTER -- Word has now been received by the board of directors of the Dexter Memorial Hospital that Hewitt and Royer, the architects and consultants for the new hospital project, have now received sufficient approval of preliminary drawings from the Hill-Harris Agency so that they are now proceeding with full-scale work-drawings.

It is estimated that three drawings will be completed and rady to present for Hill-Harris approval by Sept. 1, and that the hospital will be able to let bids in mid October.

Liberty Township reports that work on One Mile Road has temporarily ceased pending receipt of approval from the state and federal government for alteration and widening of the entrances at Highway 114 and Highway 60. Local and district highway department personnel are giving the township their full cooperation to secure the necessary permits as quickly as possible in order that this road might be completed. John William Ringer, president of the board of directors stated.

At a meeting of the board of directors on Wednesday, July 6, representatives of the Southwest Bell Telephone Company presented an informative film to the board on a hospital interphone system which has recently been developed by Bell Telephone.

Ex-Military Aide Accused of Divulging Information

WASHINGTON (AP) — A former military aide to the Joint Chiefs of Staff has been accused of conspiring to deliver defense information to the Soviet Union.

A federal grand jury indictment naming William Henry Whalen, a retired Army lieutenant colonel, said the information included data on atomic weapons, missiles and the retaliation plans of the Strategic Air Command.

It said Whalen received a total of $5,500 on six occasions between December 1959 and March 1961 from two former Soviet Embassy officials who have returned home.

There was no immediate explanation from the Justice Department nor the Pentagon on the gap of five years between the last alleged offense and the arrest.

Whalen, 51 and now unemployed, was taken into custody Tuesday by FBI agents in suburban Alexandria, Va., where he lives. He was arraigned on the espionage conspiracy charge, which carries a maximum penalty of death, and released several hours later after positing $15,000 bond.

The two Soviets, Col. Sergei Edemski and Mikhail S. Shumaev, were named as coconspirators in the indictment returned by a grand jury in Newport News, Va. The Justice Department said the two were not charged because they are no longer in the United States.

Edemski, former assistant Soviet military attache, returned home in February 1960 and Shumaev, former first secretary, returned in September 1963, the department said.

Whalen, who had been awarded the Legion of Merit and Army Commendation Medal, served in Europe and Japan before being assigned in 1955 to the Army intelligence branch of the foreign liaison office in Washington.

He later was assigned to the staff of the office of the Joint Chiefs of Staff at the Pentagon where he served until Feb. 3, 1961, when he was retired on a physical disability after more than 20 years of active duty.

Whalen's wife, Bernadine, was contacted by Washington Star reporter Walter Gold shortly after her husband's arrest. As he read her an Associated Press story detailing the charges, Gold said she broke into tears and said:

"I don't know how this could happen. It isn't possible. I don't believe, I don't believe it, I'll never believe it. It just isn't true, it just isn't true — he never said anything about this to me.

"Oh, what will I do now — who's going to pay all these bills?"

She declined later to talk with other newsmen.

Later, in a Columbia Broadcasting System interview, Mrs. Whalen described the circumstances under which FBI agents took her husband into custody at their home.

She quoted him as saying at that time he did not know what the arrest was about. Her first information on the accusations, she said, came in her talk with the newspaper reporter.

A PASSENGER, Rose Anna Brashear, Bertrand, was injured when her head struck the windshield of the Volkswagen. Her husband was driving east, when a station wagon, driven by Willard Smith, 33, Cape Girardeau, came off of Interstate 55, east of Miner, onto highway 62, according to the highway patrol.

Harry Jones Has Served 24 Years As Director

One of the nominees for the Daily Standard's Most Courteous Employee is Harry L. Jones, funeral director for the Jackson funeral home in Sikeston since October of 1942.

Until about four years ago when the Rev. and Mrs. Gayle Jackson moved here from Cape Girardeau, the Jackson Funeral Home was known as Albritton's Funeral home and located on North Kingshighway.

Before coming to work for Albritton's over 24 years ago, Jones was employed at a food and meat market. Each day on his way home from work he passed Albritton's. One afternoon John Albritton stopped him and asked if he would like a job. Later they discussed the possibility further, and Jones became a funeral director with Albritton's.

Since Jones has been with the funeral home many things have changed. He said, "The working conditions have improved, new buildings erected, and the staff enlarged." When Jones first began work only Albritton and himself were working; now the staff includes five accomplished individuals aided by the Rev. Jackson and his wife, who bought the original Albritton home.

Jones also talked about the difference of the funeral homes today. One major change is the installation of the chapel in the funeral home; this has made them better able to serve the public.

Overlooking his years of service to the public, Jones decided that he has been quite happy in his profession. "It has been my pleasure to work in this community and serve its citizens," stated Jones.

2 Injured Here in Car-Truck Accident

Two persons were injured Tuesday at 9:50 p.m. in a truck - car accident on Highway 60, three miles west of Sikeston.

The Highway Patrol said a tractor - trailer truck driven west by Roma Lee Chinn, 33, of Cromwell, Ky., and a car driven east by Terry Morris, 20, of Elwood, Ind., collided. Morris apparently went to sleep while driving, and his car swerved across the center line and hit the trailer of the truck, troopers said.

Injured were Morris, he sustained a broken left arm and lacerations of the left hand, and Louise Morris, 37, severe lacerations of the forehead. Both were taken to Missouri Delta Community hospital. Morris will be charged with careless and reckless driving when he is released from the hospital, the patrol said.

One person was injured in a two-car accident at 12:37 p.m. Tuesday on Highway 62 at the east edge of Sikeston.

A car driven east by John Brashear, 60, of Bertrand and a car driven east by Willard Smith, 33, of Cape Girardeau collided after the Smith car pulled onto Highway 62 from the Interstate 55 interchange, troopers said.

Injured was Rose Anna Brashear, a passenger in the Brashear car, with minor cuts and a bump on the head.

The Highway Patrol reported four accidents and three injuries in southeast Missouri Tuesday.

Federal Agency Files Against Poplar Bluff Firms

POPLAR BLUFF -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations were named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act on file in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

Defendants named were Barnes Grocer Co. and Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributor of Poplar Bluff and Piggott, Ark.

The complaint filed by Secretary of Labor W. Willard Wirtz described them as an enterprise with unified operation under common control for a common business purpose. They are charged with failure to pay the required minimum wage, now $1.25 per hour, and the required time - and - a-half for overtime, to employees in stores and distributing installations in Poplar Bluff, and Piggott and Corning, Ark.

The court order sought would require compliance with the statute, and the maintenance of adequate time and pay records, which the complaint said is not now being done.

Investigation of the Missouri establishments of the enterprised was conducted by representatives of the U. S. Labor Department's Wage - Hour Division, under the supervision of Jack R. Younce, head of the St. Louis office.

Eight Treated

David Allen Robertson, fell on patio and received cut on chin; Jackie Taylor, West Helena, Ark., and Robin Ann Taylor, West Helena, Ark., both in car accidents; Dale Woodard, slipped on floor, striking his head; Ronnie Andrews, collided with another player on baseball field; Vella Lee Applewhite, mashed finger in bathroom door; Thomas Gilbert Carlyle, East Prairie, ramp fell on both feet while working; John R. Harwell Jr., fell at high school.

Waitress Class Held Tuesday

The waitresses at the Holiday Inn Restaurant were voted the most outstanding students in the waitress training class, held Tuesday at the Sikeston senior high school.

Mrs. Faye Jeffries of the State Department of Education was the instructor and presented a program on all aspects of waitress work. Warren Manning of the Scott County Health Department spoke on the sanitation aspects of preparing and serving food and also discussed the state laws which apply to restaurants in the field of health and sanitation.

Coroner's Jury Finds Juvenile Guilty of Felony

CHARLESTON -- A 16-year-old Charleston girl was found guilty of committing a felony in the fatal stabbing of Freddie Lee Jones, 19, of Charleston Saturday morning on a Charleston street corner.

Etta Louise Gibbs was found guilty by a coroner's jury at an inquest held here Tuesday afternoon. James Haw has been appointed to represent her in juvenile court, it was reported, but no trial date has been set.

To Restore Matthews Telephone Service

Telephone service is expected to be restored to normal at Matthews this weekend, John Donoho, manager of the Southwestern Bell Telephone Co., reported today.

AC power has been leaking from the lines of the Missouri-Arkansas Power Co. and REA to the telephone company lines, he explained, but the exact cause for the leakage has not been determined.

There is an apparent relationship between the hot weather and the leakage, Donoho said. The trouble begins about 8 or 9 a.m. when the temperature begins warming up and continues to about 8 or 9 p.m. when the temperature becomes cooler.

During the hot weather the noise is so loud that a voice cannot be heard on a telephone, he noted.

To counteract this leakage, the telephone company is making alterations to the phones, replacing the three-conductor tubes with four-conductor tubes, Donoho explained. These four-conductor tubes have an element to counteract the drain of the AC power.

Small Loan Co.s Change Hours

All small loan company's are changing the hours they will be open. Effective this Saturday July 16, they will be closed each and every Saturday. New hours during the week are; Monday through Thursday 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Friday 9 a.m. to 8 p.m.

Other communities with less per capita income than our community have enlarged their hospitals or built hospitals. We must remember that when these communities built or expanded their hospitals, labor and material costs were not nearly as high as they are today. We must have this renovation and new wing for our hospital. Further delay will increase our costs. We can raise the money, and we will raise the money.

Radar Detects Four

Barbara Price, 626 Vernon, Robert P. Gillispie, 1010 N. Kingshighway, Janie D. Ellsworth, 318 Dorothy, and Walden L. McClellan, Sikeston, were all charged with careless and imprudent driving.

PSC to Study Power Rationing In St. Louis

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Missouri Public Service Commission started a full investigation today of power rationing by Union Electric Co. of St. Louis to avoid a power blackout during the current heat wave.

William R. Clark, PSC chairman, directed F. D. Hequembourg, head of the commission's office of utilities, to "make a full investigation of the company's priority schedules on selective power cutoffs and analyze the emergency there and report to the commission."

He said "we are especially interested in determining if any discrimination exists with regard to the power cutoffs."

Clark said he had not received a letter yet from Sen. Maurice Schechter, D-Creve Co., requesting such an investigation. The commission decided on the inquiry after getting numerous complaints from St. Louis Tuesday.

He noted that the company has authority to interrupt the flow of power in the event of an emergency and the threat of a total blackout would be such an emergency.

"IMPROVING" THE CAPITOL

Like knights of old rushing to the defense of a lady's honor, architects, Members of Congress and just plain taxpayers have rallied round the United States Capitol. The cause of their concern is a proposal to extend the west front of the building by as much as 88 feet, a project that would require $34 million and four years of construction work.

The proposal originated in the Commission for Extension of the United States Capitol, whose five members include the Speaker of the House, the President of the Senate, the minority leaders of both houses, and the capitol architect. As it happens, the incumbent capitol architect is no architect. He is J. George Stewart, a former building contractor who was appointed by President Eisenhower in 1954. To Stewart belongs the credit (or blame) for extension of the Capitol's east front, and for construction of the New Senate Office Building and Rayburn House Office Building.

"Vandalism" is a word often used by critics of the plan to extend the west front. But it can be argued that the Capitol is nothing if not adaptable to architectural change, even of a radical nature. The original design was submitted in 1793 by William Thornton, a British West Indian, who, like Stewart, had no formal architectural training.

The British burned the Capitol in 1814. Benjamin H. Lathrobe was put in charge of restoration, only to be succeeded in 1818 by Charles Bulfinch, who brought the design to completion in 1830. However, the structure soon proved inadequate; T. U. Walter was hired to add the north and south wings and the cast-iron dome. This great undertaking lasted from 1851 to 1865.

Since the dome stretched nearly 13 feet beyond its base, Walter proposed that the east front be extended as soon after the Civil War as possible. Stewart, not Walter, came under fire when the east front expansion finally was approved in 1958. But the capitol architect has shown he can endure criticism, just as the Capitol itself has shown it can withstand alteration.

MRS. GANDHI IN MOSCOW

Alignment with East or West is a luxury that India can ill afford. Dependent on the United States for food and on the Soviet Union for protection against Red Chinese aggression, India must of necessity tread the middle path.

The five-day visit to Moscow, starting Tuesday, July 12, of Prime Minister Indira Gandhi exemplifies her country's ambivalent foreign policy. A trip to the Soviet capital could hardly have been avoided after Mrs. Gandhi's journey to Washington last April. Since then, India has relaxed certain economic controls at the insistence of the United States. Mrs. Gandhi's Kremlin hosts no doubt will seek a full explanation of these actions.

Economic reform was part of the price India had to pay for full-scale resumption of American food assistance. Conditions may also be attached to continued Soviet economic and military aid. For a starter, Soviet leaders might demand that India take a more militant position against United States involvement in Viet Nam. India's task is to appease both superpowers without casting her lot with either. It is a delicate maneuver, but one which, off past performance, India seems to have mastered.

RIGHT'S OF THE ACCUSED

"We are very quiet there," Justice Oliver Wendell Holmes once said of the Supreme Court, "but it is the quiet of a storm center." Now comes evidence in the wake of the high court's June 13 decision on criminal confessions that the seat of judgment is as prickly as ever.

Even before the newest decision, which severely limits powers of the police to interrogate suspects, the Supreme Court was under considerable fire for its "social engineering." On the same day of the latest ruling, in fact, U. S. News & World Report went on the newsstands with a testy article entitled, "In the 13th Year of the 'Warren Revolution' -- How Supreme Court is Changing U. S."

Although canny in its timing, USN&WR erred in its conclusion that the Supreme Court now "may be inclined to slow the rapid tempo of court-directed changes in America." The 5-4 decision in the confessions case reveals that the "judicial activists" still are able to carry the day against the "advocates of judicial restraint."

The bitter dissent by Justice John M. Harlan came as something of a surprise. He denounced the majority decision as "dangerous experimentation" and "new doctrine" without substantial precedent. Only three years ago when the Court came under criticism from all sides it was Harlan who offered a defense, declaring that "ill-informed or intemperate criticism of the doings of the courts only serves to breed misunderstandings and ultimate disrespect for law."

THE IMMORTAL
HOT DOG

The hot dog has long been an American institution, and in all likelihood it is destined for immortality. It is inextricably related to fun -- whether that fun consists of sports, picnics, carnivals, fairs, or a still newer American institution, the backyard barbecue.

The hot dog's history is full of nostalgia. According to some accounts, it made its first appearance in 1871 at a Coney Island refreshment center and was an immediate hit. It solidified its popular standing at the Chicago Columbia Exposition of 1893 where Little Egypt was the headliner. Then came 1904 and the St. Louis Exposition -- and the everlasting marriage of the wiener and the elongated bun. This happened after a peddler, finding that the "red hots" were too hot to handle, provided his customers with white gloves. But profits fast disappeared with the globes, so he hit on the idea of a bun to fit the meat.

The hot dog was off and running. It soon became a familiar sight at carnivals, exhibitions and circuses throughout the Midwest. Later it formed its loving association with baseball -- a game which seems to demand that we grasp a hot dog in one hand and something cool and bubbly to drink in the other.

The hot dog has just about everything. It's succulent and cheap, and nothing does more to happily perfume the air, whatever the season. Now, we learn, it is rapidly establishing itself abroad -- one more of America's contributions to an older world!

BACK TO 'START',
LOSE TURN

"Sick" parlor games, which apparently are stepchildren of the sick jokes that were around a few years ago, are reportedly growing popular.

One example is a game of atomic war in which the object is to wipe out your friendly opponent on the other side of the kitchen table.

In another, players compete to see who can win the biggest funeral, with the most expensive hearse, tombstone and plot.

Sick as the sick games are, however, the trend toward them may be a healthy thing for the nation's psyche, says one game thinker-upper. Such games, he believes, help relieve a lot of tensions, frustrations and anxieties.

If this is true, and it probably is, the best game brains in the country ought to set to work devising something that could be played at the United Nations by all the heads of states.

It should be a game in which every president, premier and prime minister could take turns annihilating his enemies, conquering his neighbors, evening old scores and realizing new ambitions. Whoever passed "Go" would collect the world.

Every country, every ideology, would have a chance of winning once in a while. And nobody would really lose, because the nuclear bomb cards and what not would be reshuffled and a new game played every day.

Think of the tensions this sort of thing would relieve.

FRENCH STYLES AND THE AMERICAN MALE

Several Paris Couturiers -- among them Pierre Cardin -- have begun to eye the American men's wear market. Long a major force in the women's fashion field, Cardin and others of his stature have successfully marketed specially designed men's wear throughout Europe. The affluent American male -- young or old -- may well get the next chance to pass judgment on the suitability of these special designs to his tenor and temperament. It has been reported that among these designs a man's white raincoat-- off the peg -- sells for around $350, cotton summer suits for about the same price and a Cashmere sport coat for $600. Then there enters the matter of buying, as typlified by this precisely accurate quote: -- "Men will begin buying clothing like women, for a few months' wear instead of a few years."' Certain women have certainly done that. . . certain men may, too. Good fashion and bad fashion has always been available at many price levels.

It was a swinging party -- lots of chicks, booze and dim lights. Orville Fenderlob was aware of a particularly nifty dish sitting alone in a corner. He went over, clasped her in his arms and began kissing her passionately.

"Stop you fool!" she shrieked angrily, fighting herself loose from his arms.

"Pardon me," Orville bluffed smoothingly, "I thought you were my sister."

"You idiot," she shot back. "I AM."

HOW NOW RED COW?

The Soviet Union is going to pass the United States in milk production this year for the first time ever, the U. S. Department of Agriculture reports.

It extimates total Soviet milk production will be nearly 127.9 million pounds, about 2,370 pounds more than the predicted U.S. total.

Can it be that Khruschev's boast that the U.S.S.R. would eventually surpass the U.S.A. in every way is coming true?

Or dare we hope that milk-fed Reds from a land of contented cows will prove a bit less bullheaded in international pastures in the future?"

TRENDS: "Paisley" has grown into an important name in the men's field, says the American Institute of Men's and Boy's Wear -- and is mistakenly being applied to every bold print pattern. It will continue along these lines, expanded into so - called Persians, medallions, cathedral - window types. . . The basic dark suit for teens in school is a black mohair -- or one with a high sheen. The three-button model is the best seller - the two-button, in the same black suits, is the next best.

"How the hell should I know!" shrieked Nick Nitwit into the phone. "Why don't you call the weather bureau?"

"Who was that on the phone?" his wife said

"How should I know?" he snapped. "Just some damn fool wanting to know if the coast was clear."

The soldier had just returned from two years service in Korea. After an exciting reunion with his wife they went immediately to a hotel. Later that night there was a loud knock on their door and a voice shouted "Let me in."

"Great Scott," exclaimed the soldier, as he bolted upright in bed, "I'll bet that's your husband!"

"Don't be silly," his wife sleepily reassured him, "he's in Korea!"

THE QUESTION REMAINS

The intimately related tax and spending problems grow more clouded.

A short time ago the powerful House Ways and Means Committee voted to increase social security payments and to increase social security taxes by 5 per cent to meet the bill. There are excellent arguments in favor of this move in view of the slow but steady rises in living costs that have characterized the "creeping inflation" of recent years. But, the pros and cons of that aside, this increased tax will go a long way toward offsetting the reduction in income taxes that went into effect last year.

We are facing an ancient truism --- you can't have your cake and eat it, too. And the government, despite the occasional lip service that is paid to the cause of economy, continues to operate on a "spend more, owe more" basis. The disastrous end result of this kind of policy has been seen the world around in the post World War I era. So, an old and increasingly important question remains to be answered: Will we learn from the tragic experience of others before our own economic sins catch up with us at home?

The spenders in Congress have just voted a heavy increase in their salaries although they have failed miserably to show any ability to balance national expense with national income.

CHILDREN'S CREATIVITY
SHOULD BE ENCOURAGED

The Bureau of Educational Research of the University of Minnesota gives the following suggestions in the Catholic Digest for encouraging creativity in children:

1. Treat questions with respect.
2. Treat imaginative ideas with respect.
3. Show children that their ideas have value.
4. Occasionally have children do something "for practice" without threat of criticism.

Doc. Duncan Says

In the past we have read quite a bit of criticism of Communist nations supplanting parents in teaching the children AND taking over all phases of education. Of late we don't read or hear much of that anymore, evidently our people have taken a look around and decided we are in the same boat now. Parents have no say as to what their children are taught or what school they attend. The mention of God in our school is a violation of the law, same as it is in anti-Christ nations. In all history, no nation has ever forsaken God without sooner or later crashing. At present we have our neck out all the way, so to speak. We have more tax free bonds than consumers can pay interest on in normal times and our fighting forces 10,000 miles from home in-between China and Russia. This could be it. Two Commie nations could do the trick.

H. L. Hunt Says

TEDDY IN WIDE
OPEN SPACES

In September 1905, I debarked from a freight train on my way to California, stopping to work in the fields topping sugar beets near Rifle, Colorado. Five months previously, President Teddy Roosevelt had his "temporary White House" nearby while on a hunting trip in the area. His adventures lost nothing in the telling by the ranchers, storekeepers, teachers and other admiring denizens of the Western Slope.

Fourteen years later I bought Valentine Plantation near the South boundaries of East Carroll Parish, Louisiana. Adjoining Valentine to the East was the Leo Shields plantation, whose fine plantation home had been another Teddy Roosevelt "temporary White House" during a presidential bear hunt in the dense canebrakes adjoining Valentine on the West.

I listened long to the planters reciting the prowess of Teddy. Barrel-chested "Jug" Metcalf, who lived on one of his plantations across the Mississippi, told of the dog baying a black bear in a dense canebrake West of Valentine. The canes, an inch in diameter and 10 to 15 ft. tall, grew at a density of about 5 per square foot, and when leaning formed lodges difficult to penetrate or traverse.

"Jug" reported that Teddy shouted, "That bear will cripple or kill those hounds," with which he grabbed a machete and started hacking and pushing his way to where the bear was "at bay." The planters could not stop Teddy, a bear of a man himself. Alone, he reached the great black bear, and when it turned on him, he killed it with the heavy hunting knife.

Teddy's simple, effective foreign policy was "Speak softly and carry a big stick." The stick he was willing to use when necessary, regardless of alleged "world opinion." HLH

But, now and then, don't you have the uneasy feeling that some of the customs, beliefs, gadgets, characters and status symbols of our time are a bit overrated?

Here are a few which we doubt are worth all the hullabaloo of praise sometimes inspired in their behalf:

Home cooking, particularly in households in which the chief culinary instruments are the ice pick and the can opener.

All outdoor cooking within the city limits.

Ice cubes with holes in them.

Sex after 50.

Skinny trousers, skinny lapels, skinny neckties, skinny brief cases and skinny people.

Golf, water skiing, scuba diving and surfboard riding.

The ease of supermarket shopping. A husband who has to bruise his way through a supermarket mob to get a basket of groceries is lucky if he doesn't end up as a basket case himself.

Zip-code mail. It's really not much faster than the old pony express.

The two-car garage. It has no more extra room to store lawnmowers and kids' tricycles than one-car garages.

The helpfulness of airline stewardesses. If you ask one of these busy maidens to help you find your lost false teeth, she asks right back: "Yes, sir, coffee, tea or milk?"

Hairy-chested folk music as sung by long-haired male folk singers who have to play the guitar with their knuckles to keep from getting their fingers entangled in the strings.

Contact lenses, drip-dry shirts and James Bond novels.

Foreign movies that begin and end in bedrooms.

Get-out-of-Viet-Nam books written by Frenchmen who were thrown out.

Pop art, mod clothes, pizza waffles.

Anything that you can get back in exchange for 25 cents and a box top.

The dream that by switching to a different toothpaste or deodorant you'll enjoy a richer, fuller life.

Ranch mink earmuffs.

Bikinis.

Buying emeralds or rare postage stamps as a hedge against inflation.

Napoleon brandy, Beluga caviar and Japanese sewing machines.

The old movies of Humphrey Bogart and the new movies of Doris Day.

Batman jokes, elephant jokes, Italian jokes.

Psychoanalysis and Superman sweatshirts.

Any dance invented since the fox trot.

The advantages of buying now and paying later.

The financial rewards from writing smutty books. Most dirty-book authors drive second-hand cars and are behind in their rent.

The sex appeal of false eyelashes, suntans, and artificial fingernails.

The ability of the average woman to distinguish between administrative skill and physical charm in male political candidates.

The acting ability of Lassie. In "Who's Afraid of Virginia Woolf," Elizabeth Taylor does a far better job of barking.

Vanilla milkshakes, Melba toast and Brigitte Bardot.

The value of garlic in tossed salads and the rhythm system in birth control.

Public interest in spinach, glue sniffing or the collected views of Bertrand Russell.

The power of American womanhood.

Washington Merry- Go-Round

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON -- The Vice President gave a private report to close friends at the Governor's Conference in Los Angeles expressing optimism regarding the Viet Nam war and giving some details to back it up.

One reason for optimism is Prime Minister Harold Wilson's trip to Moscow. The Russians have always been anxious for peace, and have made some peace overtures to North Viet Nam. However, they lack the influence with Ho Chi Minh that the Chinese have, and have always been rebuffed.

Recently, it's reported that the North Vietnamese have been getting war-weary and that Ho has informed the Chinese that his country can't take it much longer.

Prime Minister Wilson will try to impress the Russians that the United States is perfectly willing to have free and fair elections, just as in the Dominican Republic, and will abide by the outcome, no matter which side wins -- even the Viet Cong.

President Johnson wants to hold elections, set up a free government, and then get out.

The President and the Prime Minister of England have been talking two or three times a week over the private phone connecting the White House with No. 10 Downing Street. The public doesn't know this phone exists, but it's called the "Jack-Mac" line, having been nicknamed for Jack Kennedy and Harold MacMillan, who set it up.

LBJ'S GIRL FRIEND

There is one lady visitor at the White House who can always get in whenever she wishes. No appointment secretary has been able to keep her out.

She is Courtenay Valenti, 21/2 year-old daughter of Jack Valenti, former assistant to LBJ, and Mary Margaret Valenti, who long served as Senator Johnson's secretary.

Last week when the President was in Texas, Courtenay decided she wanted to ride a deer. She had heard that there were a lot of deer at the LBJ ranch, so she demanded that her mother put in a call to "Pres." The call was made. But "Pres" was out around the ranch and couldn't be reached. Courtenay was not at all pleased. She saw no reason why the President of the United States should not take her call.

Senators who some weeks earlier had attended a White House conference could easily understand her puzzlement. President Johnson was then meeting with a group of 10 or 12 leaders from the House and Senate, including genial Rep. Harley Staggers, D- W. Va., and austere Sen. Carl Hayden, the Democratic elder statesman from Arizona.

The group sat on couches on either side of the President, who sat in his rocking chair. In front of him, as usual, was his keyboard telephone.

Sitting on the floor at the President's feet was Courtenay Valenti. She sat there very quietly during the high-level conference between the nation's foremost lawmakers, not so much absorbed with their conversation as with "Pres's" telephone and with the occasional guffaw of elder statesman Hayden.

When it was all over Sen. Roman Hruska, R-Neb., telephoned the White House.

$30 BILLION SEWER BILL

American cities face a $30 billion bill for building new sewers in order to prevent pollution, according to Rep. Robert Jones, D-Ala.

"About 1,940 cities in the U. S. have combined sewers - carrying both raw sewage and rain water -- which serve about 59 million people," says the Congressman from Alabama. "These sewers flush about 65 billions gallons of raw sewage annually into the nation's watercourses. Their pollution effects are increasing and seriously damage downstream water quality.

"Ultimate elimination of pollution will probably require, in most cases, complete separation of storm-water from sewage flows. This would cost $30 billion or more, but other methods of control also would be very costly and probably would be only partially effective in preventing pollution."

Jones urges that the job be iniated by all urban renewal projects, both underway and planned. Most combined sewer systems were developed in the 19th century before there was much concern about water pollution.

THE DIPLOMATIC POUCH

Select Chinese pilots, stuck with obsolete planes that are no match for the latest American jets, are being trained in Kamikaze (suicide tactics) . . . Sen. George Aiken, R-Vt., has accused the State Department privately of spreading the false report that Ambassador Edwin Ceischauer wanted to leave his post in Tokyo in order to retain his tenure on the Harvard University faculty. Aiken suspects this was the State Department's way of easing out the most effective ambassador we have had in Japan -- but who was not a member of the State Department's inner circle . . . President De Gaulle has asked the Kremlin to support his efforts to settle the Viet Nam War. He will go to Cambodia, next door to Viet Nam, in September, where he'll use his personal prestige to arrange truce talks. He wanted Russian support . . . The sudden retirement of Foreign Minister Z. A. Bhutto for health reasons has been interpreted as a shift in Pakistan's foreign policy toward the West. Bhutto was regarded as the Architect of Pakistan's friendship pact with Red China.

Inside Labor

By Victor Riesel

Airline Strike Call Was Signal For Sweeping Strike Offensive

WASHINGTON, D. C. -- Now what say the intellectual critics and the university ivory-towerists of the lack of labor militancy? What say they of the "tired old men who lead labor?"

Had these critics left their round tables and forged forth instead of forumed, they would have known what a handful of insiders know -- that labor is on the march again. And that the Machinists' airline strike -- called last Friday -- is the worst in history.

It is not the beginning, for there is a new breed of labor leaders -- and a new breed does not mean a young breed.

It is prelude to strikes on railroads and city transit lines.

It is is the harbinger of new airline strikes, possibly as early as July 27 on the sprawling American Airlines, and later on the system-wide network of the Pan American World Airways -- with all its caretaker operations in missiles and space and atomic experimentation.

The Machinists' airline strike called the signal for open season on all vital functions, anywhere, anytime and in any pursuit.

Thus there will be strike crises, wrought by labor coalitions, which will startle the land from now right on through 1968.

And in the vortex will be men in their sixties -- just like the Machinists' leader "Roy" Siemiller, 62, Navy veteran long before World War II; and his airline specialist, vice president Joe Ramsey, of the same age.

They are militants.

They have replaced still older labor leaders -- and with their cadre came strike calls and walkouts which paralyzed production of swept-wing bombers, phantom jets, Viet Nam type helicopters, scarce ball powder, brass artillery and ammunition shells, million-candle power flares, grenades, small arms and intricate nuclear warhead wirings.

So they did not and will not hesitate to strike airlines, electronic corporations, copper mines, auto factories and aerospace plants in the next months and years.

Machinists president Roy Siemiller is a trade unionist -- pure but not so simple. Soft-voiced, sincere, good-humored, he nonetheless is tough.

He knows what he wants. He wants to deliver to his people.

He is a relatively new national union president. But he is of old union stock. He knows you can't get sherry from squeezing dried-cut grape pits.

So when last year the Civil Aeronaturics Board threatened to cut the fare rates on commercial airlines, Siemiller on September 27 wrote a strong letter to Chairman Charles Murphy telling him: "Though we have often disagreed with the managements of many airlines in the past, we believe they are correct, in this instance, in contending that a cut in fares will dilute revenues without generating enough new traffic to offset that dilution.

"Moreover -- the carriers have committed more than $2.4 billion for new equipment. This investment, plus the more equitable wage scales which, with the overwhelming support of our members, we are fully determined to pursue, demands that CAB refrain from tampering with the currant rate schedule."

Siemiller knows that the better the profits the better the wages. And when he could not get what he wanted -- roughly about half the profits earned -- he struck because he knew that is what his 35,300 followers wanted.

The corporations earned some $200 million last year. They offered increases of some $76 million.

But the International Assn. of Machinists and Aerospace Workers demanded a package of $114 million, though the settling price always is lower. But they fought for a full half of the yearly profit.

They argued that the commerical airline field had been a sick industry but it "was made well by the jets." So union leaders hit hard.

There are other unions lining up for the attack. The Transport Workers Union, which struck the New York City transit system in the year's early turbulent days -- and won a package of some $65 million -- is going after American Airlines and Pan Am -- and the TWU chiefs are newly upgraded, albeit they are in their fifties and more.

There is no containing the "newcomers" -- whether they be the "younger" Paul Jennings of the International Union of Electrical Workers or the stalwart I. W. (Abe) Abel, the "man of steel." "Abe" is, at once, of the older generation and the new breed.

They waited long for their chance to deliver. They believe their predecessors were too close to the government, the Secretary of Labor, the White House, the President.

They have returned to the birthplace of their profession, the original weapon -- the picket line.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Spane

Miss Sharon Sims Says Vows With Ronald Spane Saturday

ADVANCE -- A single, very large basket of white gladioli on a tall standard centered the altar and was the focal point in a setting at the Methodist church Saturday evening for the 8 p.m. wedding of Miss Sharon Sims and Ronald Spane.

The flower arrangement was flanked on either side by a seven branched candelabrum. Potted palms completed the altar arrangement while satin bows of blue, marked the pews

The former Miss Sims is the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims of Advance. The groom is the only son of Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane of Painton.

The Rev. O. D. Niswonger of Patton officated at the double ring ceremony. Miss Eva Moore was at the organ to play the nuptial music and to accompany the solosts, Miss Sondra Harnes, of Advance, and Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., brother-in-law of the bride.

Ushers, who also served as candlelighters, were Mark Elfrink and Bob Kirpatrick of Advance, Mrs. David Harris, of Springfield, a sister of the bride, registered guests.

Preceding the bride to the altar was Miss Sondra Ward, of Advance, the maid of honor. Bridesmaids were Miss Lura Robinson of Advance, Miss Teresa Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., a niece of the bride and Miss Tonya McGill, of Sikeston, a niece of the groom.

The bride's attendants wore identically fashioned waltz-length dresses of corn-flower blue, dotted dacron. The fitted bodices were cut empire style in front and sloped to a natural waistline level in the back. The double-ruffle trim with velvet ribbon was used on the sleeves and at the neck and waistline, where the ribbon terminated in streamers at the back. They wore bandeau-pillbox headpieces with ripple veils, and each carried a single, long stemmed white rose.

Escorted to the altar by her father, the bride was gowned in traditional white, creation of angel-mist taffeta and chantilly lace.

Scallops of lace, studded with sequins, finished the deep-scooped neckline. The bodice was fitted and the long sleeves came to a point over the hand.

The very bouffant floor-length skirt, worn over hoops, had a deep scallop trim at the bottom. An overskirt in front was accented by an applique of lace sprinkled with sequins. The watteau chapel-length train had a lavish use of the sequin-studded lace and was detachable with a Dior bow, high above the waistline.

The tiered veil of imported illusion was secured to a frosted headpiece. The bride's bouquet was a cascade arrangement of white roses and pompons.

The mother of the bride chose a two-piece gold metallic dress with white accessories. Her corsage was white carnations. The mother of the groom chose a two piece off-white metallic dress with white accessories and a corsage of white carnations.

James John Sims, only brother of the bride, served as best man. Groomsmen were David Dalton, Bell City; Billie Raber Advance, and Robert Jenkins, Bloomingdale, Ill., nephew of the bride.

Suggestive of the bride's wedding colors, Mr. and Mrs. Sims used a blue and white decorating scheme when they received guests in their home following the ceremony. Bowls of blue hydrangea and baby's breath appointed the reception room; the bride's table was laid with lace over blue and was centered with a tiered white cake with blue accents, with white and gold gas candles tied with blue ribbon bows. The cake was baked by the mother and decorated by LeRoy Stilts, a friend of the bride.

The cake was served by the bride's aunt, Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield. The punch was poured by Mrs. Robert Fowler of Addison, Ill., sister of the bride and Mrs. Charles McGill, of Sikeston, sister of the groom. Mrs. Earl Jenkins of Bloomingdale, Ill., and Mrs. David Harris of Springfield, sisters of the bride; Mrs. Wilbur Raber of Advance and Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride, of Advance, also assisted at the table.

The former Miss Sims is a graduate with the 1966 class of the Advance high school and is employed by the Abest Data Processing Company, of Villa Park, Ill.

Spane is a graduate of the Bell City high school and attended State College, Cape Girardeau, the past year. On returning to College he will be a junior. For the summer he is employed by the Abbott Construction Company of Chicago, Ill.

BRIDAL SHOWER

The former Miss Sims was feted Thursday evening at a miscellaneous shower in the dining room of the Methodist church.

Mrs. Wilbur Raber arranged the shower event. She was assisted by Mrs. George Skyles, aunt of the bride; Mrs. H. R. Cresap, Mrs. Ivan Ward, Mrs. Joe Tilley, Mrs. Fred Stilts, Miss Eva Moore, Mrs. James Harnes, Mrs. B. H. Sample, Mrs. Lyman Zimmerman, Mrs. Robert Crader and Mrs. Clyde Refelle.

Blue hydrangeas with blue corn flowers and baby's breath provided a centerpiece for the refreshment table arranged by Mrs. Zimmerman. Serving the table were Mrs. H. R. Cresap and Mrs. Wilbur Raber. In opening of gifts, the honoree was assisted by her sister, Mrs. Earl Jenkins and Teresa Jenkins, a niece, of Bloomingdale, Ill.

Out-of-town guests included Mrs. Marion Vancoy, of Belleville, Ill., Mrs. Cecil Swallows, Bloomfield; Mrs. Lyman Spane, mother of the groom of Painton, and Mrs. Charles McGill, sister of the groom, of Sikeston.

HOSTS TO THE WEDDING PARTY

Mr. and Mrs. Lyman Spane entertained in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Nathan M. Sims, Friday evening, following a rehearsel at the Methodist church to compliment the marriage of their son, Ronald Spane, to Sharon Sims.

Guests were members of the wedding party.

Miss Ginger Chism

Ginger Chism Is Engaged To John Netteler

Mrs. Cuma Chism, 1401 East Gladys St., announces the engagement of her eldest daughter, Ginger, to John Netteler, son of Mrs. Patricia Netteler, route two.

The bride-elect is the granddaughter of Mrs. Esther Walls of Matthews and Mr. and Mrs. George Chism. She is a 1966 graduate of Sikeston high school and is employed as a secretary at the Braswell Sani-Soft Water Service.

The prospective groom is a graduate of Sikeston high school and is now serving with the 9th Infantry Division at Fort Riley, Kans.

Wedding plans are indefinite at this time.

Sharon Walker Is Honored With Lingerie Shower

Miss Sharon Walker, bride-elect of Wayne Hatley, was honored at a lingerie shower Wednesday. Her bridesmaids, Miss Ann Bess, Miss Sandy Ford, and Miss Katie Blanton were hostesses.

The Bess home was decorated with roses, pom-pom daisies, and Marguerite daisies. The bride's table was covered with a lace cloth and centered with white tapers in triple crystal candelabra and a silver bowl of yellow and white Marguerite daisies.

Miscellaneous advice was given to Miss Walker by each guest. Pictures were taken during the evening and presented to the bride-elect as momentoes.

The guest list included Mrs. J. N. Walker, Jr., mother of the bride-elect; Mrs. Atlas Hatley and Miss Sharon Hatley, mother and sister of the bridegroom; Mrs. Cynthia Cullins, Misses Becky Turner, Judy Sidwell, Sandy Carr, Anne Wissman, Pat Howard, Brenda Schaeffer, Carol Miller, Kay Woods, Mary Cauthorn, Kathy Hahs and Pat Wilson.

BALTIMORE MUTUAL—or the Robinsons, Brooks and Frank—is a special kind of life insurance to the Oriole pitching staff. Their spectacular hitting and fielding offsets slips by Baltimore pitchers.

By MIKE RATHET
Associated Press Sports Writer

ST. LOUIS AP -- "You read what an edge the National League has," said Detroit pitcher Denny McLain, "How their pitching is better, how their hitting is better. It's as if we're supposed to go out there and concede the game."

The National League did that, 2-1 in 10 innings.

Only in Tuesday's 37th All-Star Game it wasn't better pitching and it wasn't the powerful NL sluggers who took command. The job was accomplished with a pair of 10th inning singles by Tim McCarver of St. Louis and Maury Wills of Los Angeles, and extended National League domination of the midsummer classic through 10 games.

The American League has won only once during that period-there also was a tie-and the National now has reeled off four straight victories while pushing its over-all lead in the series to 19-17-1.

There's little doubt that the American League wanted this one. Manager Sam Mele even admitted that the Al Stars were getting embarrassed, and Baltimore third baseman Brooks Robinson would have handed back in awards and records for a victory.

Robinson, who played the full 10 innings and collected three hits, the Most Valuable Player award and two fielding records, said as much after the game.

"It's nice to get the MVP thing and nice to get the records, but it's nicer to win," Robinson said. "A hit in the right place the last couple of years and we win one. But they win. . . well. . . it takes a little glitter off everything."

It may have taken some of the glitter off, but there was no shoving the American League around. As a matter of fact, the American League came awav with all the awards, better pitching performances and the same number of hits. But they couldn't find a way to win.

"Score a few more runs," said Baltimore's Frank Robinson, who used to be on the National League side. "That's the only answer."

The answer, however, came from the National League after a 10-inning struggle in oppressive 102-degree heat that turned new Busch Memorial Stadium into a furnace. It was so hot that about 100 of the 49,936 spectators were treated for heat exhaustion and several deaths in the St. Louis area were attributed to the heat.

The heat was on the National League at first, despite the fact that the Dodgers' great left-hander, Sandy Koufax, was making his first All-Star start.

In the second inning, Brooks Robinson slammed a liner to left field. Hank Aaron of Atlanta, started back, apparently lost the ball in the sun, then raced in, but was unable to make a shoestring catch. When he retrieved the ball Robinson was standing at third with a triple.

Boston's George Scott fouled out but Koufax then uncorked a wild pitch over the head of Atlanta catcher Joe Torre and Robinson raced home for a 1-0 lead. McLain protected that with three perfect innings, taking only 28 pitches to retire nine batters.

Willie Mays of San Francisco then started things for the National Leaguers against Jim Kaat of Minnesota, rifling a single to left in the fourth inning for his 22nd All-Star hit and extending his own record.

A single by Robert Clemente and a grounder got Mays to third and he raced home on a dribbler down the third base line by Ron Santo of the Chicago Cubs that went for a single. The run also extended another one of Mays' records, giving him 19 in All-Star competition.

It stayed 1-1 through a profusion of pitchers - Mel Stottlemyre of New York and Sonny Siebert of Cleveland for the American and Jim Bunning of Philadelphia and Juan Marichal of San Francisco for the National- until the 10th when Gaylord Perry of the Giants ran into trouble.

Brooks Robinson led off with a pop fly single, and immediately proceeded to second on a wild pitch.

"I felt good," Perry said. "Robinson broke his bat on that hit."

Still there was a conference as Manager Walt Alston trotted out.

"He was getting a little tired," said Alston. "I went out to talk to him to give him a little breather."

Perry went back to work. Detroit's Norm Cash flied out, Willie McCovey of San Francisco reached into the stands for a pop by New York's Bobby Richardson and Perry threw a third strike by California's Jim Fregosi.

Then Washington's Pete Richert, a left-hander, came in to pitch for the American with McCarver, also a left-hander, due up. The book called for a pinch hitter.

"It was no hunch to let McCarver bat against the left-hander," Alston explained. "He hits left-handers pretty well."

"I was on my own whether to bunt or hit away." Wills said. "A safe bunt would have been a great play - men on first and third."

Wills squared away as if to bunt, then pulled back on the pitch.

"I started to bunt, but it was a bad ball," he explained. "Then I noticed Brooks Robinson move a couple of steps at third, so I decided to hit away."

The hit didn't go to Robinson. It went to the opposite field, but fell in for a single that Tony Oliva of Minnesota grabbed on one hop and fired home - too late to get the sliding McCarver.

"Two - to - one," said Mccarver later, "that's a laugher for Los Angeles."

But not the American League.

By HAL BOCK
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Communist bloc has dropped the other shoe with Poland joining Russia's boycott of scheduled track and field meets in the United States this month.

Now amateur sports officials are waiting to see whether the International Amateur Athletics Federation drops either shoe on the Communists.

The IAAF, headquartered in London, presides over track and field throughout the world and could administer a severe wrist slapping to Poland and Russia for failing to keep their commitments, a tactic the IAAF usually frowns upon. So far, it has remained silent.

Polish athletes were ready to leave for their scheduled meet at Berkeley, Calif., this weekend when word of the cancellation came Tuesday. The Russians had called off their July 23-24 meet in Los Angeles on Monday. American involvement in the war in Viet Nam was given as the reason for both pullouts.

In Chicago, Avery Brundage, president of the International Olympic Committee, said he deplored political influence in sports.

"Representatives of all countries have joined in denunciation of political influence," Brundage said. "In this case, the first reaction will come from the IAAF to determine if there is a violation of rules or principles.

Col. Don Hull, executive director of the Amateur Athletic Union, who is in Europe, said he would fly to Moscow to try and bind the split.

Hull told Glenn Davis, director of the Los Angeles meet, in a telephone conversation that he "could not believe the Soviet sports people would jeopardize their standings with the IAAF by failing to complete their contract to compete in Los Angeles."

The Communist sports freeze extended to basketball with the announcement that Russia, Poland and Czechoslovakia were cancelling games against a touring American all - star team.

The Americans opened their swing through Europe with a 104-81 victory over an Austrian team in Vienna Monday night but plans for the remainder of the trip were uncertain.

Meanwhile, the 19 - member U. S. swimming team arrived in Moscow to compete in an international meet this weekend. The team was treated routinely in line with the Soviet announcement that it would take no action in events involving other countries besides the United States. The meet involves a number of countries besides the United States and Russia.

Plans went ahead in Berkeley and Los Angeles for replacement meets. The Berkeley meet was renamed the All-American Invitational and Los Angeles promoters invited Australian and New Zealand teams to compete in their meet.

Frederick Humphreys, manager of the Australian track and field squad, said he thought the Australians would accept the invitation.

At the same time, the Russians and Poles agreed to compete against each other at Minsk, Russia, July 23-24, the weekend the Soviets were to be in Los Angeles.

Polish officials seemed saddened over the cancellation and so were the American athletes.

"If only the Russians had waited a day or two to announce their decision," said one Pole, "we would have been on our way."

The announcement came only hours before the Polish delegation was to leave for the United States.

Ralph Boston, veteran Olympian and holder of the world record in the broad jump, called the Polish cancellation unfortunate. "There always had been good relations between the athletes," Boston said.

The Americans lost to the Russian men 118-112 at Kiev last summer after winning six of the previous seven meets. At Warsaw last year, the Americans beat the Poles 118-93.

Cards Announce Photo and Autograph Night

On July 19, during the opener of a three - game series with Atlanta at new Busch Stadium, the Cardinals for the second year will distribute Photo - Autograph Folders to fans in attendance.

The attractive folder contains individual pictures and printed autographs of Manager Red Schoendienst, all Cardinal players and members of the coaching staff. A Red Bird roster is also included.

Tickets for the three-game set with Atlanta can be purchased over the counter or by mail at Busch stadium, St. Louis, Missouri 63102.

Steinbeck Fires Challenge Back

GARDEN CITY, N.Y. AP - John Steinbeck responded Monday to a plea by Soviet poet Gevgeny Yevtushenko that the American novelist speak out on the war in Viet Nam.

In an open letter to the Russian published in the Long Island newspaper Newsday, Nobel and Pulitzer prize-winner Steinbeck chided Yevtushenko.

"You know well how I detest all war," wrote Steinbeck, "but for this one I have a particular and personal hatred. I am against this Chinese-inspired war. I don't know a single American who is for it."

"But, my beloved friend, you asked me to denounce half a war, our half. I appeal to you to join in denouncing the whole war."

Handless Batboy Finds Some Big League Pals

By DICK YOUNG
Globe-Democrat Special Writer

In a locker, in the corner of the American League clubhouse at Busch Memorial Stadium, stood a Louisville slugger bat. Burned into the barrel was the name, "Jay Mazzone."

A young boy in an American League uniform walked over to the locker, picked up the bat and flipped it fondly and you watched him and marveled, because Jay Mazzone has no hands.

Jay Mazzone was the batboy for the American League All-Stars Tuesday. On other days, he is the batboy for the visiting club at Baltimore. Some players will tell you he is the best darned batboy in the American League.

When Jay Mazzone was 2 1/2 he played with fire. That was 10 years ago. His face has the wrinkled scars of fire from ear to ear, where a man would grow a beard, and where his hands should be there are claws in the shape of a hooked-v, and each is operated by a long, thin cable which runs up the arm sheath.

There is hardly anything a batboy in the big leagues can do that Jay Mazzone cannot do, and there are some little things Jay Mazzone does extra because he has the attentiveness and the desire of the handicapped to succeed.

A little more than a week ago, Jay Mazzone was notified by Joe Cronin, the A. L. president, that he had been chosen batboy for the All-Star game. The Twins were in Baltimore at the time. The first thing the kid did was to go to Sam Mele, who was the manager of the American League team, and ask him if there were any little services he might do for him during the All-Star game. Since then, as the names of the players were announced in the newspapers, Jay Mazzone would study them, and remember what each man expects of him.

"They are all different," says Jay Mazzone.

Somebody asked for an example and the kid smiled.

"Well," he said, "there is Birdie Tebbetts. Every inning he has to have Sanka. He is a very nice man."

Somebody asked who else Jay Mazzone liked among the visitors to Baltimore.

He thought a moment. "Whitey Ford," he said finally. "He always talks to me, and Ed Stanky."

Jay Mazzone thought of more names, and they came faster and soon you got the idea. He likes everyone, and everyone likes him.

The fellows Jay Mazzone really likes are the ones across the field each day in Baltimore, the ones he roots for, the Orioles. That is the tough part of the job. He is on the other side, and he must root in silence. He cannot cheer, like the other kids in Baltimore, when Frank Robinson hits a homer, or Brooks.

A batboy gets $2 a day, which isn't much, plus tips, which are generous. Before Mele and the Twins played their last game in Baltimore last week, they had something extra for Jay Mazzone. They took up a collection, and Mele handed the kid $170 and said, here, get yourself a new suit and things for your trip to St. Louis.

When it came time to come to the All-Star game, Jay Mazzone had an offer of a lift. The Angels had wound up in Baltimore, and they were using the White Sox plane to fly back L. A. They were stopping off in St. Louis to drop their All-Stars, Jim Fregosi and Bobby Knoop, and they would be glad to take the kid along, and his dad, who is an undercover man on the Maryland State Police.

As the plane neared St. Louis, they handed Jay Mazzone something. It was money. $410 dollars of it. They had taken another collection.

"Have a good time in St. Louis," said Bob Rodgers.

There are some very wonderful people in this world, and some of them are in baseball. And then there are the ones who can leave Mickey Mantle out of an All-Star game.

Scientists Believe Hail Control Near

RAPID CITY, S.D. (AP) — Scientists, concluding the largest study of its kind, say they believe they can help reduce hail and prevent millions of dollars in crop damage.

But they are uncertain whether preliminary findings would be applicable outside of the Northern Plains area.

Dr. Richard Schleusener, head of a team of scientists doing the study here in conjunction with the National Science Foundation, said the team is optimistic that cloud modification through cloud seeding could reduce hail and increase rain.

The group, including 70 weather scientists representing 23 organizations, conducted a 30-day survey using a maze of equipment to change the composition of clouds.

"What has been accomplished during this test in western South Dakota will point the way toward hail mitigation procedures in the foreseeable future," Dr. Schleusener said.

It will be several years before continuing field programs will be able to provide firm conclusions, he said, but that the scientists were optimistic about initial findings in the study dubbed "Project Hailswath."

During the 30 - day period, there were 10 in which cloud conditions enabled seeding with silver iodide by various methods and leaving other areas unseeded for comparison purposes. The boxscore for the project indicated less hail in the seeded areas than the corresponding non-seeded areas.

Dr. Schleusener said there was no way of knowing from the study, a pilot project, to what extent hail was reduced and rain increased.

Rainfall during the period was .43 of an inch in the seeded area, .29 of an inch in the non-seeded area, he said.

The scientist said weather is influenced by different factors in the various regions of the nation and that preliminary findings may not apply outside of the Northern Plains.

Dr. Wallace E. Howell, Lexington, Mass., one of the participants in the study, said the benefits of suppressing hail would be many times over the cost of cloud seeding. He said the nation has an annual loss of $300 million due to hail, including $150 million in direct and $150 million in indirect damage.

Easy Living Blamed For Flabby, Stooped Postwar Generation

LOS ANGELES AP -- The postwar babies have grown into a flabby generation of Americans, puffed by the easy life, and stooped by lengthy television vigils.

That's the opinion of athletic trainers George Sullivan of the University of Nebraska and William Newell of Purdue University, at the 43rd annual American Physical Therapy Association meeting here.

"They're too fat," Sullivan said Monday of Americans born in 1945 and 1947.

"Youngsters use power mowers to mow the lawn, ride bicycles almost as soon as they've learned to walk, and then, of course, graduate to cars and motor bikes," Newell said.

"They get round shoulders and curvature of the spine from sitting in front of television like this," Sullivan said, demonstrating a slumped position with most of the body weight on the back of the neck.

Du Quoin Fair To Feature Four Days of Racing

DU QUOIN, Ill --An estimated $264,540 in purses, including $125,000 for top place- winners in the Hambletonian, will again make the 1966 Du Quoin State Fair one of the richest of all non- wagering harness racing meetings in the world.

A major stop on the Grand Circuit for years, the Du Quoin Fair features four other days of quality harness racing in addition to Hambletonian Day, Wednesday, Aug. 31, when top three - year - old trotters seek the most coveted prize in the business.

Grand Circuit week opens Monday, Aug. 29, at Du Quoin when a full card of Illinois Breeder's Futurity races offers purses totaling $14,000.

Tuesday's lineup is highlighted by the $25,000 Castleton Farm Stake for two-year-old trotters. A Breeders' Filly Stake for two - year-old trotters offers a $7,000 purse and four overnight races add $6,000 more to the day's total purse.

Although the Hambletonian captures prime attention Wednesday, the McMahon Memorial State for two - year - old pacers has a $24,000 tag and is a hotly - contested event each year. Other races for two and three - year - old pacers Wednesday are worth $6,000 each.

Thursday, Sept. 1, will be another day of outstanding racing. Feature event is the Hambletonian Maturity for four - year-old trotters and 18, including Noble Victory and Armbro Flight, are still eligible for the $20,000 event. Breeders' FKI $20,000 event. Breeders' filly Stakes for three - year - old pacers and trotters carry purses of $14,000 and four overnights assure at least 10 heats with seven different fields.

As far as horses are concerned, Friday is Land of Lincoln Day as the afternoon is reserved for Illinois Colt Stakes. Daily post time is 1:30 p.m. CDT.

Bertrand Downs Dexter

BERTRAND -- Dexter fell short of the home town nine here last night in Connie Mack play, by going down to defeat 12-11 in eight innings.

Doug Simmons, who relieved Dwayne Byrnes in the sixth inning was credited with the win.

Walter Lane started for Dexter but was relieved in the fifth inning by Ron White who pitched an inning and was relieved by Ken Walker who was charged with the loss.

Fred Brenderman pushed across the RBI's in the second inning for Bertrand, with a homer.

Bertrand is to travel to Poplar Bluff Thursday.

Split Season On Mourning Doves

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Missouri will have another split season on mourning doves this year under regulations announced Monday by the State Conservation Commission.

The season will run from Sept. 1 through Oct. 10 and again from Nov. 10 through Nov. 29. Limits are 12 a day and 24 in possession.

For rails and gallinules the season will be Sept. 1 through Nov. 9 with limits of 15 a day and 30 in possession.

For Wilson's snipe and woodcock the season runs from Oct. 11 through Nov. 29 with limits of five a day and 10 in possession for woodcock and eight a day and 17 in possession for snipe.

Special permits for the early teal season, Sept. 17 through Sept. 28, may be bought until Aug. 18.

Your Dental Health

Let's Keep Our Teeth-We Can PRECEDE: Despite modern knowledge, dental disease is on the rise. In this country alone, it has been estimated that about 97 per cent of the population suffers from dental decay or diseases of the gums and other supporting tissues of the teeth. Yet dentists tell us that most tooth loss can be prevented, that most dental disease can be stopped before it starts. So that you may act to improve your health, Sikeston Standard in cooperation with the Southeast Missouri society today begins a series of articles on "Your Dental Health."

Members of ancient tribes often wore teeth around their necks as a mark of beauty. We moderns like to wear them in our mouths.

But it has only been in recent centuries that man has considered his teeth to be of real importance. Until the major killing diseases were brought under some measure of control, man had too many other things to worry about. Why be concerned about keeping his teeth when his life expectancy was only 35 or 40 years?

But now, the average man lives until age 70 -- and in his seventieth year he should still have his natural teeth.

If we follow the rules of good dental health, the American Dental Association says, our teeth can last a lifetime. Nature meant them to.

Strange, isn't it, that although our teeth are naturally strong and although we know more than ever about how to keep our teeth, most Americans suffer from dental disease.

A recent national survey showed dental patients under four years of age had an average of three teeth in need of fillings:

--those aged 15 to 19 had five on the average. And these figures don't include those persons who never see a dentist.

--one American in eight has no teeth at all.

Yet if we understand the cause of tooth loss and act on our knowledge, we need not be a nation of dental cripples.

What are our teeth like?

The crown is protected by a hard outer coat of enamel. The bulk of the tooth under the enamel consists of dentin. Inside the dentin is the pulp, a delicate tissue, which contains nerves and blood vessels.

The root of the tooth is covered with Cementum, which serves to bind the tooth to the jawbones and the gums by means of periodontal fibers projecting from it. The jawbone, periodontal fibers, and the gums are the tooth's supporting tissues.

The enamel protects the tooth against damage from the outside and provides the hard surface we need for biting and chewing. The dentin, which is also hard, and the pulp, provide the pathways for tooth nourishment. Food for the tooth is carried by the blood stream through the jawbone and into the tooth's blood vessels in the pulp.

So long as the teeth remain intact and the supporting tissues are kept strong, our teeth remain healthy.

Good dental habits assure good tooth health. In future articles, we will discuss what these dental habits are.

COFFEE CORNER

by Cherie

Boy, am I ever pooped! Thanks to my general coming apart at the seams, it was deemed best I get someone in to help me do my housework, and I believe all this extra aid has just about done me in.

I felt like you do sometimes when you wash your hair before going to the beauty parlour, I just didn't want anyone seeing certain spots before I'd had a chance to clean and straighten----particularly the "black hole of Calcutta", or in other words, the boy's room. I never saw so many broken toys in all my life!! You know all these new modern gadgets that are made of bright plastic and are so sanitary? Well, I wish they were a little more germy and a little less breakable. You know, the only toys my kids can play with that are still intact, are the things they have dragged down from Mama Mickey's attic that belonged to me ---some were even hers. Oh, for the days of rubber and steel and nice solid wooden blocks---it's a cinch they wouldn't cost anymore than these cheap plastic items you get the pleasure of being drastically overpriced for, and then get to take home in a box to put together (always with at least one or two screws or bolts missing). But, back to the cleaning---and that seems to be where I constantly am---I waded through the boy's room throwing out everything in sight and lo and behold I found that the furniture was still in there, so I cleaned the room and felt like my help could now make it on their own. Not so!!! I had to show, if not physically, then verbally, everything I wanted done until by the time they left I was exhausted. They had been at it for three nerve wracking hours longer than it takes me by myself, and for this I was paying, no wonder I was pooped! Is there any answer? I hope nobody recommends anything else like this to help me lighten my load or to aid my physical state, as I don't think I can stand it. Just the other day the doctor advised me to take the tape off my toe--- I did --- Charles bounced into bed and ---%#$!! I knew he would, I'd been hiding that toe from Charles ever since it got broken. I've ducked his feet, picked mine up off the floor when he's entered the room, gone to all sorts of ridiculous lengths to keep him from tripping and stepping on it, but I just somehow never expected him to sit on it! Well, I've learned---now I'm back in tape again and right back where I started from, and now everytime Charles gets ready to sit ---I'll stand!! So, as I said before, please no more advice from anyone as it's just not working out well at all. However, if you'll allow me, I'll give you some very good advice on a nice cool summer salad, one that is particularly nice with baked ham.

CHEESE PINEAPPLE SALAD

Heat 2 cups of crushed pineapple

Add juice of 1 lemon and 1 cup sugar and stir until dissolved.

Soak 2 TBS. of Knox plain gelatin for 10 minutes in 1/2 cup of cold water. Then add to hot mixture and mix well. When cool and beginning to set, add 1 cup of grated American cheese and 1/2 pint of beaten, whipping cream.

I make this in a ring mold and put the dressing for it in the center and it is very attractive.

DRESSING

Mix 2 TBS. each of finely chopped celery, onion, and green pepper to 1 cup of mayonnaise.

Sufficient Grounds

OCALA, Fla. AP - Mat Robinson, 94, won a divorce - with the argument that his wife took care of the dog but didn't take care of him.

Robinson said that about 10 years ago his wife, Charity, 66, set up separate housekeeping in his house at Ocala, Fla., although he paid the bills.

He said she cooked meals for the dog but not for him.

Circuit Court Judge D. R. Smith said Mrs. Robinson was guilty of "obstinate and continuous desertion" and gave her two weeks to leave the house. They had been married 16 years.

24-Hour Time System

CHICAGO AP - The United States will switch to a 24-hour time system in the next five years, says a watch company executive.

Irving A. Kathman, a vice president of the Gruen Watch Co., said America would follow Europe's lead in adopting the 24-hour clock because of the influence of this nation's space effort.

Thomas E. Richter

Appoint Richter

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- President Elmer Ellis announced today that Thomas (Tom) E. Richter will succeed Thomas C. Morelock as director of the University of Missouri Office of Public Information Sept. 1.

Richter joined the office Jan. 24 as associate director of public information and special events. He came here from St. Louis, where for the last seventeen years he has been assistant to the president and manager of the public relations department of the Automobile Club of Missouri, an affiliate of the American Automobile Association (AAA).

Morelock, who opened the offic in 1945, will retire Aug. 31 as director and as professor of journalism.

Richter was educated in the public schools of St. Louis, his native city, and at the University of Missouri where he received a Bachelor of Journalism degree and an ROTC commission in 1942. He entered the Army that year and served as a field artillery officer for two and a half years.

Upon returning to St. Louis after World War II, Richter organized and headed the public relations, merchandising, and advertising department of a radio station, and spent most of one year as a public relations counsel before joining the staff of the Automobile Club of Missouri.

Richter is past president of the University of Missouri Alumni Association of St. Louis, the University Journalism Alumni Association, the St. Louis Journalism Alumni Association of the University, and the St. Louis chapter of Sigma Delta Chi.

He is former secretary of the St. Louis chapter of the Public Relations Society of America and has been accredited by the national organization. He is also a member of the American College Public Relations Association, associate member of the Missouri Press Association, and vice - chairman of the Missouri Highway Users Conference. He is a former member of the American Automobile Association National Committee on Urban Transportation, the AAA National Highway Committee, and the Board of Directors of the Missouri Good Roads Association.

Columbia organizations in which he holds membership are the Kiwanis Club and the Columbia Country Club.

Richter married the former Rachel Palmer of Sturgeon, Mo., in 1942. They live at 2614 Luan Court in Columbia with their two children, Scot, 21 years old, and Linda, 19, both of whom are students in the University of Missouri.

The U.S. Government Printing Office is considered the world's largest printer.

Code Office Receives 33,669 Documents

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Uniform Commercial Code office received 33,669 documents in its first year of operation, Secy. of State James C. Kirkpatrick reported today.

It averaged 136 filings a day on mortgaged personal property and collected almost $60,000 in fees for the year, with operating expenses under $50,000.

Most of the filings are routine coverage of merchandise held by retailers. Several listed male and female chinchillas as the secured property. One listed $8,000 in U. S. half dollars.

DOUBLE POLL PARROT STAMPS EVERY WEDNESDAY

HERE'S A DISH FOR FAMILY MEAL..Serve Tuna Salad-Duo hot or cold--either way it's the sure way to satisfy appetites. Tuna's an excellent source of protein and much more economical than most protein foods.

Tuna Salad-Duo Can Be Served Hot or Cold

One of the delightful poems in Alice in Wonderland begins, "I sent a message to the fish; I told them this is what I wish," and goes on to tell how the fish replied: "The little fishes' answer was, 'We cannot do it, sir, because.' "

Obviously, the frustrated petitioner had not addressed himself to a school of tuna, because a tuna never says no. Whatever kind of meal you want -- a casserole, a curry, a salad or a chowder, tuna supplies you with an excellent, economical and tasty main dish ingredient that needs only to be removed from the can. Tuna is rich in protein value comparable to that of lean beef-and just look at the price! Quite a saving when you serve tuna for family meals.

In the summer, a basic tuna salad mixture obliges you twice over because it leads a double life. If you like your warm-weather meals hot, place the mixture on thick tomato slices set on toasted buns and make tuna burgers. You can broil them in five minutes. If you prefer a cold lunch or dinner, use the tuna salad to stuff tomatoes, artfully cut to resemble tulips

Use the tuna with the vegetable oil it is packed in for the basic mixture. Tuna packed in oil emerges from the can in all its glory because the vegetable oil, by covering the surface of the fish, actually seals in the flavor. It also helps the fish to retain its attractive appearance and texture. Moreover, whatever you plan to do with the tuna, the oil will fall in with your plan. In this case, it slides easily into the mayonnaise.

Once you've made your choice between tuna burgers and tomato tulips, make the rest of your menu easy, too. Serve potato sticks with the burgers and French bread with the stuffed tomatoes, and bring on a nice tall glass of iced tea or coffee. Everybody will heave a sigh of relief on two counts: the meal is light, as it should be in summer, and you haven't worked up a fever producing it.

TUNA-SALAD-DUO
(Hot and Cold)

BASIC TUNA MIXTURE:

2 cans (6 1/2 or 7 ozs. ea.) tuna in vegetable oil
1/2 c. finely diced celery
1/2 tsp. salt
1/2 c. mayonnaise
1 tsp. lemon juice

Combine ingredients; blend thoroughly.

GRILLED TUNA BURGERS:

Split 3 hamburger buns; toast halves. Place a thick slice of tomato on each half, top with tuna mixture. Place under broiler heat 5 minutes, or until browned. Yield: 6 servings.

TUNA-TOMATO TULIPS:

Cut each of 6 tomatoes into 5 or 6 sections almost to stem end; spread apart slightly. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt, fill with tuna mixture. Serve in lettuce cup, garnished with ripe olive. Yield: 6 servings.

Drinking Difficulty

Weightlessness, such as prevails in a space capsule in orbit, renders it difficult for astronauts to pour or drink liquids from an open vessel, so they must be squeezed out of tubes. Otherwise, they would form globules and float around the space capsule.

Truce No Nearer In Airline Strike

By STEPHEN M. AUG

WASHINGTON (AP) — The AFL-CIO International Association of Machinists today accused the five airlines shut down by a strike of overestimating by at least $25 million the cost to them of a settlement proposed by the union.

Joseph W. Ramsey, IAM vice president and chief negotiator for the union, said there was no indication of any "give" in the management's stand at this time.

He added that the union was ready to make compromises on proposals but would not take one cent less than its previous request.

"We have stated our minimum and plan to make no departure from it," he said.

Ramsey's reference to a compromise offer had to do with the union's proposal that employes required to have licenses be given a premium of 10 cents an hour for each license.

The negotiations recessed Monday afternoon to permit the unions, at the request of Asst. Secretary of Labor James J. Reynolds, to provide statistical data as to the cost to the airlines of the union's minimum request for higher wages and various working benefits.

Ramsey, on returning to the negotiating rooms today, said that the union statistics indicated that the airline estimate of $114 million was at least $25 million too high.

Ramsey noted that the airlines had said they probably would be unable to reach an agreement this week because of the union stand. He said, "There is not much to be encouraged about at the moment."

Reynolds conferred separately with the union officials and with representatives of the five airlines closed down by the IAM strike -- Eastern, National, Northwest, Trans World and United.

Individual Freedom And The Common Defence

by Walter Millis

CONTINUED

The origin of the privilege against self-incrimination is often ascribed to the desire to prevent physical torture. But even in the later Eighteenth Century people were not particularly sensitive to torture. The objection to torture was not the agonies it inflicted but the unreliability of the evidence which it elicited. The development of the privilege in Anglo-Saxon law goes back to the struggles in Tudor times over the power of the ecclesiastical courts to try and punish for heresies and other errors; in exercising these powers they employed the "oath ex-officio," requiring (like a modern "PSQ") that the suspect swear to his innocence, and then answer fully and truthfully all subsequent questions put to him. The result was not to elicit the truth, since the investigation was into the intangibles of belief, but to make it easy to entrap the subject into inconsistencies, apparent perjuries, and confessions of guilty as meaningless (although just as fatal to the defendant) as those with which the Russian treason trials of recent times have made us familiar.

When men are, in effect, tried for seditious belief (however the charge may be worded, or whatever the extra-judicial character of the tribunal or the punishments imposed), conviction can be obtained only by forcing them to incriminate or entrap themselves. A striking demonstration of the meaning of the ancient oath ex-officio (and of the reason for the privilege against self-incrimination which resulted from it) was provided by the Lattimore case in 1952, perhaps the one most extraordinary episode in the war upon subversion.

Missouri Press Report

by Senator

Edward V. Long

President Johnson has signed the Freedom of Information bill which I introduced and pushed through the Senate last year.

His signature marks the climax of many years of struggle in behalf of the people's right to know. Senator Thomas C. Hennings, Jr., began the effort to open government records and when I succeeded him upon his death I took up the fight. Finally, On July 31, 1964, was able to get my bill passed by the Senate after public hearings before the Subcommittee on Administrative Practice, of which I am chairman. The House failed to take action on the bill in the 88th Congress, so we began the fight again in the 89th Congress. Again the bill I authored was passed by the Senate, October 13, 1965.

Each year, Freedom of Information picked up more and more support. The public was becoming more and more aware of the importance of the right to know what their government is doing.

This year, with tremendous support from the press in Missouri and all over the country, the House passed the bill with important leadership from Congressman John E. Moss.

I know I speak for all Missourians in congratulating President Johnson for signing this bill and for ringing in a new era of hope for freedom of the press and the public's right to know.

Over 30,000 Missouri young men and women have taken part in Neighborhood Youth Corps projects during the past two years, according to the latest figures.

During the twelve months just ended, 11,155 Missourians took part in 76 Neighborhood Youth Corps projects. Last year there were only 53 projects in Missouri.

The U.S. Department of Labor has just reported that the Federal investment in these Missouri projects for the two years totals $16,620,929. Missouri communities contributed an additional $4,200,000.

The Youth Corps provides:

--Part-time work for youth 16 to 22 in order to help them stay in school.

--Full-time work training for youth who have left school but who are untrained to hold a job. Corps members in Missouri train in such jobs as nurses aides, dietitian's assistants, clerks and typists, auto mechanics, draftsmen, and landscape assistants.

Missouri has just won approval for three of the nation's first mental health centers to be established under the new Community Mental Health Centers Act we passed in the Congress last year.

The centers, located in Kansas City, Columbia, and St. Louis, will serve population areas including 575,000 Missourians.

To help the centers expand their in-patient and out-patient staffs, the U.S. Public Health Service is providing $1,570,856 for the centers during the next twelve months.

K.C. Firemen End Strike

KANSAS CITY AP -- The long standing dispute between Kansas City firemen and the city cooled to its usual simmering point Tuesday as Missouri National Guard troops were withdrawn and firefighters resumed normal shifts.

The firemen's four-day work stoppage ended when they voted 391 to 90 with 18 abstentions to accept a six-point city proposal as a basis for negotiations.

The National Guard, which was posted at the 44 firehouses after scattered incidents of vandalism, was released after a City Council resolution declared the emergency passed.

Stanton Gladden, president of Fire Fighters Local 42, said many members were incensed at Mayor Ilus W. Davis's "lack of faith in the union." Davis had refused to call off the National Guard and police on duty until the voting was completed.

Atlantic City's famous Boardwalk is 60 feet wide and five miles long.

Supreme Court Leaves Charter Amendments On Election Ballot

JEFFERSON CITY (AP) — The Missouri Supreme Court refused Tuesday to rehear the April 11 decision having the effect of putting two charter amendments on the St. Louis County ballot in the Nov. 8 general election.

The dispute started in September, 1964, when the county council voted, 4-3, to put the amendments before the people.

One would make the office of county engineer appointive instead of elective. The other would extend the county merit system to certain employes.

The county election board declined to put them on the November, 1964, ballot on the grounds they were emergency matters and should have been approved by at least five of the seven council members.

But the Supreme Court said it is a judicial function to decide whether a legislative act is an emergency. It held the two charter proposals were not in any sense emergencies and ordered the election board to put them on the ballot next November.

Voice of Innocence

INDIANAPOLIS, Ind. AP - "Which of us has not done something of which we were ashamed?" asked the Rev. George S. Nable, preaching at the annual novena of the Sisters of Mount Carmel Sunday night.

A 4-year-old boy relied, "I haven't done anything."

Father Nable said he would redirect his question to persons 12 years old and above.

THE CITY OF SIKESTON, MO.
Resolution

A resolution declaring the necessity for the construction of 1 1/2" hotmix asphaltic pavement on 6" soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Frisco Street from Ruth Street to Dorothy Street extended in accordance with plans & specifications in the City of Sikeston, Missouri; stating the nature of the improvement; the estimated cost and providing that payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills levied and assessed against the abutting property. Be it resolved by the Council of the City of Sikeston, State of Missouri, as follows: SECTION 1: That the Council of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, deems and declares the construction of said Street necessary to the welfare and improvement of the City of Sikeston. SECTION 2: That the nature and scope of the improvement shall consist of furnishing all cost, including labor, materials and transportation necessary for the complete construction of the improvement. SECTION 3: That the estimated cost of the improvement is $4.50 per lineal foot of abutting property, to be charged against the lots and tracts of land abutting the improvement. SECTION 4: That payment for all of the improvement shall be made by special tax bills evidencing special assessments against the abutting property in the manner specified by the statutes of the State of Missouri and the ordinances of the City of Sikeston, Missouri, because in the opinion of the City Council the General Revenue fund of the City of Sikeston is not in a condition to warrant an expenditure therefrom to pay for the improvement. SECTION 5: That any work performed on construction of the improvement shall be in compliance with the provisions of the prevailing wage laws of the State of Missouri, such prevailing wage rates having been established by the Industrial Commission of Missouri. SECTION 6: That the City Clerk is hereby authorized and directed to furnish a copy of this Resolution to a daily newspaper of general circulation in the City of Sikeston, so that it shall be published for seven consecutive insertions. Read the first, second and third times and passed and approved this 5th day of July, 1966. Approved: Kendall Sikes, Mayor; Attest: John W. Vaughn, City Clerk.

NOTICE TO CONTRACTORS

Notice is hereby given that sealed bids will be received at the office of the City Clerk in the City Administrative Building, 316 South Kingshighway, Sikeston, Missouri, until 5:00 P.M., July 19, 1966, for the furnishing of all materials, equipment, labor, costs, and construction of the following items; in accordance with plans and specifications on file in the office of the City Administrative Building, Viz:

Item 1: One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on the west side only of Dona street from Malone Avenue to Matthews Street.

Item 2: One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Linn Street from Moore Avenue to Main Street.

Item 3: One and one-half inch hotmix asphaltic pavement on six inch soil cement base with concrete curb and gutter on Presnell Drive from Missouri Avenue west to St. John's Ditch.

Copies of the plans and specifications are available to bidders, and may be obtained from the City Clerk upon payment of two dollars ($2.00) for each set of plans. Successful bidder shall post a performance bond for the full amount of each contract.

All proposals must stipulate that contractors will accept in payment thereof, special tax bills issued against the property abutting the improvement. Sealed bids shall be submitted separately on each or any of the items as listed above and separate contracts shall be awarded on each item.

The City Reserves the right to reject any or all bids.

John W. Vaughn
City Clerk

Morehouse News

Mrs. Nelson Gruen accompanied three boys to the Blue Mountain Methodist Camp in New Fredericktown. They will spend this week at camp. The three boys that went were John Shaptaw, Dougie Hammock, and Eugene Gruen.

The Darlene Sears Intermediate G.A.'s met on Wednesday at the First Baptist Church in Morehouse. President Sharon Breeden called the meeting to order. Linda Neal read the prayer calendar and Peggy Orr lead in prayer. Mrs. Bohannon gave the devotional period. They made July plans which include a slumber party for July 15 and they will be going to camp next week. Peggy Orr served refreshments of brownies and soft drinks. Those attending were Peggy Orr, Sharon Breeden, Debbie Payne, Linda Neal, Carlene Winkle, and Mrs. Bohannon.

Mr. and Mrs. Ronald Crain and six children of Cocoa Beach, Fla., spent Tuesday evening at a barbecue at the home of his sister and family and Mr. and Mrs. Slim Parks and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Marrel Newton left Thursday morning to visit her sister, Mrs. Glaydys Huey of Hayti, where they were overnight guests and they spent the weekend with their daughter and family, Mr. and Mrs. Don Fulkerson and children, Memphis, Tenn.

Mr. and Mrs. Larry Appleton, Mrs. Hullie Baty, Mrs. Eula Fay Stroud and daughter, Linda were weekend guests of Mrs. Martha Stroud, Arcola, Ill.

Mr. and Mrs. William Hally from Birmingham, Ala., visited the later's cousins, Miss Pearl Gregory, Clyde Gregory, and Mrs. Charlie Sturgeon Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. William Guess of Kevil, Ky., visited Mr. and Mrs. Clyde Gregory Wednesday.

Mr. and Mrs. Herman Goodwin and children left Wednesday for St. Louis to visit their daughters, Mrs. Shirley Ledbetter and family and Mrs. Wanda Dillard and family.

Mr. and Mrs. Ellis Agee and children, Mr. and Mrs. Jim young, Herbert Brown, all of Morehouse and Miss Jean Groff of Southeast Missouri State College at Cape Girardeau were Sunday dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Wyrick and family of Poplar Bluff.

Mr. and Mrs. M. T. Adkins had as fourth of July dinner guests of Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Jackson, Larry and Linda, Cypress, Calif; Mr. and Mrs. Elvin Adkins and children Linda and Dennis, Mr. and Mrs. Bruce Bryant and baby, Mrs. Loretta McGuirt and baby, Marilyn McGuirt and Rayborn Wilson.

Mr. and Mrs. Jessie A. Jackson and two children returned home Thursday to Cypress, Calif. after spending a two-week vacation with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Milem Adkins of Morehouse and his mother, Mrs. Mattie Jackson of Sikeston.

Harold Case celebrated his birthday Sunday at the home of his parents, Mr and Mrs. Harold Case. Five of the six children came home to help their father celebrate his birthday. Those attending were Lt. and Mrs. P. M. (Fredda) Wethington and son, Midway Island; Mrs. (Betty) Payne and children, Masiwa, Japan; Sgt. and Mrs. Darrel (Bonnie) Wilson and two children, Memphis, Tenn.; Mr. and Mrs. Calvin (Helen) Taylor and sons, Rockford, Ill; Mr. and Mrs. Merlin (Esther) Dewitt, Sikeston. Mrs. (Delores) King, Encitas, Calif. was unable to attend.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle (Slim) Sparks entertained Sunday with a barbecue. Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Tom Belling, Florisant; Mrs. Ray Boley and daughter Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Bryant Boley, Morley; Jack Luil, Dover, Ark.; Mrs. Dorothy Boley, Sikeston; Sam Sparks, and Norva, Dennis, and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Hoyle (Slim) Sparks had all their children home on the fourth of July for the first time in five years for a family reunion. Those attending were Tommy Sparks in the United States Navy stationed in Norfolk, Va., Mrs. (Mary) Metzger, St. Louis; Mr. and Mrs. Russell (Laura Lee) Bolin and two children, Millington, Tenn., and Norva, Dennis, and David.

Mr. and Mrs. Billy Joe Rhyon and three children left Thursday for their home in Phoenix, Ariz. after spending a three weeks' vacation with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Rhyons.

Mr. and Mrs. Bud Brown and daughters of St. Louis spend the fourth of July with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Seagraves.

Mrs. Jerry Lee and children Clayton, Sherry, and Karrol have returned to their home in Cartersville, Ga., after a two weeks visit with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Martin Seagraves.

Mr. and Mrs. Edd Orr and children spent Sunday and the fourth of July with her brother, Mr. and Mrs. W. T. Brasfield of Pocahontas, Ark. Mr. Orr and son, Jimmy spent Sunday night with his sister, Mr. and Rock, Ark.

Mrs. Elaine Moore and daughter, Claire of St. Louis are spending this week with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschill Gray.

THE PRAYER
For Today From The Upper Room

What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? (Mark 8:36)

PRAYER: Eternal God and Father of all mankind, we praise Thy holy name for being near us. Help us to be conscious of Thy never-failing love for us, and to live in obedience to Thy In Jesus' name. Amen.

ANN LANDERS
Answers Your Problems

Dear Ann Landers: I work for a large organization and all telephone calls go through the switchboard, with the exception of the executives' private lines, which, of course, I cannot use.

My husband called me this morning and I knew at once he was bombed and calling from a bar. It is Jack's habit to telephone and pick a fight when he knows he's in the doghouse -- which he certainly was, because he didn't come home last night.

I lost my temper and used some rather salty language. Jack said some things he shouldn't have said and it was not a conversation you'd want an outsider to hear.

As I was leaving the office for lunch, I encountered one of the telephone operators. She gave me a wise-apple smirk and asked, "And how are things at YOUR house?" I felt like strangling her.

Should I write an anonymous letter to the personnel manager about this snoop? If she listens in on my conversations she undoubtedly listens in on others. Your advice is wanted. -- INVADED PRIVACY.

Dear I.P.: Most telephone operators have very little interest and even less time to tune in on family fights. The woman's greeting was probably an unfortunate coincidence. In the future make it a rule never to discuss private business on the phone and then you don't need to worry about eavesdroppers.

Dear Ann Landers: Please, please, please -- let me know how a man can tell a woman that he is in love with her, ask her to marry him, let her clue in family and friends, make all sorts of plans, and then change his mind? If he was only infatuated why would he propose marriage?

This happened to me and I am so humiliated I can't hold up my head. My friends tell me that my former fiance loves me but he is afraid of the responsibility of marriage. They say I should be patient and wait, and that he will come back.

What I need to know is how long should I wait? It has been eight months and I have not heard one word from him.

Am I being a silly romantic to believe that true love can overcome any obstacle?-- LEIGH

Dear Leigh: You are right. TRUE love can overcome any obstacle, but from your account of the way the young man has treated you, I would doubt that this is true love.

I suspect your friends are trying to be kind, but I don't think it's an act of kindness to give you false hope. If you have not heard one word from your ex-love in eight months I suggest you write him off and make new friends.

Dear Ann Landers: Please give us an answer to a question that is bothering us. Our daughter is 17. At first we thought she was just putting on weight. Now we know she is pregnant.

Last week she told us she and her boy friend want to get married because he may be called into the service soon. He is 21. What kind of a wedding should a pregnant girl have? -- NO NAME PLEASE.

Dear No Name: A QUICK one-- with as little hoopla as possible.

Confidential to NEED A WISER HEAD THAN MINE: There's nothing wrong with your head, my dear. Your letter was an extremely good one. Those "friends" are giving you a bum steer. I've never heard of such "biblical advice." It may be a little late for you to "go forth and multiply" but a marriage that offers companionship in the evening of your lives makes a great deal of sense. Good luck, and God bless you.

Liquor can ruin your mind, your body and your life. To learn the bobby traps of teen-age drinking, write for Ann Landers' booklet, "Teen-Age Drinking," enclosing with your request 20¢ in coin and a long, self-addressed, stamped envelope.

Ann Landers will be glad to help you with your problems. Send them to her in care of this newspaper enclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

Children Experience, Learn in Summer

by CAROL MILLER

During the summer vacation children have a tendency to forget part of what they learned in school. Lynn Twitty, superintendent of the Sikeston Public Schools, was contacted to find out how parents can best make the summer into a learning experience for their children.

Twitty believes that the amount of summer regression is reasonably slight and that the experiences children have in the summer may compensate for any knowledge they might forget.

Daytime television in the summer is especially geared to the younger set. Kiddie programs tell stories and explain questions on the child's level; quiz shows which emphasize vocabulary and others which have question-answer sessions increase the child's knowledge of the world.

In "Preparing Your Child for School" by Hazel F. Gabbard, family vacations were named one of the best means to add to a child's compilation of experiences. When he returns from his trip, his play is usually stimulated as he recreates the places he has been, and his vocabulary is enlarged.

A child will also learn from his friends and their experiences while playing, from the movies he sees, and from almost everything he does, but his parents are his real teachers. In his earliest days, he learned to brush his teeth and change his clothing by imitation of his parents. As he grows, his parents and the enviroment they create contribute much toward giving him a headstart or a delay on the road to learning.

As Twitty said, "Children are not necessarily created equal. Those born to well-read, intelligent parents naturally have an advantage in the speech and environment they have been exposed to. This can make a difference in their early years of schooling."

Reading, more than anything else, opens the entire world to a child's mind, but there is one problem. A child can not read during the summer months if he has not learned to read in school.

However, the parent can encourage reading by making books available in the home or by taking the child on frequent trips to the library. By developing an appreciation of literature in the child, the parent can increase the child's knowledge, enlarge his vocabulary, and add to his understanding of life.

One way to make the child practice written communication is to encourage letterwriting. This can be a pleasurable undertaking. He can believe that grandma would enjoy receiving a letter from him, which she probably would. In this way the child can get the satisfaction of doing something worthwhile for someone, and the parent will have a chance to refresh the child's grammar and punctuation by correcting his mistakes and explaining them.

"Although summer experiences are valuable they can not take the place of regular school work," Twitty stated. He also said that schools are to teach children five fundamentals; these are communication, reading, facility in using numbers accurately, living with people, and a desire to work.

Parents play a major part in the child's learning in the wintertime too. If the parents are aware of the schools--read about them, visit them, and show concern over them -- they naturally transmit this attitude of educational importance to their children.

Parents can encourage good school work by showing an interest in what the child is doing, commending him for good work, and then working with the school to remedy poor performance.

One important thing pointed out in "Your Child as a First Grader," prepared by the staff of the Sikeston Public Schools, is to avoid comparing children. If a group of youngsters were lined up for a race, no one would expect any two of them to reach the finish line at exactly the same time. It is the same way with school work.

In general Sikeston can be proud of its part in living up to the standards of education. Twitty said, "Our community is way above average in giving support to the city's schools, and this fact is reflected in the schools we have and the high composite score of our classes on standardized tests."

Washington Report
Sen. Stuart Symington

IN THE SPECIAL ARMED SERVICES SUBCOMMITTEE which I chaired, hearings have been completed on proposed legislation to expand health benefits for the military. Following the review of the views of the witnesses and organizational representatives, we will make recommendations to the full Committee.

During the course of these hearings, I reiterated my continuing concern over the general fiscal and monetary problems we are now facing, including the danger of the growing imbalance of international accounts.

While the estimate of expenditures for fiscal year 1967, which began this month, is $112.8 billion, it is fairly well known that the expenditures will go well above this amount.

For example, in order to maintain the present Vietnam level of effort, an additional appropriation of between $5 billion and $12 billion is expected.

All legislation, therefore, must be subject to the total fiscal problems we face.

MINING SAFETY

Metal and non-metallic mining operations will be subject to minimum Federal health and safety standards under a bill recently passed by the Senate.

The measure was passed by the House of Representatives and approved with minor amendments by the Senate.

The object is to reduce the high accident rate and health hazards in mining and milling operations carried on in the metal and non-metallic mineral industires.

A recent Bureau of Mines study showed more than 12,000 remedial hazards in U. S. mining and milling operations.

The measure provides for a system of Federal inspection under the Department of Interior and the development and enforcement of mandatory standards dealing with conditions or practices dangerous to life or health.

SELECTIVE SERVICE

When the present law covering the Selective Service System comes up for renewal or revision next June, we hope to develop a feasible plan to increase the degree of fairness in the present system.

The House Armed Services Committee recently has heard the testimony of General Lewis B. Hershey as well as spokesmen for the Department of Defense and many Congressmen on the operation of the draft. The Senate Armed Services Committee also will consider this legislation, but probably not until next spring.

Meanwhile President Johnson also has named a civilian committee to study the draft and make recommendations for improvements.

FOREIGN TRAVEL

If passport applications are any indication, the number of Missourians traveling abroad has increased dramatically. More than 17,030 applied for passports in 1965, an increase of 57 percent over 1964.

The number of U. S. residents traveling overseas in 1965 was up 18 percent to 2,620,000. They spent more than $3 billion in foreign countries and on foreign carriers.

Foreign visitors, on the other hand, spent only $1.4 billion in the states and on U. S. carriers, leaving a tourists' deficit in our balance of payments of about $1.74 billion in 1965. This compared with $1.6 billion in 1964.

Injunction Cities P. Bluff Grocers

POPLAR BLUFF, Mo. AP -- Three Poplar Bluff grocery corporations have been named in a civil injunction suit under the Fair Labor Standards Act filed in U. S. District Court at Poplar Bluff.

The complaint, filed by Secretary of Labor Willard Wirtz, is against Barnes Grocer Company, Bowling Stores, and Piggly Wiggly State Distributors, Inc.

The complaint alleges that the stores operated a monopoly and failed to pay the required minimum wage and time and a half for overtime.

Infantry Men Needed

The 83rd. Infantry Division - the famed THUNDERBOLT DIVISION of World War II, is conducting the greatest manhunt in history. They are seeking some 25,000 of their former members. That is the number of men on their original roster, who have not been contacted, since the end of the war. These men are scattered all over the nation.

At the close of the war, an 83rd. Infantry Division Assn. was formed and an annual reunion has been held every year. This year the 20th annual conclave will be staged at Pittsburg Pa., in August.

All former members of the old 83rd. are urged to contact the national secretary, Larry Redmond 132 Rockwood Drive Havertown Pa.

Know Your Newspaper Better

Are We Fair in Our News Reports?

We think we are. In our news columns, we do our best to bring you facts only . . . without expression of personal opinion of reporters or editors.

We Always Do Our Best

. . . to give you both sides in our news reports, if there are two sides. Or three sides, if there are three. Everyone deserves fair representation in a news report.

Who You Are Doesn't Matter

. . . if the publisher of this newspaper were caught speeding on Main street . . . or anywhere else . . . you'd find it reported in this newspaper . . . more than likely on the front page! And so with the banker, the baker, the candlestick maker . . . and the advertiser, too. Business accorded this paper does not buy protection against news reports.

This Is Only Right . . .

To be fair, a newspaper must report what happened . . . to whom . . . where . . . how . . . and why—without regard to who it is . . . or his position . . . or how much money he has . . . or how good a friend he is of the editor. This is this newspaper's news policy—a policy we believe fair and equitable to all.

Today In U. S. History

By THE ASSOCIATED PRESS

Today is Wednesday, July 13, the 194th day of 1966. There are 171 days left in the year.

Today's highlight in history:

On this date in 1787, Congress passed the first act providing for the government of territory outside the original 13 colonies. The Northwest Territory was organized under this act; Ohio, Indiana, Illinois, Michigan and Wisconsin were all cut from it later.

On this date:

In 1821, the Confederate cavalry officer, Nathan Bedford Forrest, was born.

In 1863, Civil War draft riots broke out in New York City.

In 1919, the first dirigible to cross the Atlantic, the British 34, completed its round trip.

In 1943, British forces occupied the Sicilian port of Augusta.

In 1944, Brig. Gen. Theodore Roosevelt Jr. died at his command post in Normandy.

Ten years ago--Seven Hungarian students made a daring escape from their Communist homeland.

One year ago-A severe typhoon hit the Pacific island of Mindanao. At least 17 persons were drowned.

Yes, Sikeston is FRIENDLY! We can be proud of our residents -- their hospitality extended to all. At our places of business: our personnel are friendly folks. Yet, do we "slip a bit" at times? Can we all be FRIENDLIER? Isn't it an idea to, each day, think of this: "LET'S MAKE SIKESTON THE FRIENDLIEST CITY IN MISSOURI. Bear in mind: the person whom you don't know may be just passing through -- may be "looking our town over" with the idea of "locating here" -- regardless, you will give that person "his or her impression" of our city.

Clip out, fill in and please send or bring the above coupon to "Friendliest, Most Courteous" Employe Award at The Bank of Sikeston, 1st National Bank, Security Federal Savings & Loan Assn., The Daily Sikeston Standard, or mail to the Daily Sikeston Standard, 205 S. Matthews News

The Conrads arrived home late Wednesday afternoon from a four-week vacation to find a "dead" telephone. When I asked the 'girls' at the beauty shop on Friday to bring me up-to-date on happenings one replied, "It has been hot, no rain for three weeks, farmers are busy irrigating, the town water supply is low, and the telephones are all out of order-- so we can't even discuss our problems over the phone with any satisfaction."

Our community did get some relief from the drought late Fridat afternoon with rainfall varying from a half-inch to one and one-half inches in various locations. Strong winds blew down several trees and branches from many. The telephone company has men working on that problem and we are hoping for an early solution.

After attending commencement at the University of Minnesota where our daughter, Bonnie, and son-in-law, "Kip" were among the 4334 graduates, we left with them to visit his parents the Hilding C. Nelson's at Mount Vernon, Wash. and relatives at Portland, Ore., Pullman, Tacoma, Seattle, and Spokane, Wash. Highpoints of interest on the trip were a boat trip to Victoria where we visited the Parliament Buildings, Vancouver, B. C., and the islands in Puget Sound. Enroute we visited at Yellowstone, Glacier, and Teddy Roosevelt Memorial Parks.

Four weeks of the summer school program have been completed at Matthews R-V School. Teachers working with the remedial reading groups are Mrs. Pauline Decker, Mrs. Lilian Kemp, Miss Alice Deane, Mrs. Bernice Stafford, Mrs. Addie Hatcher, Mrs. Kathryn Moore, Mrs. Virgie Beane, Mrs. Emma Cooper, and Mrs. Shirley Whiffen. The Headstart classes are being taught by Mrs. Mattye Speed, Miss Georgia Deane, Mrs. Lois Hooks, Mrs. Margaret Ward, and Mrs. Virginia Keaton.

Carla Shelby and Debbie and Roberta Rudisill spent last week at Pinecrest, the Nazarene Church Camp, near Fredericktown. They were accompanied by Mrs. Carl Shelby.

Mr. and Mrs. Roger Roberts of Flint, Mich. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Ralph Fairies and Lila and Reggie Vandiver.

Mr. and Mrs. Bob Alsup and daughters of Amory, Miss. spent last weekend here with Mr. and Mrs. Dennis Parsons, Mrs. Florence Wilson, and Mrs. Frank Parsons.

Mrs. Pearl Green and Mr. and Mrs. Tom Moore spent the 4th of July weekend with Mrs. Green's daughter, Mrs. Louise Hudson, and family at Columbus, Miss.

Miss Donna Reid and brother, Bill, of Jonesboro, Ark. spent last weekend with their father, Ellis V. Reid. Bill is attending summer term at Arkansas State College.

Mrs. Alfred Byrd, who has completed one five-week term at Arkansas State College, Jonesboro, spent the weekend at her home here. She will return Tuesday to begin the second term for which she had pre-enrolled.

Mrs. Lester King and daughter, Brenda, visited last week with her mother, Mrs. Beryl Franklin, and family at Atchison, Kans. Mr. King and son, Joe Lynn, went to accompany then home this weekend.

Mr. and Mrs. Wilson Yates and daughter, Natasha, of Boston, Mass. are expected to visit with his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Herschel Yates from July 20 to 26th. They will visit his aunt, Mrs. L. D. Youngblood, at Dundee, Miss. enroute to Waynesboro, Miss. where they will visit her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Graham.

The Matthews 4-H Club was represented at the New Madrid County 4-H Camp at Lake Wappapello by Carla Shelby, Roberta Rudisill, Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Burch) and Karen Burch (the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Glenn Burch), Karen Faulkner, Dennis and Brian Clark, and Brian Tippett.

Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Vann and children of Searcy, Arkansas visited during the weekend with Mr. and Mrs. R. M. Vann.

Miss Sandra Porter, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Raymond Porter and bride-elect of Arthur McCoy, was complimented with a miscellaneous household shower on Friday evening, June 24, at the Baptist Church. Hostesses for the occasion were members of the Ladies Auxiliary.

Tim Tippett and Bill Rogers, who are attending summer term at Missouri University, Columbia, spent the July 4th weekend at their homes here.

Dr. and Mrs. Melvin Kasten and sons, Mark and Mike, of Cape Girardeau, Dr. and Mrs. Wm. C. Critchlow and family of Sikeston, C. A. Crithclow, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Kelso and sons, Duane and Jock, were Sunday supper guests of Mr. and Mrs. William Depro and son, Bruce.

Bertrand News

By FLORENCE FENIMORE

I'm still propped up in bed writing news. Mrs. Stricker came in gave me tablet. Now I need envelopes. I have stamps. Last Tues Doctors Ferguson, Popp, Smith and a lot of trained nurses cut a slice of my left thy and grafted it on my sore left leg in 2 stay 9 more weeks.

Perhaps get 2 go home 2 good old Bertrand in the . Had 85,000 dollars fire were had big fire at the home I used 2 own all Bertrand Gin Elavator Hotel. I gave church O God that lot. John Wicker was smoking burnt the old hotel up. Whitsells use 2 own that they lost a little boy. He fell in kettle lye soap and burned up. Mabel Whitsell lives in Witchata, Kans. I wrote see if she got drowned. She was linen salesman in our general merchandise. Reason we had to close people bought up $150,000 could pay and wouldent.

We took Bankrupt law. Just cost $100.

I've lost my teeth. I was bragging -- I am 84 years young. Only false thing about. I'll bet they are in laundry. That's where they found my Past Pres pin in WSCS. I'm past matron two times. I havent lost those pins yet. I have sat in Chapter 6,000 masons. Past Matrons in arena St. Louis where Mary Jane Truman is installed.

Cousin Cordia Farmer & Max Mitchael he Ada Cooper Michaels son so is Deputy Sheriff Michael. He married Chris Tene Presson. They had 13 child -- all good looking. Mr. Presson died several yrs. ago at the home in Bertrand. So did Claire Rowe Mrs. Barnhill. I call her pretty baby.

Mrs. Johnson died there. Mr. Walker Maxwell, they used 2 live in Teague house back of me. See Billy Teague got 6,000 troops per month. We have 150,000 troops there now. We are 2 increase 2 100,000,000 2 get butchered. They teach them how 2 care for themselves.

Hanoi want talk peace. South Viet Nam is antecomist we are 2 stay till communism means trator 2 your country. We bombed Havana Cuba last week think some our boys got. We are 2 have in 2,000 we want be here.

Lynda Bird Johnson that was her parents birthday gift 2 Spain 2 study Spanish and tour Europe. I have some Spanish ear screws.

Friend Dutch Shankle sent them 2 me. Mesdames Humie & Mary Lee Simpson called 2 see me last Fri. My George says take care of these legs. I said I would they be last I'd get. I'm a sugar diabetic from getting an old hen right leg left. I dropped pair scissors.

Officials are protesting talking Mo. Pacific Depot off. I am 2. We used 2 ship grain 2 Argentina I that Johnson ordered all rail roads go back 2 work. Quit striking.

We lived in a double log house north of Bertrand. Me sister Fannie Bush slept downstairs. Brother Reuben and John Divinny lived upstairs. A young yearling calf got in Kettle lye soap. The yearling ran upstairs. Reuben & John Divinny they came rolling down stair. Calf fell dead at their. Made may kettle soap. We had a kennel in back yard. When it rained it made lye soap.

I drove a red mule 2 make sorgrum molass as now you cant find lasses. We had bee hives no honey out here. We used 2 send 2 New Orleans. Neighbor John Leet, Jim Fox & my Pop 2 New Orleans. Now you dont get any sweets out here. George Fenimore are sent 2 Cuba for cigars. I saw Sarah Churchill. Used 2 make me pretty hats so did Ivy Martin. Now shes dead she moved 2 El Paso, Texas. Florence is still living. I think they are exporters 2 foreign countries still haven't found my teeth & that all for this time. Glad my news got in. Hope this 2.

Mrs. Bess Presents Program

The Woman's Society of Christian Service of the First Methodist church met Thursday in the Fellowship Hall.

Sept. 1 has been designated as the next general meeting of the society.

The meditation and program was presented by Mrs. William Bess. Her subject was "Where the Women Are." This program was designed to bring each woman into a new understanding of herself in relation to the church and its mission in the world.

Mrs. Bess used a large sketch of a compass and placed a cross in the center instead of the needle point. Around the eight points of this compass were two circles. One represented the part of the earth that we can see; the other, the world we cannot see. Each point was represented by the following words, Church, Chart, Change, Community, Christian, Citizen, Commission and Challenge.

Mrs. Bess explained how the image of woman has been changing. She named the few women who head church activities today and urged a greater interest in church activities.

The Bible was named as the main chart, and a very true chart and a sure map of God's travels to meet man. Mrs. Bess said "As church women, we must keep abreast of change whether we like it or not." She continued, "As laity, we need to develop a sense of community service, and as a Christian we are called under God to help achieve a greater oneness in our churches and community."

The group was reminded that all women are needed no matter where their homes are.

Mrs. Bess stressed the organization of a committee on Christian vocations. This committee should awaken and challenge Methodist congregations, youth, students and young adults to the needs of missionary service.

A short business session was conducted by the president, Mrs. E. F. Weidemann.

Mrs. Vincent Wissman, spiritual life secretary, conducted a memorial service for Mrs. A. R. Puckett.

Brief reports were given of the Poplar Bluff - Sikeston District Officers' Training Day held at Dexter June 23.

State Tax Take Shows $25.6 Million Rise

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- Collections of state corporation and individual income taxes, corporate franchise taxes and intangible taxes increased $25.6 million last year, Revenue Director Thomas A. David reported today.

"Missouri's healthy economic conditions and increased activities in enforcement and compliance helped bring about this situation," he said.

Corporation and income tax collections for the fiscal year ended June 30 totaled $104,889,219 -- an increase of $19,731,733 over the previous year.

Inheritance taxes rose $3,363,381 to $10,643,159.

Corporation franchise taxes totaled $7,739,375, an increase of $830,928.

Intangible tax collections rose to $13,213,903 or $1,744,050 more than a year ago.

"Part of the increase in corporation and individual income tax collections may also be attributed to the decrease in federal income taxes which were effective for 1965," David said.

U.S. Taste for Seafood Leaving Fishermen Behind

By W. JOYNES MACFARLAN

WASHINGTON (AP) The people of the United States are eating more seafood than ever before.

Yet, the nation's commercial fishermen are failing to capitalize on the demand, even though they received more for their catch last year than ever before, government officials say.

They pointed to statistics showing:

1. Per capita consumption of fishery products in 1965 reached 11 pounds, the highest annual figure since 1954 and nearly half a pound higher than the 1964 average. The population also increased.

2. For the first time in history, U.S. imports of edible fishery products in 1965 exceeded 50 per cent of the supply and this country became the world's largest importer of such products.

3. The catch by U.S. fishermen, including industrial fish, was 4.7 billion pounds last year, only 4 per cent higher than the 1964 take, but the income of these fishermen was a record $451 million, compared with $390 million in 1964.

4. The total supply of edible fishery products was 5.1 billion pounds last year, a record, and up from the previous high of 4.9 billion pounds in 1964.

5. It developed that fishery resources off the shores of the United States could supply this nation with five times its present catch and provide the raw material needed to make it a major exporter of fishery products.

The Bureau of Commercial Fisheries, in the Interior Department, points out that the world's seafood harvest soared from 102.3 billion pounds in 1963 to 113.8 billion pounds in 1964 and that the expansion continued into 1965.

"The United States, however, did not share in this expansion of production and remained fifth among the fishing nations of the world," the bureau said.

Donald L. McKernan, director of the bureau, said in an interview there is cause for optimism, however, that domestic fisheries will be restored to their traditional place as one of the leading fishing nations of the world.

He said the government, aware of the tremendous potential fishery resources and the increase of foreign fishing activity off the U. S. coasts, has expanded programs of research, development, and services in its effort to insure that the nation participates fully in the harvest.

McKernan rejected suggestions that there are shortages of various types of seafood because of over-fishing of the oceans, or because of foreign fishing off the American coasts. He said a major reason for price increases of some fishery products has been public demand for higher quality, and preparation as convenience foods.

He said the normal law of supply and demand also has been reflected in prices for such things as canned tuna and oysters, with reduced production followed by higher prices.

Concept of Democracy Slow To Take Root in Viet Nam

EDITOR'S NOTE -- The Associated Press has just completed an informal survey in which average newspaper readers across the country were asked what interested or troubled them most about the United States and the world. A series of typical readers' questions were selected from the survey. This article on the prospects for democracy in Viet Nam is one of several that seek to supply the answers.

By ANDREW BOROWIEC

Four thousand years ago, the bride of a fairy-tale prince laid 100 eggs—and hatched the nation that is today's Viet Nam.

Even now, many Vietnamese believe the story.

American advisers are working hard to inoculate them with the concept of Western democracy. It's just as strange to the average Vietnamese as the legend of the 100 eggs is to the American mind.

This is a situation you must keep in mind in surveying the prospect for democracy in Viet Nam.

The conditions and traditions which make for political democracy, evolved through centuries in Europe and the United States, are sparse indeed in Viet Nam.

Nevertheless, the hope for a democratic system in this embattled Southeast Asian nation is a pillar of U.S. policy here. Only a solidly implanted democracy can save the country from communism, American officials say.

They face this problem: Viet Nam, 1966, is really not too far from the story of Prince Lac Long Quan who married the egg-laying fairy princess named Au Co.

Despite cars, plastic dishes and the freightening methods of modern warfare, Viet Nam is largely a nation of superstition and suspicion of the outside world, a nation where Buddhism -the predominant religion- promises a bridge to the world of spirits.

What major obstacles stand in the way of the spirit of democracy?

1. Democracy is a meaningless term to most Vietnamese. The exception is the handful of those who have had the benefit of a French education and, more recently, scholarship to the United States.

2. Regional loyalties are deeply embedded, and there's a lack of national cohesion despite the fiery trials of war.

3. Almost throughout its rich history, Viet Nam has been ruled by autocratic monarchs, fierce invaders and, finally by French colonizers before the 1954 independence, giving the citizens no practice in self-government.

4. Equality before the law a key concept of democracy, applied only to some. Elections held in this century were invariably rigged. In modern Viet Nam, few citizens have much faith in government officials.

Against such negative elements, Americans hopeful of setting Viet Nam's course towards democracy cite these factors:

1. The inner desire of most people to express themselves freely and in freedom.

2. The bold trends sweeping the world's underdeveloped nations.

3. The fact that, on occasion, a desire for democratic processes has been visible in Viet Nam, and that the American example may prove infectious.

Perhaps in conditions of peace and stability, the spirit of democracy eventually could grow in Viet Nam.

The continuing war, lack of faith in the regimes in power, the presence of "foreigners with their long noses and strange habits," seem to discourage such a trend.

Some of the most valuable elements in modern Viet Nam have been eliminated. About 4,000 government officials-district, village and hamlet chiefs have been killed by the Communist Viet Cong.

There are still men who are willing to sacrifice a lot so their nation can prosper. They are becoming fewer as the war goes on.

Americans expect to accomplish something in the general elections, promised for Sept. 11. To many U. S. officials, it is then that the cornerstone for real Vietnamese democracy could be laid.

The country's feuds, divisions, clashes, the 70-odd political parties - most steeped in clandestine struggle - offer little encouragement.

In North Viet Nam, the Communists have eliminated religion, supersitution and opposition, by brutal methods and iron discipline that few Americans would support and that negate the very idea of democracy.

In South Viet Nam, blooded by continuous war and terror, the likelihood of full - blown democracy also seems distant to most observers.

"TO WHOM IT MAY CONCERN"

The following lines that I will try and submit in my poor power.

I hereby wish to state that my people have been voluntary since this great nation has become a world power. At this time I am very much concerned as to whether we will survive, as we all know that greater empires in the past have vanished.

But of course there can be no doubt this is the greatest nation that has existed upon the earth.

I cannot think that we have arrived at the point whereby we can turn the other cheek and I still think that Washington was right.

This has been proven at Pearl Harbor and again at the wall of Berlin, and history shows that it was the German American population that saved this union.

In conclusion I think that it is time to get our guns and help our poor police to maintain this society of all good Americans which draw no distinction of race, creed or color.

J. C. May

Missouri Press Association Established May 17, 1867

COLUMBIA, Mo. -- With a desire to increase the efficiency of the press in Missouri, state publishers got together in St. Louis on May 17, 1867. From this initial session developed today's Missouri Press Association, presently observing its centennial.

Ideas for a newspapermen's association date to the mid-19th century when several were created, the first in New York state in 1853. Organizational plans were slowed down when the Civil War opened, but after this conflict more such groups were formed. Many publishers, especially those in border states such as Missouri, recognize in these organizations an opportunity to aid in rebuilding the states and reuniting the people.

Early gatherings stressed the social aspects more than the utilitarian element. For example, the MPA's first constitution in 1867 provided for annual addresses and poems. There prevailed an emphasis on the spirit of reunion, a fraternal feeling as the publishers from across the state gathered to review their problems and exchange ideas.

Elaborate banquets and excursions highlighted these annual conventions. The first excursion was in 1869, a train trip from St. Louis to Iron Mountain and Pilot Knob. Later excursions during the association's first decade included visits to Maryville, Sedalia and Boonville, where a wine company's "cellars provided a point of resistless attraction to the thirsty travelers"; to Fort Scott and Indian Nation in Kansas; a steamer trip on the Mississippi; to Chicago and Colorado.

Eugene Field, at the time writing for the St. Louis Journal, read one of his poems at the 1875 meeting in Lexington. It was "A Weird Idyl-- Solomon Burch's Fighting Editor." Field attended several MPA sessions and provided other poems. The secretary reported that this poem was "unique or possibly outre, but his inimitable delivery rendered it a most capital entertainment."

J. W. Barrett and Norman J. Colman were the first presidents. Barrett, of the Canton Press, served for three years, the only member so honored. Colman, later the nation's first secretary of agriculture, served two years while editing his Rural World.

Interesting talks, or "orations," sparked the first decade. Col. W. F. Switzler, of Columbia, spoke at the first decade anniversary session in 1876, saying that the "country papers are the papers of the people. They are published in their midst and by those who understand their wants, and who sympathize with them in all their efforts at advancement."

While America was celebrating its centennial as a republic, Missouri publishers recognize their obligations, saying that the press is "above - Presidents, because it makes Presidents; above Congress and Legislatures, because it makes and unmakes legislation. It also educates jurors and modernizes judicial thought."

J. W. Barrett prepared the first history of the association covering this decade. Probably the spirit voiced in these words by an early "orator" reflects the feeling of MPA members today:

"Journalism has a high and immortal mission to perform. Like the wand of a magician, its wing sweeps nearly every land, and shall yet penetrate the wildest haunts of the world, where the shadow and superstition of ignorance falls heavily over the people."

The "Great Commoner," William Jennings Bryan, in 1908 urged the teaching of newspapermen in the University of Missouri, stressing the need for editorials that voiced the "honest convictions" of the writers, and including only what the writers were "firmly convinced is true."

Stray Tomcat Object Of 800-Mile Trip

CHILLICOTHE, Mo. AP - A strayed tomcat, pet of an Illinois family, is in the Livingston County jail in custody of Sheriff and Mrs. Kelsie Reeter. The owners are driving here from Hinsdale, a suburb of Chicago, to get it -- providing it's the right cat -- a round trip of 800 miles.

The sheriff said a Mrs. Norman Green telephoned that the cat, belonging to her parents, disappeared Saturday while they were stopped at the park on U.S. 36, near Utica. Reeter went to the park, located a tomcat, and called back. It met the description, and Mrs. Green said they'd be back for it.

The sheriff said he'd be glad. The cat kept him awake half the night.

Redistrlricting of Missouri Legislature Wins Approval

KANSAS CITY AP — A three - judge federal panel has ruled that reapportionment of both houses of the Missouri Legislature is constitutional.

"We believe that the Senate apportionment committee and the House apportionment committee have done a commendable job in apportioning the various districts of the state into districts of substantial equality of population," the judges said in their decision, filed Friday in U. S. District Court.

Members of the panel were Albert A. Ridge and Floyd R. Gibson of the U. S. 8th Circuit Court of Appeals and William H. Becker of the U. S. District Court.

The decision pointed out that the state had been divided into 34 senatorial districts varying in population from 132,848 to 122,221. The perfect district would have 127,053 residents.

There are 163 House districts, ranging from 28,778 to 23,856, and the average would be 26,502.

The court said it would take at least 49.1 per cent of the voters to elect one - half of the state senators, and 48.54 per cent to elect a majority of the House.

The decision was made in acting on a motion filed in April by the state, which sought approval of the redistricting and an end to court litigation.

Plaintiffs in the case were Mrs. H. Constance Jones, Stuart E. Hipshman, Harold Holliday, and James L. Robinson, Jr., all of Kansas City. Paul W. Preisler, Joseph Roddy and David M. Grant of St. Louis were intervenor - plaintiffs.

Watch out, Frankie, Mrs. Miller's Singing Your Song

By BOB THOMAS
AP Movie-Television Writer

HOLLYWOOD AP - Watch out, Frank Sinatra, here comes Mrs. Miller with her version of "Strangers In The Night." Capitol Records is rushing a version by Elva Miller onto the market, and the Sinatra hit song may never be the same. But then, the whole record business hasn't been quite the same since Mrs. Miller came on the scene.

Her album, "Mrs. Miller's Greatest Hits," has already sold 150,000 copies, a highly respectable figure. Her style? It has defied description. Suffice to say that she sings teen-age record hits in a mature contralto. She also whistles.

Frankly, at 58 Mrs. Miller has no illusions about her achievement. "I'll go along with it as long as it lasts," she remarked. "It would be foolish at my age to become starry-eyed. If all this comes to an end, I still have my home and my many interests. And I will have had a lot of fun."

It all started because Mrs. Miller, an amateur singer of Claremont, Calif., made regular visits to a Hollywood studio to record songs, mostly of a sacred nature, for her own pleasure. On one occasion, her accompanist, Fred Bock, slipped some rock 'n' roll numbers among her hymns.

"I think you're having fun with Mrs. Miller," she said. But she went along with him. It happened that Capitol had been searching for an operatic voice to render beatle-type hits. Mrs. Miller seemed an ideal choice.

Most of her numbers were recorded in one take, to preserve the ingenuous quality. Some of the errors were deliberate, as in one number when she was instructed to begin singing a half-beat behind the orchestra.

Concerning the sales of her records, Mrs. Miller declared: "I don't understand it, but teen-agers seem to be buying them. As I see it, there are two kinds of teen-agers. There are the sophisticated ones; who dress like Sonny and Cher; they don't buy my album. Then there are the teen-agers who dress neatly; they are the ones who do buy my records."

Mrs. Miller, who had done no real performing since her high school days in Dodge City, Kans., now finds herself in show business. She has appeared on the TV programs of Ed Sullivan, Merv Griffin, Mike Douglas and Art Linkletter. During the Griffin show she found herself sharing a dressing room with Sally Rand -- "a nice person; she lives in Glendora, not far from Claremont."

Recently she made her acting debut, portraying a dance-hall singer in a new TV series, "The Road West." Next month she plays her first night club engagement at Harrah's, Lake Tahoe.

Does she have any qualms about appearing in night clubs? "Not as long as the stage is separated from the audience," she said. "I like to sing. What people do in the auditorium is their own affair."

Mrs. Miller has now had to acquire a manager, press agent, tax lawyer, accountant, etc. She is also planning to move to nearby Glendale to be closer to the entertainment capital. Her husband, a retired rancher, John Miller, is symathetic with her career.

"He knows I am mature enough to realize that things like this run their course," explained Mrs. Miller.

QUICK QUIZ

Q—What incident set the stage for the Spanish-American War?

A—In 1898, in Havana Harbor, a blast destroyed the battleship Maine, which burst into flames and sank in the harbor. Of some 350 men aboard, 260 died. The exact cause of the explosion was never known.

Q—Are there any pure races of man today?

A—Anthropologists believe not.

Q—What U.S. citizen was fined in 1872 for trying to vote in a presidential election?

A—Susan B. Anthony. She voted in order to test her status as a citizen.

Library of Congress Expansion Plans Tangled in Red Tape

By EDMOND LE BRETON

WASHINGTON (AP) — The Library of Congress, growing at the knowledge-explosion rate of a million items a year, is splitting its marble and steel seams.

Help is in sight, but far off. After a decade of talk, Congress has approved in principle a new building that may contain the library's expansion for 25 years.

The start of construction has been delayed by a tangle that involves architects, some of the most senior members of Congress, the late Speaker Sam Rayburn and James Madison, fourth president of the United States and father of the Bill of Rights.

Meanwhile, the library, which cautiously describes itself as "in all probability the world's largest," is housed in an ornate and overcrowded Italian Renaissance building completed in 1897. A more austere, and also overcrowded, annex was completed in 1939. And the library uses portions of buildings at the former Navy gun factory several miles away on the Anacostia River and an abandoned aircraft hangar. Arrangements are now being made to lease a warehouse given up by a Washington department store.

Although Congress loves its library, the agony of decision-making has delayed the new building.

"At least two years have been lost," protests Rep. Tom Steed, D-Okla., a library buff who is chairman of the appropriations subcommittee responsible for financing the library. "This funny monstrosity of a bill requires 42 different people to agree before anything can be done. It will be a miracle if the library can move into its new building five years from now."

But Rep. Kenneth J. Gray, D-Ill., who piloted through a sea of compromises the bill authorizing a $75 million building, insists it is workable legislation.

"A lot of people had to be satisfied," Gray said. "Some of the people making up the commissions involved are such as the speaker and some of the most senior members on both sides (Democratic and Republican). You couldn't leave them out of the decisions if you wanted to — and nobody wants to."

The result was legislation that gives some role in the planning and construction of the building to the House Building Committee, the Senate Building Committee, the Capitol Building Commission, the James Madison Memorial Commission, the architect of the capitol, who is not a professional architect but an executive officer for the commissions, and a special committee of the American Institute of Architects.

Under Rayburn's leadership, Congress acquired a square of land near the original library and cleared it, razing a small business section and some lovingly restored old Capitol Hill houses.

The square has stood vacant ever since, a prize sought by three groups. One wants it for the library, another for an office building, and the third wants to build a memorial to James Madison, sometimes called the founding father most neglected by posterity.

The key compromise that got the Gray bill through the House was agreement to use the site for a building that would combine a Madison memorial hall with expansion space for the library.

When the redoubtable Rep. Howard W. Smith of Virginia, chairman of the Rules Committee and head of the Madison forces, agreed, the fight was over. Only five votes were cast against the bill. Of course, the Madison Commission got on the control group.

Meanwhile the flood of new acquisitions pours daily into the library, whose employes in many cases literally inch their way around the 44 million items already there.

More people are needed to operate the legislative reference service, the copyright office, the cataloguing section that produces most of the cards used by the libraries of the United States, the program for the blind and a dozen lesser known activities, to say nothing of the shelving books and of the scholarly assistance given 864,000 individuals in 1965.

One by one, public rooms of the original building, special reading rooms, exhibit galleries and the like, have lost their original use and their flamboyant turn of the century charm as they were invaded by ugly wallboard partitions cutting them into temporary work spaces.

At the end of a tour, a staffer looked out over the cluttered great hall.

"I don't think there will even be room for the staff Christmas tree this year," she said sadly.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE is actually a meat loaf layered with eggplant slices and a sour cream sauce. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese adds robust richness to the basic meat loaf and also serves as a sauce to garnish this delectable entree.

Grecian Bake Combines Meat Loaf, Eggplant

Meat loaf in layers with a vegetable and sauce is an interesting departure from the classic meat loaf. Here we've created an appealing oven dish with eggplant as the vegetable. Eggplant slices, sour cream and shredded cheese go between the meat layers. Convenient, canned tomato sauce with cheese gives a glorious color accent to the top.

The hidden bonus with this entree is that very few recognize the eggplant, so have no fears that this dish won't please all the family. They will eat it and love it -- even though there may be some "eggplant-doubters" among the group. Put medium-sized potatoes in the oven to bake at the same time as the meat loaf. Complete the menu with a green vegetable, a crips, cool salad, French bread, and fruit and you have a satisfying meal.

LAYERED GRECIAN BAKE
1 1/2 lbs. lean ground beef
1/2 c. chopped onion
1 egg, slightly beaten
1/2 c. fine dry bread crumbs
1 tsp. basil
1 1/2 tsp. salt
1/4 tsp. pepper
2 (8 oz.) cans tomato sauce with cheese
1 small egg plant, pared and sliced
1/2 c. dairy sour cream
1 c. shredded Cheddar cheese

Combine first 7 ingredients with 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Pack half the meat mixture into an 8" x 8" square or round baking dish. Place eggplant slices on top. Combine sour cream and shredded cheese; spread over eggplant slices. Top with remaining meat mixture. Bake at 350 degrees for 1 hour. Drain off excess fat. Top with remaining 1/2 can tomato sauce with cheese. Bake an additional 15 minutes. Makes 6 servings.

Dear Charlie:

The American Cotton Farmer is getting a royal screwing from our so-called U.S. spinner "friends"?

The attached letter to the V.P. is self-explanatory. Thought you might possibly be interested.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Honorable Hubert H. Humphrey
Vice President of the United States
United States Capitol
Washington, D. C.

Dear Mr. Vice President:

Cotton farmers are dismayed and shocked to learn of increasing difficulties being encountered by the Department of Defense in procuring cotton fabrics needed for our defense efforts. Requirements for all-cotton materials are being made known by Defense Procurement officials. The supplies of cotton are available but the textile industry and apparel manufacturers appear reluctant to make adjustments required to fill military needs.

In World War II, cotton was listed next to steel as being of strategic and vital importance in the war effort. Also, one of the first acts of our government during the Korean War was to impose export controls on U. S. cotton -- the reason being to assure adequate supplies for military uses.

It is important to note that the imposition of export controls and price ceilings on U. S. cotton at that time triggered a series of circumstances and events that have had an adverse impact on U. S. cotton farmers throughout the intervening years. First, because supplies of U. S. cotton were shut off, foreign cotton prices immediately skyrocketed while the price of U. S. cotton was held down by price ceilings. This price bonanza in foreign markets in turn triggered the beginning of a wave of increased cotton production in foreign countries, often at the expense of badly needed food crops.

This increase in foreign production has been aided and abetted by our foreign aid policies and by our export pricing which has served as an umbrella under which the foreign crop has been marketed. The United States appears to have willingly assumed the position of residual supplier in world markets and the interests of the U. S. cotton farmer and the cotton industry have been sacrificed on the altar of "foreign policy" as virtually important export markets for U. S. cotton have been allowed to be diverted.

U. S. cotton farmers have been called upon repeatedly to make the supply readjustments for the entire world. This has required drastic curtailments of cotton acreage in this country that, in turn, have disrupted the economics of entire communities and areas of the nation.

We now have a radically new cotton program embracing the "one price" concept said by the U. S. textile industry to be the answer to our dilemma. Under the new program, cotton farmers have been required to make new adjustments and to forego many latitudes and freedoms with regard to the use of their farm land even for alternative crops. These adjustments were accepted with the great hope of giving cotton a "fighting chance" in the market place.

Of great significance is the fact that U. S. cotton is being made available to U. S. mills at a price that is approximately 9 cents per pound or $45 per bale less than that which prevailed before the "one price" program was initiated. As a result of cheaper raw material prices, mill profits have increased and the textile industry has been able to finance a massive modernization program under which efficiencies have been dramatically improved.

Now, however, we find our country locked in a life and death battle with international communism. Our President has clearly recognized that we must make a determined stand for freedom in Vietnam or perhaps make such a stand later on in the continental United States. The importance of cotton as a strategic war material is again of paramount and overriding importance.

Instead, however, of a determined commitment by the U. S. textile and apparel industries to supply our Government with all of the cotton materials needed by our fighting men, excuses and foot dragging are being encountered on every hand. Apparel manufacturers, riding the crest of high-consumer demands, evidently do not wish to switch over to military requirements even though shortages of all-cotton uniforms and needed cotton materials have been reported and the cooperation of the industry requested.

On May 3 of this year, the Journal of Commerce reported that the Marketing Committee of the American Textile Manufacturers Association had set up a sub-committee to work with the Military -- not to cooperate in filling needs for all-cotton goods that have been demonstrated by tests and experience as superior especially in tropical climates -- but to study new blends for the military. The purpose of the new sub-committee was described as:

"Will seek development of alternate or substitute fabrics in the field of blends for military fabrics now in use under specifications developed in previous wars. In this manner, it is hoped to gear military buying more effectively to present-day production patterns of the industry and increase the number of plants that may be sources of military supply."

More recently, Defense Procurement requested bids on 5 million yards of cotton duck for military use in the Vietnam conflict. Out of the entire U. S. textile industry, only one and one-half million yards have been committed -- but -- the textile industry has come forward and generously offered to substitute nylon for cotton in filling this basic military need.

These developments are shocking and disturbing to cotton farmers who more than any other segment of the entire industry have been called upon to make adjustments and sacrifices. These developments also warrant a close look at the overall problem in the light of the following facts:

1. It is recognized that the military considers 100 percent cotton fabrics to be superior in a wide range of uses.
2. With the large expansion in textile processing capacity and the modernization of the industry that has taken place in this nation, there should be no difficulty in shifting from blends back to all-cotton to fill defense requirements.
3. Mill earnings are at such high levels that they should have no hesitancy or hardship in getting in step with military needs --rather than trying to change the military.
4. This country will have 16 million bales plus of cotton on hand August 1, 1966. And, a new crop -- estimated at 10 1/2 to 11 million bales -- will be harvested this fall.
5. This Administration has given textile mills great assistance. They should not in turn show reluctance to make adjustments in an all-out effort to fill military requirements.
6. Shifting away from cotton will take additional markets away from over one-half million farmers and will reduce their incomes. It will reduce jobs and incomes in hundreds of cotton communities.
7. The success of this Administration's cotton program is predicated on a high level of domestic consumption and exports. Action to fill military requirements for cotton is not only in the best interest of national defense but will also help reduce the supply of cotton already owned by the U.S. Government, and thereby reduce the cost of the current cotton program. Conversely, substituting other materials for cotton on a "second-best" basis will reduce offtake and could jeopardize future markets as well as accounting for immediate losses.

You will recall that a representative group of cotton producers visited with you in your office on May 24 and discussed this problem. We feel that developments since that time emphasize the critical nature of the situation both as it pertains to our Government and individual cotton producers. We wish, therefore, to again call this matter to your attention with the sincere hope that steps can be taken to fill military requirements for all-cotton materials and to prevent the further erosion of cotton markets.

Sincerely,
A. L. Story

Pancho Villa Incident Recalled By Ex-Guardsmen

By FREDERICK W. SLATER
The St. Joseph News-Press
For The Associated Press

ST. JOSEPH, Mo. (AP)—This week has a special significance for a number of men in Northwest Missouri.

To them Monday, the Fourth of July, marked the 50th anniversary of their departure from Camp Clark, Nevada, Mo., to serve as National Guardsmen on the Mexican border during the Pancho Villa trouble.

One of those who recalls the service is Melvin W. Payne, who now lives in nearby Atchison, Kan. Among his mementos is a flag-decorated, gold-embossed Roll of Honor of the men of Company M, 4th Missouri Infantry, who served on the border.

"John D. McNeely was our colonel and Clay C. MacDonald was major of the regiment. Our company was composed mostly of men from St. Joseph and Northwest Missouri, but there were others united from Kansas City," he recalled.

"We were federalized on June 18, 1916, and sent to Camp Clark. I think none of us will ever forget July 4, 1916, as that was the day we left for the border. We arrived at Laredo, Tex. on July 6. We took over the task of border patrol and relieved regular troops who were assigned to go with Gen. John H. Pershing into Mexico looking for Pancho Villa, the Mexican rebel leader, who raided the American city of Columbus, N. M.

"We stayed on the border until Feb. 20, 1917, when we were shipped to Ft. Riley, Kan. We received our discharges there on March 1, 1917."

Ingredients in the squabble which resulted in the guardsmen being sent to the border were Venustiano Carranza, president of Mexico, and the bandit, Villa, a thorn in Carranza's side. Villa, an illiterate farmer but shrewd military leader, who made several raids into the United States.

These raids finally led President Woodrow Wilson to use the National Guard. At first only state troops from Texas, New Mexico and Arizona were federalized. Finally, the entire guard, 100,000 men in all, was called.

With guardsmen replacing them, the regular troops continued into Mexico but met with no success in their search for Villa. The situation became tense as Carranza was angered over the intrusion of American troops into his country.

In an effort to avert war the United States-Mexican Commission was established.

But before the commission could reach an agreement, the world situation worsened as World War I thunder rolled in Europe. American leaders, realizing there was every chance of the United States being involved agreed to begin withdrawal of troops from Mexico in January, 1917, and Carranza was appeased.

The guardsmen were withdrawn and discharge of the units was ordered.

But for many of the civilian soldiers it was only a brief respite from duty.

Company M, for exmple, was discharged March 1, 1917.

By April 2, just a month and a day later, the U. S. was at war with Germany. Shortly afterward the men of Company M were back in federal service.

from dark clouds

This is the wonder, this the comforting,
That out of cloud banks dark and threatening
Come raindrops crystal-clear, to heal and bless
The thirsty ground with growth and loveliness.
Eternal Lord, teach us the certainty
That clouds of sorrow in the heart can be
A source of kindness and compassionate love
That fall as gentle-healing rain and give
To other hearts a lessening of grief,
A gloried growth of worship and belief!

Many Potential Home Buyers Foiled by Rising Loan Rates

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) —John and his wife had made up their minds. They would take the $30,000 house in the neighborhood where they thought their children would have a better chance. The down payment of $3,000 had finally been scraped together. Monthly payments on the mortgage would be pretty high for them; but they thought they could swing it, just barely.

"Sorry, said the real estate agent. You should have come back a month ago. Now, the only possible source for the money to finance the purchase is asking a down payment of $6,000. And the interest on the mortgage has gone from 5.5 per cent to 6.5 per cent. Money's tight, you know."

John and his wife and the children are staying in the old neighborhood.

On the other side of the country, an aggressive junior executive was being moved to a new post. Joe was happy at the promotion. His family were reconciled to leaving their friends and the home his wife liked so much. A buyer had been lined up for it.

But just before the deed was to be signed, the would-be buyer backed out. He still liked the house. But to swing the deal for him, the lender of the mortgage money was now asking much more in down payment and carrying charges that would put the monthly payments beyond the stretching point of the prospect's income—even if the asking price for the house was shaved. The lender had explained it was hard to find any money, even costlier money, for the deal—and the going interest rates for everything were up, way up.

Much the same thing is reported here and there by professional builders. The financial institutions that carry them while they build and hunt for home buyers are hard to deal with just now. Banks and savings and loan associations say they're short of funds to lend. They also are fearful that home buyers able to handle the costlier mortgages may prove few and far between.

Tight money is coming as a shock to many folk because the money supply actually is bigger than ever before. But there's a booming demand for credit to run a booming economy. Businessmen are competing for loans. Government agencies and private corporations are selling securities—and competing for any available money.

Homes are still being sold, and still being built. But financial institutions that traditionally lend the money for the purchase of homes are finding it harder to get more deposits, because people with idle money can get higher returns by depositing elsewhere, or buying securities.

Cost of Living Pinch Even Worse in Foreign Countries

By SAM DAWSON
AP Business News Analyst

NEW YORK (AP) — The dollar doesn't go as far as it used to. Even so most other countries have more room for complaint.

Despite all the unpleasantness of the rising cost of living here, other lands have seen a bigger erosion of the market value of their currency in the last 12 or 18 months. And as here, higher food prices often have been the main culprit.

If you figure the market value of the local money as an even 100 in 1955 the U.S. dollar was worth 85 cents in 1965. Only three other countries beat that mark. In El Salvador and Guatemala the local currency still bought the same amount of goods and services 10 years later, as measured by cost of living index. In Venezuela the currency's index value is 89. And in Ecuador it's also 85, as in the United States.

Everywhere else the drop has been pretty bad over the long stretch, right down to the example of Brazil where an index value of 100 in 1955 is a lowly 3 in 1966.

The performance of money in 1965, when the cost of living started climbing in the United States to everyone's discomfort, shows Americans ahead of the game by comparison. In a compilation of the depreciation of the value of money in 45 countries in the last 10 years, the First National City Bank, New York, reports that the decline in 1965 was steeper in 31 of the lands than had been the 10 year average.

The one-year drop was 1.7 per cent in the United States. In Canada the drop was 2.3 per cent. France saw a 2.4 per cent slide. But this bettered its previous experience. The annual rate over the 1955-65 period had been 4.6 per cent in France. Fiscal policies to fight rising inflation apparently were helping France at least slacken the upward pace of the cost of living.

Depreciation in the value of the local money in West Germany, Switzerland and Belgium was held for the 1965 period to 3.8 per cent in each instance. Norway saw a 3.9 per cent decline in the purchasing power of its money.

The United Kingdom and Sweden saw their money depreciate at the rate of 4.6 per cent in 1965. Italy and Ireland each reported a 4.8 per cent drop. In the Netherlands the decline was an even 5 per cent. Denmark's loss was 6.4 per cent.

But of all the industrialized nations Japan apparently was worst hit by the rising cost of living. There, last year's depreciation in the value of money was 7.1 per cent, compared with a 10-year average of 3.7.

So the United States, despite its prolonged economic boom, and its recent pinch on consumer pocketbooks, still has been able to maintain a much lower rate of depreciation than other major industrial nations.

The rising cost of living has been a growing concern here, but a much more pressing one in other lands.

DuQuoin State Fair TV's All Star Revue

DU QUOIN, ILL. --(Special)-- Billed "The Steve Lawrence Show with Eydie Gorme" and "The Perry Como Show", Du Quoin State Fair's 1966 week-long and Labor Day night shows might singularly be called "TV's All-Star Revue".

The Lawrence- Gorme show, which runs Monday (Aug. 29) through Sunday (Sept. 4), is headed by one of the entertainment world's most highly-respected husband and wife combinations while the Labor Day night (Sept. 5) show will feature the inimitable Como himself.

Eydie, whose earliest claim to fame was a vocalist with Tex Beneke's orchestra, signed as a regular on Steve Allen's "Tonight Show" in 1953 and from that moment her career has progressed rapidly.

It was 1957, however, before she and Steve were married after meeting for the first time on the "Tonight Show". They combined their talents in 1960 and have been consistent smashes since. Eydie, in addition, is well known for frequent appearances on TV's "Jack Paar Show", "Password", and "I've Got a Secret".

Como, of course, has laid claim to every honor available to entertainers. A pro's pro, the 54-year-old master crooner promises to be one of the biggest box office attractions in the Du Quoin Fair's history.

Both Lawrence and Como are expected to emcee their respective shows which will include other talented acts as well.

Similar groups, the Young American Singers and The Young Americans will appear and both have long lines of TV accomplishments. The first mentioned will be on the week-long show, the Young Americans on the Como one-nighter.

A recent TV rage, comedians Davis and Reese will appear throughout the week as will Ferry Forst, called "Europe's greatest illusionist", and clever Diane Shelton who mixes beauty with juggling ability.

Both shows will follow two Grand Old Opry performances which are scheduled for opening Saturday (Aug. 27) night and Sunday (Aug. 28). The Du Quoin Fair's new free gate and free parking policy will prevail throughout the 10-day exposition.

GOLDEN BANANA PUDDING

½ cup un-cooked rice
1⅔ cup water
¼ teaspoon salt
2 cans (13 ounce) MILNOT, divided
½ cup sugar
1 egg, slightly beaten
1 package (app. 3½ ounce) banana instant pudding mix
1 teaspoon vanilla
fresh sliced bananas for garnish

Combine rice, water and salt; bring to boil. Stir in 2⅓ cups MILNOT and sugar; cover and simmer about one hour—stirring frequently. Remove from heat, stir in egg. Blend remaining cup MILNOT and pudding mix, stir into the rice mixture—about one minute; stir in vanilla. Pour into deep bowl, cover and chill well. Top with sliced bananas. Serves 8-10.

Sanatorium to Get New Unit

JEFFERSON CITY AP -- The Mt. Vernon Sanatorium is going to get a new vocational rehabilitation unit to help recovered patients return to useful jobs.

Joy O. Talley, vocational rehabilitation director for the State Department of Education, and Dr. Charles A. Brasher, superintendent of the Tuberculosis Hospital, have signed an agreement providing $366,000 for the first year of operation.

The federal government provides 75 per cent of the cost.

The unit, similar to those at the Farmington, Nevada and St. Joseph state hospitals, will be headed by Vernon A. Babbitt, now a rehabilitation counselor at the Nevada hospital. It will have a staff of about 33.

British Bar Advises Six-Month Wait For Marriage

LONDON AP - Couples in love should be required to register their engagements with the government and wait six months to marry, the British Bar Association's General Council says.

"If marriages were made more difficult, divorce would become less prevalent," said a memorandum from the council to the British government.

"It is our view that no license to marry should ever - except in some exceptional cases-- be granted until the parties have been engaged for a period of at least six months."

The government is considering lowering the age for marriage without parental consent from 21 to 18.

Eureka Restricts Use of Water

EUREKA, Mo. AP -- The Eureka Board of Aldermen Monday restricted the use of water in the city to necessities only.

The ordinance prohibits use of water at automatic laundries and ready mix concrete plants between three p.m. and midnight.

City officials said the water level in the reservoir is low and might not be sufficient in case of emergency.

A—Ceres, discovered in 1801. It is still the largest asteroid that has ever been found.

Find Treasure In Convenience On Pantry Shelf

Pineapple's a treasure in these kabobs, but so's the fact that they can be made quickly from foods on the pantry shelf.

It's a great convenience to have canned luncheon meat on the shelf for lunch or supper, says Reba Staggs, meat authority. Bake it whole with brown sugar and whole cloves, slice it for sandwiches or grind it on the fine blade of the food chopper for this wrapping around pineapple cubes.

Six wooden skewers are needed. These should be of medium length, measuring from six to eight inches.

Hidden Treasure

2 cans (12 ounces) luncheon meat, chopped fine
½ cup fine bread crumbs
1 egg
½ cup milk
18 pineapple chunks
6 wooden skewers

Combine luncheon meat, bread crumbs, egg and milk. Place 3 pineapple chunks on each skewer. Divide meat mixture into 6 portions and mold around pineapple chunks. Place on broiler rack, place broiler rack and pan in broiler so that the top surface of the meat is 2 to 3 inches from the heat. Broil, turning occasionally. Allow 10 to 15 minutes for broiling. 6 servings.
